

GOLD HILL FEARS SCHOOL BATTLING MAY RUIN FINALE

(By Eva Nealon.)

Rumblings and threats, reminiscent of the old-time feud which marked early school activities in many county districts of Jackson county, are sounding this week over the back fences of Gold Hill, residents of the former mining center announced in Medford yesterday.

And before plans for annual commencement are completed next week, members of the very young school population are expected to be "facing" at each other with noses reaching the same angle achieved beneath sunbonnets, by their elders many years ago.

The "little red school" in most districts has been replaced by something better. But human nature continues the same. Expressions of wrath exploded in dusty country roads regarding the "excessive bond issue," when ranch hands were carried by horse and wagon "to vote for the school," now echo through the streets of the town.

It's the board, the principal, the coach, the commencement, instead of the bond issue this time. The names called are the same.

The disturbance is the outgrowth of the steady row which has resounded at frequent intervals from the Gold Hill system for several months. Its origin became known to the public when the school board hired George Meisinger, principal, for another year, and did not rehire Coach Angland.

Latest developments threaten no commencement exercises for the senior class, scheduled for Thursday, May 28. A shower of eggs "if the principal attends" is shouted in another quarter, and a good old-fashioned fight is the prediction from outside. The school meetings of previous weeks, which have not been noted for their calm, promise to be outshone by the grand finale, commencement.

GEO. PORTER GETS STRONG SUPPORT

George Porter is a candidate for the Republican nomination for one of the two representatives to be selected at the primaries Friday from this, the 19th, district.

Mr. Porter has been a resident of Oregon for over forty years and a taxpayer in Jackson county for thirty years. He has been engaged in the lumber business in Medford for twenty-five years, the last eight years of that time as owner of the Porter Lumber company.

He has been active in the civic and business life of Medford, served several years on the planning commission, has been elected to the city council twice and is an active member of that body at the present time. Mr. Porter says he has no business interests outside of Jackson county and believes his quarter of a century in business here and his knowledge of the needs of the people of this county and state qualify him to serve them in the legislature, and if nominated and elected he pledges to do everything he can to carry out this promise.

McKenzie Opening Prospects Eyed

BEND, ORE., May 19.—(AP)—A party of road workers and forest service men left Bend Tuesday for the McKenzie Pass country to determine how soon the road may be opened to traffic, and to survey snow conditions. The road was opened May 13 last year, although 10 feet of snow covered the ground in some places.

JOHN H. FULLER VERY CAPABLE BUSINESS MAN

(Contributed.)

John H. Fuller was born in Augusta, Maine, December 10, 1869. He attended the public schools of that city, and the famous old Kents-Hill academy, later graduating from the college of liberal arts of Boston university in 1893. He served for two years in the office of city treasurer and tax collector in the city of Augusta; returned to the law school of Boston university for a brief law course, and was afterward appointed to a clerkship in the United States pension department; after a five-year service in this department, he started in business, organizing a wholesale grocery and grain company in Augusta; returned to the law school of his father and other friends, became one of the outstanding firms in the state.

Health impaired by over-activity, Mr. Fuller took a vacation for travel and to seek milder climate, came to southern Oregon in 1908, and took up the outdoor life of ranching and orcharding, locating at Talent, Ore. Mr. Fuller has owned a farm, both in Maine and in Oregon, ever since his first earning capacity. While on his ranch in Talent, Ashland folks selected him president of the Southern Oregon Chautauqua association and for several years he served in this capacity, and one season assisted the Ellison-White company as director and lecturer in the outside field.

During the World war, Mr. Fuller served in the home work on the Liberty Loan committee of Jackson county, and received government commendation for this work. During eight years' work in promotion of Ashland and Jackson county interests, Mr. Fuller served on the tax conservation commission, devoting much time to the study of the tax problems of the county, and during one session of the legislature, was secretary to the senate tax committee. For five or six years, Mr. Fuller was a member of the board of regents for the Normal school of Oregon, and was on the building committee constructing the Southern Oregon Normal school at Ashland. Mr. Fuller is greatly interested in the tax problems confronting us at the present time, as he has been a taxpayer in the county for the entire time of his residence, and believes that there are many ways in which our county and our municipalities may relieve the present burden of taxation. He is a member of the Masonic bodies, including Hilliah temple, the Kiwanis club, Chamber of Commerce, and has for many years been a member of the Methodist church.

CORVALLIS, Ore., May 19.—(AP)—A football game between Oregon State college and the West Coast Army has been scheduled for October 28, Carl Lodell, graduate manager here, announced today. The game will be played at Corvallis.

MIDGET LITHUANIA HAS NO SHARE IN WORLD'S TROUBLES

KAUNAS, Lithuania.—(AP)—A happy oasis in the desert of world economic depression is Lithuania, midget state of 2,300,000 inhabitants, with an area not quite as large as that of West Virginia.

"We hardly notice that there is an economic crisis," said Dr. Pranas Daulide, department director at the Lithuanian foreign office. "The very fact that more primitive social and economic conditions obtain with us than with highly industrialized states has proven a great boon." "This country is almost entirely agricultural. All told, we have only 8000 industrial workers, and 85 per cent of our population lives on farms." "The farmer produces for himself what he needs, so we have been able to regulate our imports according to our exports. We could, in fact, at any time, stop imports altogether if that were necessary." "Every country bordering upon us or near us has had to adopt stringent measures against the exportation of capital, but not Lithuania. The lit continues to be worth 10 American cents, as it always was." "Our foreign debt consists merely of $10,000,000 which we borrowed from the United States. That represents only about 40 per cent of our annual budget. Besides, we have $2 years in which to pay it, and the Hoover moratorium gave us an extra year."

Talks To Parents

By Alice Judson Peale.

In modern psychological writings one reads often the term "sublimation." It means the conversion of a crude instinctive drive into socially acceptable channels. For instance, the desire to be looked at may be converted, with the aid of certain native endowments into a proficiency in dancing that may win its bearer money and fame. Or, again, simple curiosity about that which is secret may become the scientific curiosity that makes discoveries of great value.

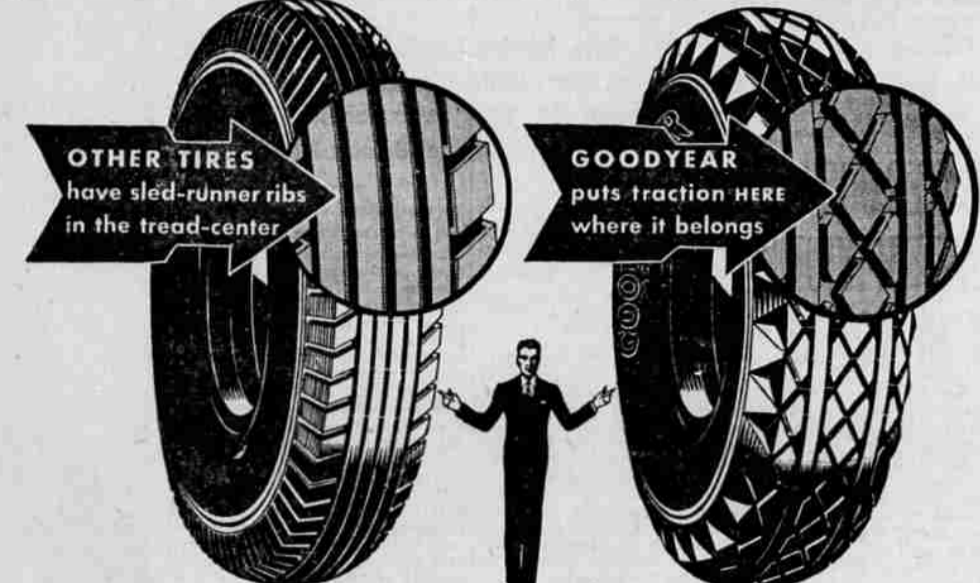

Indeed all the beautiful, valuable, and much of the merely self-sustaining work that people do must spring from primitive instinctive drives which have been converted by education, talent, and good luck into behavior of which the world at large can approve.

Parents

Our aim should be always to help the child find better outlets for his instinctive tendencies. If, for instance, he especially loves to play with dirt, give him a sandpile and some clay.

The difference in SAFETY is about 10,000 Miles

ANYONE who gives a little thought to non-skid safety must quickly conclude that there are only two kinds of tire treads.

One has straight, smooth, sled-runner ribs of rubber where the tire contacts the road.

The other has tough, stout, sharp-edged, sure-biting traction blocks in the center of the tread.

Virtually all tires fit the first description—and the one important exception is the Goodyear All-Weather Tread.

It is interesting to note in this connection that more people ride on Goodyear Tires than on any other kind.

THEY must find by experience that center traction makes Goodyear Tires safer—but you might like to ask "how much?" The answer, as nearly as we can figure is—about 10,000 miles.

A new tire with smooth rubber in the center of the tread is no safer than a Goodyear after its tread-center has worn smooth in use.

And judging from average driving experience, Goodyear All-Weather Tread Tires keep their clean-cut center traction—their non-skid safety—for somewhere around the first 10,000 miles.

You can draw your own conclusions, but it looks to us as if this made Goodyears 10,000 miles safer than other tires.

There seem to be several million motorists like yourself who have reached the same conclusion, because Goodyear Tires are first choice by millions.

If you want extra safety in the next tires you buy, just ask yourself one question: Why buy a second-choice tire when first-choice costs no more?

Why be satisfied with a second-choice tire when FIRST-choice costs no more!
