All that was needed it seems, to end the Depression in these parts, was a 36-horse merry-go-round and a bale or two of Indian blankets.

San Francisco sports a Public Defender, and in the light of recent events, the public sure needs a defender. This particular Public Defender, by the name of Egan, is sought for murder, and is alleged to have inspired two ex-convicts to run over an old lady, in her own garage, so the Public Defender could appropriate the $15,000 estate. One of the ex-convicts confessed, and the other is likely to follow suit. The moral of all this is sad: The Public Defender was a constant battler for righteousness and kindred virtues, and was hell for Justice.

TO THE GRADUATES

Young Ladies and Young Men:

Youn are about to walk down the gangplank and onto the stormy sea of life, and join the millions earnestly endeavoring to connect three times per day with pancakes and other nutritious foodstuffs. Between now and Friday night, advice will be shot at you, wholesale and retail, and it is good advice not to take any of this 11th hour advice too seriously. As a matter of more advice, it is a good policy not to take anything too serious. The country is overloaded right now with guys who take themselves too serious. If there had not been so much serious chasing of the dollar, from 1919 to 1929, the world would not be messed up as it is today.

You will be told Friday night, that "life is a battle." If you are not, it will be the first time in history that a graduating class was not told that "life is a battle." It is really more like a wrestling match, and occasionally gets as rough as a country dance. This does not mean you will have to spend the best part of your days wearing a pair of boxing gloves. If you are successful, you will be called an "Ishmaelite." Don't shoot! The jury can't hear the court room audience snickering while they are deliberating on your fate. The writer knows a dozen fellows who are detained in state prison, and you have no idea how disgusted they are. They are all innocent, they all say.

The main thing is to keep a stiff upper lip. This does not mean for the males to raise a C. Chaplin mustache, or for the fair ones to paint them a redder red than an Eagle Point barn. There is absolutely no excuse for this type of mustache. There is, however, some excuse for brightening up the smackers. Rouge, when used temperately, is colorful. Things are not very rosy right now, so don't get mad and commit suicide, or join a revolt against the American form of government. A very optimistic man predicted the other day, the current Depression would only last seven (7) more years. Don't be a home-grown Bolshevikt.

One of the common failings of a young and tender graduate is to get fooled. If you get fooled, do so with all the dignity at your command, as it will make you appear more foolish than you really are.

In conclusion, don't take any advice, not even the advice herein given. It was a cinch you wouldn't. Nobody else does.

The "Show Down"

ON MAY 26th the Mail Tribune called for a show down on the criminal charges being continually made against various law enforcement officials of Jackson county. We declared the place to determine the truth or falsity of these charges, was NOT in the newspapers, NOT on the political stump, but BEFORE A GRAND JURY AS PROVIDED BY LAW. We pointed out that only slightly less guilty than those who commit crimes, are those who have evidence of crimes and refuse to present that evidence, and we called upon all citizens who have such evidence to present same before the grand jury so that the TRUTH might be finally determined.

• • • • •

THIS action was taken. The deliberations of the grand jury were extended a week, so that every citizen having charges to make against any public official or private citizen might be heard. There is no reason to doubt that every clue, every rumor, every scintilla of evidence to support such charges were carefully analyzed, in a spirit of calm deliberation and perfect fairness, to all concerned.

At the conclusion of this long and painstaking inquiry, the grand jury handed down its report as follows:

> "We have investigated charges of miscarriages of justice in the office of District Attorney, and OTHER COUNTY OFFICES, and we find these charges unsupported by any incriminating evidence."

Could anything be clearer than that? The grand jury not only goes on record, declaring these charges baseless, it declares there was not even evidence justifying SUSPICION of wrong doing; for it is the duty of a grand jury not to determine the guilt or innocence of an accused person, but to determine whether or not there is sufficient evidence even to justify the expense of a formal trial!

Moreover this grand jury represented a perfect cross section of the county, three citizens of Medford, two from Ashland, one from Butte Falls and one from Brownsboro. The report was signed by all of them but one, as follows:

Josiah Hibbard (foreman) Butte Falls.
Irving Porter, Ashland.
Anne E. Carley, Medford.
W. M. Barber, Ashland.
Leo B. Williams, Medford.
Reed Charley, Brownsboro.

Behind this verdict, is the honor, the integrity and the good faith of these well known citizens of Jackson county.

• • • • •

NOW we maintain in all fairness, should not this verdict, handed down by a jury drawn by lot, subject to the rules and regulations provided by law, end this ear-splitting hulabaloo, about crimes in high places, and corruption in low ones, not only for the present, but for a long time to come?

This mud slinging brigade has had its day in court. It has been given the opportunity it pretended to desire so long. It asked for a "clean cut show down." The show down has been granted.

There is the verdict in black and white, so even those who run may read.

THERE IS NO INCRIMINATING EVIDENCE AGAINST THE LAW OFFICERS OF JACKSON COUNTY!

• • • • •

IS IT too much to ask that those who have bandied about these CRIMINAL charges not only during this political campaign, but off and on for nearly 20 years, come forward, like men and good sports, and admit that they have not had and have not now evidence to support those charges, before any grand jury or in any court of law.

We feel—and we believe all right thinking people in Jackson county feel,—that this should be done NOW, or else they should publicly and EXPLICITLY explain, why they refuse to abide by the verdict of this grand jury, which accepted the challenge of a show down, and rendered its verdict as required by law!

Brookhart Gets "His"

THE defeat of Senator Brookhart of Iowa, should cheer those who sometimes fear "you CAN fool all the people all the time."

Senator Brookhart was a typical demagogue. He maintained how dearly he loved the poor common people, and how heartily he hated the predatory rich.

Yet during the campaign it was divulged that when HE was concerned the lure of wealth had rather a strong appeal. When it came to grafting on Uncle Sam by putting all his family and relations on the payroll, the Iowa senator was there with bells on. Between sessions he increased his income by barn-storming methods which his opponents did not like.

• • • • •

As far as we know there was no evidence of wrong doing. But there was plenty of evidence that at shooting meets and on Chautauqua circuits, the redoubtable Smith, showed no indifference to feathering his own nest.

So the embattled farmers of Iowa decided that the senator's alleged hatred of the rich, was all a lot of hooey. They decided that his love for the poor, resembled the affection of a hungry elephant for a bale of hay.

Whereupon they consigned Brother Brookhart to private life and nominated in his place a radio broadcasting MILLIONAIRE!

Which is the fate all demagogues deserve, and which sooner or later (too often later) they inevitably meet.

COLLEGE FACULTY NOT TAKING PART IN MERGER TALK

CORVALLIS, Ore., June 8.—(AP)—Without commenting on the merits of the proposed physical consolidation of the University of Oregon and Oregon State college on the college campus, Dr. W. J. Kerr, president of the college, told the chamber of commerce luncheon meeting here neither he nor the college nor, so far as he knew, any member of the college staff have had anything to do with the movement.

Dr. Kerr said he was prompted to make this statement because of inuendos put out by interested parties trying to hook the measure up with the college. Dr. Kerr did not express his opinion of the proposed measure.

"Both myself and the college staff" he said, "have been too busy minding our own business and business of the state and the operations of the college as defined by the board of higher education to meddle in that matter or any other matter outside of our own particular field."

PORTLAND, Ore., June 8.—(AP)—Loup Kilgore, Grant county mountaineer who was arrested recently by state and federal prohibition officers on moonshining charges, entered a plea of not guilty in federal court here Monday and will go to trial on Thureday, July 7. Bail has been set at $1500.

Mr. Rockefeller's Change.
Boaring Gently.
Skeleton at Dinner.

Copyright King Features Synd., Inc.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has never in his life drunk anything containing alcohol. The same is true of his father and his grandfather. Distinguished gentlemen that occasionally dine with either Rockefeller can testify that orange juice, mixed with water, and other fruit juices, flow like wine, at the festive board. But wine does not flow.

Mr. Rockefeller and his father believed, as formerly did many other sincere men, that prohibition would stop drunkenness and prevent the use of whiskey. And they generously gave hundreds of thousands to the temperance cause.

They discover, after an experiment of many years, that prohibition is an absolute failure, that instead of stopping the use of whiskey, it has increased that use, introducing viler kinds of whiskey, while creating, through bootlegging and associated lawlessness, such a crime wave as no civilized country had ever seen.

Unlike some others, earnest in their advocacy of prohibition, Mr. Rockefeller and his father do not refuse to admit the facts, or to admit that their hopes are disappointed.

On behalf of himself and his father, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., urges repeal of prohibition upon both political parties, recommending the suggestion made by Dr. Butler, of Columbia university.

This declaration by the Rockefellers, father and son, proves their moral courage, for it is not pleasant to admit a mistake, and it may prove a decisive factor in a matter most important to the welfare of the United States.

Carlos Davila, provisional president of Chile, representing the socialist-communist, latest successful uprising, says Chile probably will recognize soviet Russia, but will not establish a South American imitation of that government.

You remember that in Midsummer Night's Dream, the gentleman who was to play the part of the lion said that, if desired, he could roar as gently as any sucking dove.

Perhaps this South American bolshevism will develop the same mild quality. President Davila guarantees that bank accounts and cash belonging to foreigners, will not be "expropriated."

The University of London gave a dinner in honor of Jeremy Bentham, who worked for humanity, and a strange wish of the great Bentham was carried out, namely that "my skeleton be put together in such a manner that the whole figure may be seated in the chair usually occupied by me, when living, in the attitude in which I was sitting when engaged in thought."

At the dinner in his honor, Bentham's skeleton, dressed in clothes that he wore 100 years ago, with an artificial head, representing his features, as in real life, to avoid the gruesome effect of the skull, sat with the guests at dinner.

To some of us that seems a strange idea. But others, that share man's intense hatred of being wiped out and forgotten, can understand how old Bentham felt.

Anything, however little, is better than oblivion. It probably comforts Gautama to know that a tooth supposed to have been his, is carried every year in pious procession on the back of an elephant, and it pleased Mohammed to know that millions of his followers would rather own one hair from his beard than a 50-carat diamond.

Jenkins' Comment

SILLY people, wholly lacking in courage, believe that the present depression marks the end of all the good times the world has seen.

"Never again," they croak dismally when the inevitable return of happiness and well-being are mentioned by those who have vision and optimism.

Acceeding to their minds the deluge has come.

A FARMER from the Middle West who can remember the depression of the nineties, said the other day to this writer:

"For three years the price of corn on the farm never went above eight cents per bushel. For about the same length of time, five cents a dozen was the best we could get for eggs, and butter sold at the stores—or rather was traded in—at from five to ten cents per pound."

Yet the country came out of the depression of the nineties, and since that time we have seen at least three distinct periods of great prosperity, each exceeding anything ever known before.

FOLLOWING this period of depression, we shall see OTHER periods of great prosperity, each exceeding anything known before.

Only fools and cowards doubt that.

Personal Health Service

Signed letters pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease diagnosis or treatment, will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Address Dr. William Brady in care of The Mail Tribune.

IN ONE EAR AND OUT THE OTHER.

Sometimes I wonder if it is any use trying to teach the average wiseacre layman how to keep well.

Here is the reason:

My dear Dr. Brady:

I read an article by you to the effect that we should stop catering to the whims of neurasthenics and stop pampering and coddling them.

I am unfortunately a victim of nerves . . . in my thirtieth year and can only look forward to a trail of misery . . . I believe I am the most nervous miserable person living . . . etc., etc.

Yours respectfully,

The correspondent describes in typical detail a lot of symptoms which any if us might trump up and fret about of we cared to concentrate our minds upon OURSELVES.

But what discourages me in a letter like this is the obvious insusceptibility of people who choose to call themselves "neurasthenic" to enlightenment. Either they do not understand the plainest language, such as I used in the article this correspondent quotes, or they foresee a harder existence for themselves if such an attitude becomes popular and with that prospect they become indignant and wish to have me punished or censured for my utter lack of sympathy and all that sort of thing.

Notice how this correspondent seeks to divert suspicion to his nerves. It is all his bad nerves, you must acknowledge, and never by any chance let on you suspect he may be just naturally a selfish, dishonest person demanding the indulgence of everybody else in order that he may get by without shouldering his share of responsibility for anything.

These grown-up "neurotics" or "neurasthenics" or "bundles of nerves," as they incessantly call themselves, are just pampered, humored, coddled, spoiled, nasty-dispositioned children, and everything has been made soft for them in childhood that they refuse to grow out of it and assume the independence of grown men and women. That's what the alibi of "nerves" is. If we are to give sympathy to anybody we should give it to the self-sacrificing sisters, the kind-hearted brothers, the indulgent parents, the faithful children who put up with the selfishness and ill-nature of these "nervous wrecks."

The nerve of this neurasthenic writing to me for help and deliberately quoting the gist of my teaching as tho to show me how contemptible he thinks my ideas on the subject are!

The way to neurasthania is always the same—duck, dodge, evade, pretend, make believe, play the little snob, try to make people think you are better than the common run of folk, put on airs, in short be everything but honest with yourself and with your fellows.

Notice how these big crooks of high life invariably suffer with a "complete nervous breakdown" when they realize the game is up? They're as genuinely victims of bad nerves as any little weasel is who trumps up his nerves as an alibi when he is caught sucking eggs that do not belong to him.

Don't tell me you have bad nerves, you hypocrite. I've heard that one before.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Old Practical Joke.

You sent me your instructions for taking an iodin ration. I got the iodin at the drug store. It was labelled Poison. Did they sell me the wrong kind? (Mrs. W. H.)

Answer—No, they don't carry the joke as far as that. The quaint custom of putting a poison label on iodin is funny in view of the fact that druggists sell all sorts of real poisons without compunction or label. A lot of simpleminded persons have used iodin in a kind of suicide gesture, but a bit of excitement and scandal is the usual result. As a poison iodin is a dismal failure. But the druggists will have their little joke.

The Roaches Are Back.

Would be thankful if you would print in your columns your remedy to exterminate roaches. We are greatly annoyed by these pests. (Mrs. W. L.)

Answer—No, it is too poisonous. Send stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for the instructions for ridding the premises of cockroaches.

T. N. T. Headache.

In my opinion you are right in your contention that high explosives are not absorbed thru the skin . . . We used T. N. T., protol and other explosives many times a day, handling the stuff barehanded like brown sugar. The few times I ever got a headache from blasting were when I went back too soon after a blast to prepare another charge in the same place. I believe one has to inhale the fumes or gas after the explosive has burned, to get any systemic effects. (W. D. R.)

Answer—Thank you. I think you are right. The unbroken skin never absorbs anything, and no one, not even Professor Khalenberg, has proved that it can or does.

Wants a Clean-up

To the Editor:

I for one would like to see this old town cleaned up and made a decent place where decent people could live and have some pride in their surroundings. Federal officers come in and do their duty, which is unpleasant and often dangerous, in running down the criminals, but what encouragement have they when their work brings no good results and criminals go free?

Why should a woman who commits a crime to go free just because she happens to be a woman? I believe a woman should be punished equally with a man when she is as great, or probably a greater, transgressor than he. Women of a certain class are a dangerous element in any community, a very demoralizing influence for the young people of the community, and should be punished in proportion to their crime. Oh what avail are our laws when they are not enforced and become a farce?

Girl Sets Record For Fast Reading As Turkish Censor

ISTANBUL—(AP)—Francis Bacon, who several centuries ago opined that "reading maketh a full man," might have been stumped by the case of Meliha Hanim, a young woman of Istanbul.

She has been government censor of publications here since Mustapha Kemal's alphabet reform made reading something else than a laboriously slow process.

In seven months she perused all the 5000 newspapers, books and magazines issued in this city within that period. That figures about 25 publications a day.

BONUS SEEKERS FACING HUNGER AFTER TONIGHT

plot to start a riot failed to materialized.

But police were ready for action today. The Workers Ex-Service Men's league, beaten in attempts to gain mastery in the "bonus army," laid tentative plans for a parade, but a permit was denied. Vice President Curtis and Speaker Garner denied them access to the capitol grounds. It was not known whether they would go ahead and try to march anyway.

Flags Mark Parade

Sick faces, medals pinned to greasy overalls, grimy overseas caps, uniforms ragged and patched marked the parade last night. Only the flags, the stars and stripes, looked new.

Brushing up dimly remembered training of war days, the veterans formed platoons in the shadow of Washington monument under command of George Alman, Oregon lumberjack, and marched silently up Pennsylvania avenue. The route did not pass the White House.

The government faced a dilemma. If further sustenance is provided, District of Columbia officials expected to see the army increase hugely and stay indefinitely.

If the "army" stays and is not fed, they fear hunger may drive some of the men to disorder.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—(AP)—Police kept constant touch today with federal authorities as the numbers of the veterans here seeking the bonus payment continued to grow.

There were reports, apparently well founded but unconfirmed by officials that army posts in the vicinity of Washington had taken precautionary protective moves in view of the mounting numbers of veterans in the city. Police estimated that nearly 10,000 would be in the capital by the end of the week.

Officers attached to Bolling field, the army airport adjacent to one of the veterans encampments, were asked not to leave their reservation after noon today. Their wives were advised not to leave the post unescorted.

Cancel Demonstrations

The inhospitable reception they received at the hands of police and capitol building officials when they applied for permission to parade there, today caused the leaders of the communist organization, the Workers Ex-Service league, to cancel their demonstration for today. Vice President Curtis and Senator Garner directed that they be given no permit to parade on capitol grounds Metropolitan police had granted permission for the radicals to parade in the city, but changed their minds after the Curtis-Garner action.

Few Communists

The communists organization, claiming a membership of 2000 among the veterans now in the city, were estimated by police to have an actual membership of some 250 out of nearly 8000 veterans in the encampments. Several of the agitators were arrested and taken to station houses yesterday by the veterans themselves. Police advised them to leave the city and some were known to have left.

The league now plans to go to the capitol Friday and attempt to present petitions to the vice-president and speaker. Since they have no parade permit, their numbers necessarily will be very limited.

Meanwhile, Representative Rainey, the democratic leader, told newspapermen he would keep the house in session for a vote Monday on whether to take up legislation for immediate payment of the soldiers' bonus.

Talks To Parents

GRADUAL WEANING

By Alice Judson Peale

Another who at last had come to realize that her 10-year-old son's attachment to her had blocked effectively his normal development decided to separate him from her.

Her thought was to send him to a boarding school where he would be entirely among boys and men teachers.

Then she thought he would be forced to interest himself in his studies and sports and that loneliness would compel him to seek normal friendships.

What she did not take into account was the fact that so great an adjustment might be more than her boy was capable of making all at once.

The years during which he had been permitted to continue an infantile relationship to her might well have made him helpless. They had deprived him of much of the learning that takes place from the age of 2 on, the learning to give and take between age equals.

To be plunged suddenly into a world from which every familiar satisfaction was removed might prove too much. The boy might not rise to the challenge. Instead he might retire further into effortless reading, day dreaming, eating and sleeping.

The later a child is weaned from infantile satisfactions the more carefully this must be done.

Perhaps the first step would be to separate the boy from his mother only during the greater part of the day, giving him as a substitute a woman teacher who would be like his mother—with a difference.

She would tend to turn his attention into wholesome channels of activity and help him gradually to make contacts with other children. Increasingly, too, the time spent with a man teacher or camp leader would be helpful, providing the boy with a proper self ideal as a stimulus toward achievement.
