

CANDIDATE LISTS CHICKEN'S DEATH ON EXPENSE BILL

J. F. Wortman of Phoenix, Democratic candidate for county judge at the late primary Saturday filed a statement of his campaign expenses. On the list is an item of $1 for the accidental killing of a farmer's chicken, which scouted in front of the Wortman auto. Otherwise, the candidate expended $14.60. This is more than the chicken would have brought at any meat market.

Other expense accounts, filed yesterday were: James Stewart, democratic nominee for justice of peace, Medford district, $29.70; Louis M. Sweet, Sams Valley, who ran for commissioner on the Mester policies, and finished third, $78.65; Fred L. Coiby, Republican justice candidate, Medford district, $25; Sheriff Ralph G. Jennings, Democratic ticket loser, $16.78; and Glenn O. Taylor, justice of peace, $52.90.

Carl Y. Tengwald and T. W. Miles, Republican precinct committeemen filed statements setting forth that they spent nothing to win.

Late Saturday filings were: A. J. Hanby, Republican candidate school superintendent, $57; W. H. Canon, Democratic candidate, justice of peace, Medford district, $410; Gordon Schermerhorn, Democratic sheriff, $140.70; C. B. Lamkin, Republican, county judge, $78.45; Della Stevens Meyer, Republican, county clerk, $52.80; and J. H. Puller, Democratic, county judge, $75.75.

RECENT WEEK QUIET ALONG CRIME FRONT

The past week has been the quietest in many months in local crime circles with the minimum number of arrests for violations of all kinds, even including license and traffic infractions. The state police even report there are fewer "one-eyed" autos running around the highways and byways of night.

Rum traffic over the Skikyou is also at low tide. The rural areas also report a decline in gasoline thefts from the machinery tanks. The spell of good behavior is characterized and suspected as the lull before an epidemic.

TAX MEASURE IN PRESIDENT'S HAND MONDAY IS HOPE

House Roars 'Aye!' Quick action came in the house after three hours and a half of debate. A roar of "ayes" on Crisp's motion to adopt overwhelmed the scattered shouts of "no," the latter mostly from the democratic side of the chamber. Before anyone could make a demand for a roll call vote Crisp moved the house adjourn and then it was too late. Cheers went up as the members filed from the chamber.

Representative Snell of New York, the republican leader, concluded the debate from his side with a warning that he would "hate to think what will happen in this country if this house failed today to do its duty."

"During the six months congress has been considering this bill values of all sorts have depreciated four times more than the people will be asked to pay through this measure."

"While we are not at war, the suffering of the people is more acute than it was during the war," Crisp told his colleagues. "It is the only reason I am willing to vote for this bill. Many of its provisions are obnoxious to me and I would not support them in peace time, but we face a crisis and the bill must pass. The budget must be balanced. Every man knows that the welfare of the country and the welfare of every man, woman and child depends upon a balanced budget, for the government cannot continue paying out more than it takes in."

must go forward. If we fail to improve our methods we must live on anyway and continue to be a burden and a weight upon business, and a barrier to economic recovery. There never has been a time since the formation of the first colonies on the eastern shore of this land, that leadership has been such a crying need. In the rural districts we read our daily papers and magazines of the doings in congress, and cry out against the lack of moral instincts in too many of our senators and congressmen. Men who will not stand four-square upon any issue when an election is pending, but we too often fail to rise upon our hind legs and demand leadership in our local government, where it is just as important as it is in Washington, D. C. What we need in office today is more than a hired man.

Reorganized leaders of the groups said today it had been determined to keep all communists from joining with them. A. F. Taylor of Portland, Ore., and several of his followers voted earlier in the day to abstain from participation in a demonstration scheduled for Wednesday on the grounds that some of the leaders would be communists.
