Twenty-Seventh Year

Here are some figures you should find interesting:

Twenty-two per cent of all the cars on Oregon's state highways, on the average, are cars from other atates.

That is to say, motorists from OUTSIDE Oregon pay one-fifth of Oregon's gasoline tax. Putting another way, they maintain one-fifth of our roads.

CARS visiting Oregon from other states travel, on the average, 434,000 miles daily over the state highways of Oregon. That is more miles than are traveled by outside cars in any other Western state. For California the corresponding

Well, it must be because there is more in Oregon to be seen, thus keeping visiting motorists trav

THESE figures are quoted by Ray Conway, in a recent issue of the Oregon Motorist. They are taken from traffic aurveys made by the bureau of public roads.
