

8 DEPARTMENTS MERGED IN ONE COLLEGE COURSE

New School of Literature, Language And Arts Created By Board of Higher Education For Oregon.

SALEM, Ore., June 17.—(AP)—The new school of literature, language and arts created some time ago by the state board of education will consolidate eight former departments at Eugene and Corvallis, it was announced today by the state board here.

The new school will be made up of five departments as follows: English, including public speaking and dramatics; Latin; Greek; German and romance languages, including French, Italian, Spanish and Portuguese. The former departments were the three of the former school of basic arts and sciences at Corvallis and the five departments of the old college of literature, science and arts at Eugene.

Located at Eugene Headquarters, major work and the granting of degrees for the newly organized school will be located on the Eugene campus under the direction of Dr. C. V. Boyer, former head of the English department of the university, who was elected to the deanship by action of the board.

Dr. Boyer has so organized the work that the first two years will be practically identical on both campuses in English, public speaking, German, French and Spanish. Courses in Latin, Greek and Portuguese will be offered only at the university. This arrangement will make it possible for a student wishing to specialize in any department of the school to take the first two years on either campus, transferring to Eugene for the final two years and graduation.

It also provides a wealth of service on both campuses in composition, literature, the foreign languages, public speaking and play production for those enrolled in other schools.

Specialization Possible Opportunity for specialization within the various fields embraced by the school has been enlarged through the complete program of courses arranged by Dr. Boyer under the new setup.

Four-year curricula leading to a bachelor of arts degree have been provided in the various fields of specialization with the advanced master and doctor degrees awarded on completion of specified graduate work.

Teacher training in the fields of English, language and literature, German, Latin, Greek and the romance languages is confined to the Eugene campus in accordance with the plan laid down by the curricular committee of the board.

Smaller Staff Needed Although the range of courses will be as complete as before for lower division students at both schools, and also for those who specialize at Eugene, the new plan for the school has made possible operation with a smaller staff at both institutions, it was announced. Approximately 10 per cent in funds in addition to the salary reductions will be saved under the new plan, it is reported.

The only transfer in the faculty under the new arrangement will be Assistant Professor W. A. Dahlberg of the college of public speaking department, who goes to Eugene in similar work in the English department.

Following is the personnel of the school faculty on the two campuses:

VALLEY LEAGUE TO PLAN SECOND HALF SCHEDULE

Representatives of the Rogue Valley Baseball league will meet tonight in Brown's pool room for consideration of the second half schedule and a possible replacement for the Medford Eagles' team. The lodgements have been on the losing end throughout the first half of the split season and are reported by Louis Puhl, league secretary, as contemplating either complete reorganization or dropping out of the league.
First half honors go to Grants Pass with six victories and one defeat (by Talent), while Talent has won four and lost two; Jacksonville is credited with three wins and an equal number of defeats, and the Eagles have failed to chalk up a victory.
Hill and Crescent City, Cal., both have teams which they would like to enter in the second half race of the valley league provided the Eagles give up the effort. Gold Hill also is reported by Puhl as eager to take over the franchise.
Games Sunday as scheduled include Jacksonville at Grants Pass and Talent at Medford.

From Sacramento Bee—Ous Kortsteen of the business department of the Sacramento Bee and Joe Anderson of the engraving department of the same newspaper, were visitors in Medford yesterday, and stopped at the job department of the Mail Tribune to visit Al Hagen. They left here en route for Vancouver, B. C. via the Columbia river highway. They will return south on the Dalles-California highway and visit Crater Lake.
