

METHODISTS URGE ECONOMIC REFORM RELIEF MEASURES

Sharp Denunciation Present Industrial Order As Unchristian Is Voiced at General Conference

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 25.—(AP)—In a series of vigorous pronouncements, the Methodist general conference in the closing hour of its sessions late Wednesday, called for immediate federal relief for the unemployed, a general reorganization of the economic system and a federal commission to study remedies for the present deflated conditions.

With the pronouncements went a sharp denunciation of the present industrial order as "un-Christian, unethical and anti-social because it is largely based on the profit motive, which is a direct appeal to selfishness."

Opposition Overridden.

The scattered opposition that fought some of the declarations as too "sweeping" and "theoretical," was overridden in the conference haste to dispose of these matters before adjournment. After ratification of the committee reports the conference adjourned.

Stock speculation, short selling and pool manipulation also were condemned in the last-minute resolutions approved, the conference urging federal and state legislation to end these practices by restricting the use of credit to "legitimate business" only.

The conference named a committee of three bishops to carry its plea for immediate federal unemployment relief directly to the president and congress, to save "millions from the dizzy edge of starvation."

Flea Not Specific.

The resolution did not specify any particular kind of relief, but said that with private charity and state relief funds practically exhausted and no improvement yet visible in the unemployment situation it was "imperative" that the national government advance aid.

For the reorganization of the economic system which the report stated "has broken down," the conference advocated the appointment of a commission by congress to study the social, economic and industrial situation, and to suggest remedies which can be embodied in constitutional amendments, if necessary, and in other statutes.

Would Drop Race Barriers.

The declaration entitled "Social Problems" covered a wide range of subjects. It urged the end of race discrimination and the eradication of lynch law. It memorialized both federal and local government to work for the elimination of the stigma, and championed the right of unemployed workers to make known their condition at official hearings.

The rights of free speech, free assembly and free press were reaffirmed in this declaration; and legislation governing the production and distribution of moving pictures was asked to "safeguard morals of growing children."

The social problems report contained a short paragraph on the subject of radio, urging federal and state governments to repress broadcasting of "degrading nature" and to restrict within reasonable limits the commercialization of all communication by air.

TEXAS BOURBONS SPLIT ON LIQUOR

HOUSTON, Tex., May 26.—(AP)—Texas Democrats favor John N. Garner for president, but differ on prohibition.

After assuring the Texas, now speaker of the house, 46 votes in the Democratic national convention, the state convention last night declared for submission of the question of repeal of the 18th amendment to the states. It was a disorderly ending of an otherwise harmonious Garner meeting.

Garner leaders had urged the convention to avoid the subject of prohibition, a declaration on which they regarded as inimical to the Texan's chances for the presidential nomination.

The convention did not name as a delegate United States Senator Morris Sheppard, co-author of the 18th amendment.

Immediate payment of the soldiers' bonus was endorsed.

FOREST RANGERS POST ROAD SIGNS

When the forest rangers complete the posting of road and trail signs in June, there will be 4632 additional metal information and direction signs along the trails in the 23 national forests of Oregon and Washington.

These signs are put up for the guidance of the traveler in these mountainous areas. For those who use the roads within the national forests the rangers will have put up some 8700 additional distance and direction signs to make travel easier and safer.

Sign posting is only one of the annual duties of the forest rangers. The posting of legible signs makes available and usable the many miles of new roads and trails constructed for the use of travelers and campers, and for the administration of the national forests, says the U. S. forest service.
