CHECK ARTIST ON PAROLE RETURNS ON NEW CHARGES

L. E. Stevenson, public accountant of Medford and Klamath Falls, was arrested late Friday afternoon and placed in the county jail by city police, charged with violating his parole. A fraudulent check, allegedly written by Stevenson and passed at the J. C. Penney store was the cause of his arrest.

He will be taken before Judge H. D. Norton in circuit court the early part of the week, according to Chief of Police Clatus McCrede.

Stevenson was arrested here February 24, charged with obtaining money under false pretenses, and was paroled for six months by Judge Norton, the checks having been made good by a friend.

At that time five checks, totaling $15, were passed by him at Bates' Barber shop, Jarmin and Woods' drug store, McMar's and the Brownie Marie cafe. He admitted writing some of the checks at that time, one being signed L. E. Stevenson.

L. F. Arnold, city police officer of Klamath Falls, who was in Medford yesterday, stated that a warrant was out at Klamath Falls for Stevenson's arrest. Arnold stated that a check for $5, which he had allegedly written, had been turned over to them.

Banjo Artist Will Appear Fox Stage

(By Jack Retlaw)
Following the receipt of scores of telephone calls and dozens of letters urging requesting that the Fox Craterian theater again present Jimmie Parkhill, the banjo solo-marvel, the local Fox playhouse announces that this favorite musical genius has been engaged to appear on the stage for three days beginning today, as an added attraction with the current program.

For his current appearance, Jimmie Parkhill has arranged a brand new program of very clever solo novelties. He will be accompanied by Madge DeLaSaux at the concert grand piano.

In commenting on the unusual ability of this gifted banjo star, Jack Retlaw, manager of the local Fox theaters declared that he is unquestionably one of the best he has heard... and he cited Eddie Peabody, recognized as the world's finest banjolist, as well as half a dozen others. It is Mr. Retlaw's belief that Jimmie will eventually become a real celebrity in his line, and a truly brilliant career awaits him.

This attraction will be presented in conjunction with the showing of Joan Crawford and Robert Montgomery in "Letty Lynton."

George O'Brien Is Starring at Rialto

But a few "Western" types of pictures have been anticipated locally on the theater screen than George O'Brien in Zane Grey's remarkable success "Rainbow Trail," which is showing today and tomorrow at the Fox Rialto theater.

George O'Brien is a prime favorite with Medford fans. Zane Grey has a particularly large following here, both from the standpoint of his excellent literary works and the fact that he maintains a summer home adjacent, thus making him at least a "part-time" resident of Jackson county.

"The Rainbow Trail" is a vivid drama of the great West. It affords O'Brien an excellent opportunity to display his prowess as a remarkable horseman and a genuine outdoor "be-man".

In addition on this program, a particularly funny Laurel and Hardy comedy hit "Help Mates" will provide plenty of rib-tickling laughs.

Highway Cleanup Claims Interest

Much interest is being taken over the entire country in the Pacific highway beautification contest which is now under way. A cash prize of $500 will be awarded the county in Oregon making the best showing in the contest and Jackson county is making a special effort to win. All local residents owning property bordering the Pacific highway are urged to clean up and improve their properties at once and to report their accomplishments to the committee in charge of the project. There is need for immediate action as the contest closes this month.
