

3 ONE-ACT PLAYS SATURDAY NIGHT SENIOR HI SCHOOL

Everything is in readiness for the three one-act plays being sponsored by the Jackson County Recreation club and a large crowd is expected, as county-wide interest is being shown.

"Who's Who in the Home" is the title of the first play, to be presented by Agnes O'Brien. It is a comedy, the wife thinking she is home only to find later she is not. The cast is as follows: Owen Ogden.....Frank Knutzen Thelma Ogden.....Margaret Knutzen Bob Polley.....Jack O'Brien Etta.....Martha Mee

The play is directed by Clara O'Brien. "Miss Molly" is the title of the play to be presented by the Rogue River Civic Improvement club. This is also a comedy, full of unusual situations, when Reg Peters, the woman-hater finds himself living a very complex situation when his home is invaded by many females. The cast includes: Reginald Peters.....Mrs. Effie Birdseye Julian Hewitt.....Mrs. Clara Baker Joe Johnson.....Mrs. Nellie Cook Annie Peters.....Mrs. Esther Braisher Molly Peters.....Mrs. Thelma Thomas Cissie Saunders.....Mrs. Elsie Phelps Pearl White.....Mrs. Lela Shepherd Lady Elusia Minton.....Mrs. Agnes Margaria

The third and last play is presented by Central Point Orange and is entitled "The Teeth of the Gilt Horse," by Margaret Cameron. The scene for this play is laid in the home of the Butlers. To this home arrives Aunt Marietta for a visit. Some of the hand-painted china she has given to the young couple has been disposed of and much trouble arises over trying to get it back without hurting Aunt Marietta's feelings. The parts of Richard and Florence Butler are played by William Foley and Eula Benson. Mrs. Sanford Richardson plays Aunt Marietta, Mrs. John Bohner and John Blackford portray the parts of Anne Fisher and Devlin Blake who are friends of the Butlers. Mrs. C. E. Smith is Katie, the Butler's maid. Mrs. Victor Bursell directed the play. The public is invited to attend. A small admission charge will be made to defray expenses.

PROHI CHIEFTAINS VISITING MEDFORD

Maurice Smith, of Seattle, prohibition administrator for this district, and W. K. Newell, of Portland, deputy administrator for Oregon, on a tour of inspection, visited the local branch here today in charge of C. Y. Herr.

George Alexander of Salem, assistant superintendent of state police, paid his first visit to the local branch office today that is under the direction of Capt. Lee M. Bown.

Mrs. Smith, of Seattle, is accompanying the party on the trip. They left today for Klamath Falls via Crater Lake.

The officials paid a high tribute to the efficiency of the work of the local officials.

INFORM STEWER ON RELIEF NEED

In response to a telegram from Senator Frederick Steiwer, making inquiry relative to unemployment needs in Jackson county, the county court this afternoon forwarded a telegram to Washington, D. C., setting forth that federal appropriations for road work in Crater Lake National Park, and the Crater Lake National forest, would be the chief means of furnishing employment, via federal aid.

Senator Steiwer urged a speedy response, in order that all these data may be presented, before Congress adjourns in about a month.

Senator Robinson of Arkansas has a bill pending before Congress which provides a $2,000,000,000 appropriation for the relief of unemployment, by launching of federal projects.

districts of the Middle West, average production per acre doesn't exceed seven and one-half tons.

Here in the Rogue River valley, average production over all the years of which there is a record runs around FIFTEEN tons per acre and this summer, which gives promise of being an unusually good year, it is anticipated that average production will run around eighteen tons.

THE Rogue River valley is the outstanding pear district of Oregon. It is one of the outstanding pear districts of the United States. Because of its pears, it is world famous.

But the Rogue River valley doesn't want to be a one-crop district. It needs diversification if it is to be unbrokenly prosperous, year in and year out.

This swiftly growing tomato industry offers fine opportunities for added diversification.

WORK ALLOCATED IN NEW SYSTEM STATE'S SCHOOLS

SALEM, May 12.—(AP)—Final allocation of work in the higher education in Oregon unified system was announced here last night by E. E. Lindsay, secretary of the state board of higher education. Posters outlining all work in detail was mailed to the high schools over the state.

The allocation conforms almost entirely with the report of the curriculum committee of the board made public some time ago. The school of journalism is retained at the University of Oregon. The new system divides the six institutions into three chief classes, degree-granting schools, lower division training and the preparation for teaching.

The degree-granting schools are those at Corvallis, Eugene and Portland. At Corvallis will be degree curricula in agriculture, engineering, mechanical arts, forestry, home economics, pharmacy and science. At Eugene will be business administration, fine arts, journalism, law, school of literature, languages and social sciences.

Elementary teacher training is provided at Ashland, La Grande and Monmouth on a comparable basis through two-year curricula leading to the state normal school diploma. This entitles graduates to teach in the elementary schools.

HENS SUPPLIED FOR GAME FARM

The call for "setting hens," issued by the Jackson County Game Protective association is being answered by many poultrymen, the officers announced today, and the little Chinese pheasant, that are going to hatch at the Jackson county branch of the state game farm will be well supplied with foster mothers.

As soon as the story appeared in the Mail Tribune the replies began to arrive. And the many hens, who have preferred sitting to laying, will be given something useful to do.

BUSINESS EXPERT ANALYZES CAUSE OF MANY FAILING

Eighty per cent of the business failures in the United States in 1931 were due to lack of capital, in a great many cases caused by frozen assets resulting from unwise credits, Frank T. Caldwell, field secretary of the National Retail Credit association, here from St. Louis, told the crowd of 60 merchants and professional men gathered at the Hotel Medford for luncheon today noon.

Mr. Caldwell's address was directed to those extending credits and was aimed to encourage the exchange of information for the mutual benefit of all concerned.

Credit has been too easily obtained during the past several years, he informed his audience. The people of the country have made unlimited purchases, which they were unable to liquidate to any important portion.

The merchants of today, for the most part, he explained, are selling credits instead of merchandise. There is too much competition among merchants on the basis of credits. Before any accounts are accepted the buying habits of purchasers are absolutely essential. Mr. Caldwell made it emphatic to his listeners, and in conclusion urged all merchants in Medford to realize and utilize the benefits of co-operation in exchange of credit information.

Lou Corbett of the Western Auto Supply Co. led the singing of songs, and C. B. McMath of the Simons French company was official pianist for the luncheon hour.

DO YOU KNOW THAT for the price of a Cake of Yeast

Have you ever stopped to consider how much electricity does for you every day and how little it asks in return. Nearly every one of the dozens of jobs electricity performs in the modern home may be paid for with pennies. Waffles for the whole family, for instance, can be made for only a few cents. A toaster costs even less to operate and coffee can be made for only a fraction of a cent a cup. When you consider these really insignificant costs, what money you spend brings greater return in comfort and convenience? Just think it over!
