JAFSIE TO LEAD KIDNAPERS HUNT IN NEW ENGLAND

GREAT BARRINGTON, Mass., May 23.—(AP)—Dr. John P. Condon, the "Jafsie" of the Lindbergh case, arrived in Great Barrington today and said he would organize a search for the kidnapers in this vicinity. He was secretive upon his arrival here and, except to say he planned to organize the search for the kidnapers in New England, would not discuss his plans. He said later he expected to visit Pittsfield. (Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press.)

OTTAWA, Can., May 23.—(AP)—The statement he himself was in contact with mysterious personages who asked for ransom for the Lindbergh baby is made by Dean H. Dobson-Peacock of Norfolk, Va., in a copyrighted interview published by the Southern newspapers of Canada.

Dean Peacock says he met "three tough-looking customers" at a New York hotel and they demanded ransom, but he broke off the negotiations after he became convinced the men were "racketeers."

The interview given to C. O. Smith, Washington correspondent of the southern papers, says John Hughes Curtis' conduct throughout the whole negotiation was so convincing "I would do the same thing if a similar occasion arose tomorrow."

"Curtis declared he would not act alone and asked me to cooperate with him," said Peacock in the interview.

Rhythm Band On Craterian Stage

What has been pronounced by local critics who attended the opening performance yesterday as one of the most spectacular as well as entertaining combination stage-screen programs ever presented in Medford, is now showing at the Fox Craterian theater.

Featured on the big stage revue are the Nine Ambassadors of Rhythm Band. Here is one of the snappiest musical organizations heard here in some time. Each and every one is a splendid musician. . . . some on several instruments, and Tommy Caldwell, the tenor sonster of the band is a dandy.

Jack Retlaw who staged this revue undoubtedly spent plenty of time and effort in welding together this millisecond presentation. One of the big attractions of the stage show is the unusually beautiful stage setting. Among those who are appearing in specialty numbers, in addition to the band, are George Andrews, Mrs. Jack Retlaw, Jerry Thompson, and Jack Retlaw himself, who is acting as master of ceremonies.

On the screen, that powerful Fanny Hurst story "Symphony of Six Million" starring beautiful Irene Dunne of "Cimarron" fame, Ricardo Cortez and a superb supporting cast. This picture is rated as one of the really big epics from Hollywood this year. It is a highly dynamic story, centered around mighty New York city. Those who saw this picture yesterday enthusiastically acclaimed it to the skies.

This big double program will be shown both tonight and Tuesday. The stage revue will be presented but once each evening. . . . at 9 o'clock p. m., but the screen feature will be presented at both matinee and evening performances.

Barbara Stanwyck On Holly Screen Barbara Stanwyck brings to her role of "Kitty Lane," the heroine of "Shopworn" in which she is starring at the Holly theater, a fine blending of innocence and sophistication.

Regis Toomey, Zasu Pitts, and Lucien Littlefield have important supporting roles. A fine story, splendid acting by all members of the cast and a happy ending, a bit unusual in a Stanwyck picture, make "Shopworn" desirable entertainment. The excellent short subject program consists of a Gribble McNamara News reel, another prize winning cartoon entitled "The China Plate" and a comedy featuring a lot of monkeys and entitled "The Jazabo Singer." "Shopworn" will continue at the Holly tonight and tomorrow afternoon and evening.

"Mystery of Life" Coming to Holly

Everyone will have a chance to see ants that keep cows and milk them, for it is one of the many very unusual nature scenes in "The Mystery of Life" coming to the Holly Wednesday for one day only.

Contrasted with a herd of cows kept by human beings is a monster herd of tiny plant lice that are known in popular science as ant cows. These almost microscopic creatures excrete a sweet, sticky fluid from their bodies of which the ants are very fond, so they herd thousands of the little animals together on the stems of plants which serve as their pasture.

MOTT WILL REST AFTER CAMPAIGN

SALEM, May 23.—(AP)—James W. Mott, who, on the basis of latest returns from Friday's primary election, has defeated Willis C. Hawley for the Republican nomination for representative in congress from the first congressional district, left today for Cannon Beach, where he will spend several days.

Mott announced that he would make no definite statement until such time as the complete returns had been received and tabulated.

KIWANIS SERVICE APPEALS TO MEN ANXIOUS TO HELP

By Ernest L. Lucas KIWANIS is not a Luncheon Club. It is a Service Club, and we define Service as the rent one pays for the space he occupies.

A man wrapped up in himself makes a small package and the same can truthfully be said of a community. Regardless of the intellectual ability no one community has a monopoly of intelligence. Kiwanis is a clearing house for ideas worth while and there ideas are passed on to others to be put to practical use.

We believe every man in business in a community owes that community a public spirited obligation. It is our observation that most normal men want to pay their debts. We are confident that through Kiwanis this debt may be paid with the least expenditure of time and money, because Kiwanis knows what to do and how to do it, each member making a contribution, the aggregate making a big program.

Necessity is the mother of invention. Kiwanis is in existence, because other worthy organizations were not equal to the task. When there is a duty to perform and there isn't an agency with which to do the task, men get their heads together and work out one. Kiwanis is that instrument.

Most men have civic pride. They are interested in their home town, their community. Chambers of commerce are very necessary and essential to the progress of a city and they function most successfully when functioning along civic lines. Kiwanis is not a civic organization in the same sense, yet it is a co-worker with the chamber of commerce because to any civic project that will be helpful and uplifting Kiwanis lends its cooperative support. Men like to make friends: who endure in adversity as well as in success. When one is successful, he numbers his friends by the legion, but when reverse comes he wonders if he has any friends. Sometimes we seek friendships in fraternal organizations, and we generally find a group of high-class men making up the membership of all fraternal orders. Kiwanis is not a fraternal organization. It has no oath, no obligation, no passwords, no ritual. We believe in throwing formality in the discard, jerking off the veneer, just being yourself, for, when a man appears in the role of his natural self, he always appears to the best advantage and men learn to know and like him for what he really is, not for what he pretends to be. Kiwanis, therefore, affords a man an opportunity to build friendships that border the fraternal, and that endure. No matter whether you are a churchman or not, by nature you are religious. You know the old world is not an accident, that back if it there must be some Supreme Power, Greater, God—call Him what you may. Kiwanis is not a religious organization and does not supplant or take the place of the church. Kiwanis will not save a man's soul, but Kiwanis will make a man's soul worth saving. And we have a creed, "the practical application of the Golden Rule in all human relationships," and our major objectives, "Work Among Under-Privileged Children," and others equally important.

Kiwanis, then, is a combination of the practical elements in the civic, fraternal and religious organizations embodied in one and thinking unselfishly and charitably towards all. Kiwanis is a community building, character building organization that chases the gloom and supplants the shadows with sunshine.

from SHELL Motor Oil Only 1-3 to 1-5 as much carbon. And all of it as fluffy as the soot pictured here. Compression blows it out with the exhaust gases.

Look at this! Here's hard carbon formed in a motor by one of the most expensive oils. Notice that it is hard carbon. The kind that sticks—and causes trouble.

Watch out for HARD CARBON

many expensive oils form it—

MANY oils are expensive to buy because of the cost of shipping them out here. But why pay extra for oils that actually are heavy carbon-formers!

Not only do many "luxury oils" deposit thicker layers of carbon; it's a hard, abrasive kind of carbon. That leads to valve trouble. Makes engines sluggish. Causes the "ping" you hear when the motor strains.

For less money you can buy an oil that leaves positively no hard carbon. The little carbon that SHELL MOTOR OIL does form is soft, soot-like. Most of it is blown out with the exhaust gases.

Shell Oil Company guarantees that this unusual SHELL MOTOR OIL, at 25¢ per quart, will lubricate your engine as thoroughly as any oil you can buy. Why continue to pay a premium?
