

FUNERAL MONDAY FOR J. W. PELTON, VALLEY PIONEER

James W. Pelton died at his ranch home at Fort Klamath, Oregon, Friday, May 13th, 1932, where he had lived perhaps 20 years. Prior to that time he had lived on the old Pelton ranch in Sams Valley, Jackson county, Oregon, where he was born June 9, 1860. No man in Klamath county enjoyed a better reputation for good citizenship, truth and honesty than Jim Pelton.

His parents were Enoch C. Pelton and Mary Stewart (Rowe) Pelton. Both parents came to the Rogue River valley in 1852. They were married five years later. The father came from Rock, Arkansas, and the mother from Missouri. The father's earliest occupation in the west was that of mining and packing into mines. In the latter part of the '50's or early in the '60's parents acquired what is known as the "Pelton Ranch" at Sams Valley, where they engaged extensively and successfully in stock raising. The father died in 1885; the mother in 1900.

Jim Pelton and Horace L. Pelton, his brother, and half-brother, L. C. Sisemore, successfully carried on the livestock business on the Sams Valley property for many years following the father's death. Perhaps twenty or twenty-five years ago they acquired a very large stock ranch situated at and around the town of Fort Klamath. At that time Jim took over the management and operation of the Klamath properties and Horace managed those here, and the two ranches were used together in the raising of cattle. There are probably 1500 acres in the Klamath ranch, being almost level, and all in meadow.

Shortly before the death of Horace the brothers separated their interests. Horace succeeded to the Sams Valley ranch and Jim to the Klamath ranch. Up to about seven or eight years ago Jim gave his attention to raising his own cattle on the Klamath property. But more recently he has rented this large enclosure to other cattle men who have used it as pastures for the fattening of their cattle for market. For the last eight or ten years Jim and Mrs. Pelton have spent their winters in Los Angeles, returning to Klamath county after the breaking of the winter there, ordinarily in April.

Mrs. James Pelton was Josephine Orth, a pioneer Jacksonville girl, and who is a sister of John Orth of Medford. She married James Pelton May 30, 1908 in Klamath Falls.

James Pelton was widely known throughout southern Oregon. He was a very successful business man, quiet and unassuming and a very good judge of other men, and was always considerate of their views. He saw the question from the other man's point of view to an unusual degree, and in the working out of many business matters, or the adjustment thereof, he was more than fair to the other side. He was to quite an extent an arbitrator in the differences over water rights and property, etc., in Klamath county. His judgment was particularly good, and always fairly used. He never had any quarrels with anyone, probably because he was willing to be met half way, and could see the other side, even of his own matter. He was temperate in all things, not only in his judgment, but in his habits. Except for his exposure upon the range he probably would have lived much longer. There will not be anything said of him that will not tend to leave a pleasant memory.

He was a member of Jacksonville lodge, A. F. & A. M. and of Al Kader temple A. O. N. M. S. of Portland.

He leaves to mourn his loss his widow, and a brother, L. C. Sisemore of Fort Klamath, and two cousins, J. L. Rowe and I. M. Rowe of Sams Valley besides several nieces and nephews.

Interment will be in the Sams Valley cemetery and Warren lodge No. 10 of Jacksonville will have charge of the services Monday. The funeral will start from the John S. Orth residence, 1008 South Oakdale at 10 a. m. and proceed directly to the Sams Valley cemetery. The pall bearers will be T. E. Daniels, A. S. Rosenbaum, and the deceased's four nephews, Orth Sisemore, Roland Sisemore, Emmett Sisemore and John J. Wilkinson.

Nazarene Church Revival Drawing Big Crowd Daily
