In Holly Film

Clarence Darrow, famous criminal lawyer, recently in the limelight in the movie "The Mystery of Life," which is being shown at the Holly theater tonight only. Much more than a million years, in fact, for it goes back to the beginning of our planet, and scientists haven't yet decided how many years old the earth is. Two hundred millions, or thereabouts, is the latest calculation.

Many strange and weird mysteries of life are shown in the picture. It can be described as a discussion of the origin of life, a discussion of Darrow's theory by Darrow himself. Clarence S. Darrow appears in the picture and attempts to explain the greatest of all mysteries—life.

In presenting "The Mystery of Life" the Holly management makes no effort to spread propaganda for or against the theory as advanced by Clarence Darrow, and strongly recommends that children do not see the picture. "The Mystery of Life" will show tonight only, and then tomorrow comes the glittering story of night life on the great white way, "Night World," with Lew Ayres and Mae Clarke.

Dramatic Comedy

Is Craterian Hit

By Jack Retlaw, Manager, Fox Craterian.

If you are depressed—feeling at all blue—worried and despondent—just visit the Fox Craterian theater either today or tomorrow, and you are sure to snap out of it. In fact, there is danger of your almost laughing yourself into hysterics when you see that uproariously funny dramatic comedy, "This is the Night."

Four of scendrom's outstanding stars appear in this riotous film. Beautiful Lily Damita and funny Thelma Todd are in feminine stags, while that duo of "mirthquake" artists, Charlie Ruggles and Roland Young, keep the audience gasping with laughter.

"This is the Night" is a story of matrimonial mixups and a wife-meaning Thelma Todd—who seems to manage to always be losing her clothes at the most inopportune moments—whether it is on the street, or elsewhere.

In addition, on the screen, that roaring comedy scream, "High Hat and Low Brows," will also be presented.

SMITH DISAGREES WITH HOOVER VIEW ON RELIEF PLANS

NEW YORK, May 25.—Alfred E. Smith disagrees with President Hoover on two points in the problem of federal aid to public works to relieve unemployment.

Commenting yesterday on a recent letter, the President wrote the American Society of Civil Engineers, the former governor said:

"I am entirely unable to recognize the validity of the distinction which the President points out between productive and non-productive or revenue and non-revenue producing work.

"He mentions a bridge and a tunnel to be financed by tolls as being a worthy project and a highway as being an unworthy one. Obviously he cannot mean this. I do not know of a bridge or tunnel project of any magnitude which does not depend on connecting and approach highways for its success."

Similarly, he said, he was unable to "follow the President's distinction between the issuance of federal bonds and the use of federal credit."

Smith said that "from the point of view of unsetting the bond market there is no difference between issuing federal bonds and using federal credit."

PARK VISITATION IN EARLY CLIMB

CRATER LAKE NATIONAL PARK, Ore.—(Sp)—Attendance so far this season at Crater Lake park is rapidly approaching the 15,000 mark, travel during the past few weeks having been encouraged by favorable weather and early opening of park roads despite snow depth in excess of average years. Visitors have already arrived from quite a number of distant states and in large volume from the neighboring states of Washington and California to view the world famed scenic wonder in its setting of white, with snow still over 100 feet deep in the rim area.

Several large parties have visited the lake in the past two weeks, including students from the forestry schools of the University of Washington, Oregon State college and University of Montana, the park having been made one of the important stops in the respective itineraries. A large delegation of members of the Business and Professional Women's club, in annual convention last week at Klamath Falls near Crater Lake, were park visitors last Sunday. The party included Miss Emily Kneubuhl, New York City, national secretary.
