Communications

To the Editor: I wish to heartily commend V. H. Armstrong of Lodi, Calif. for his "communication" in yesterday's Mail Tribune: I do not believe a clearer, terser short summary of our two leading parties could be uttered, in other words he "hits the nail square on the head."

I wish to add a few comments on his statement. "The marvel of the present day is the fact that the average voter raises no objection, such docility and gullibility is almost unbelievable."

I find that practically all the voters are objecting, and very few are gullible but the other word, docility, is a square on the jaw. The trouble with us that we have become a nation of spineless jellyfish with a lot of us having a streak of yellow a yard wide for a back-bone; we try to handle these things with kid gloves, a few might go a little further and use padded boxing gloves, but what we need to use is a good set of brass knuckles.

We are using what the father uses when little Willie has been naughty and he says, "now, Willie, you must be a good boy," when what he should do is take Willie out in the woodshed and apply a good hickory switch. To sum the whole matter up, let us get together and organize a "third party" with the object of wading into our government machinery with "brass knuckles" tactics. I believe the time is ripe for something, and there are a lot of us whose politics are "independent" and are ready to try anything that might have promise. I am ready to join with Mr. Armstrong in a Third Party movement. GEO. IVERSON.

Robinson at Holly

"Two Seconds" is showing at the Holly theatre tonight. Many things can happen in two seconds—many things have happened in two seconds. In the picture, "Two Seconds," we find a story of what transpired in the mind of John Allen in two seconds—two blinding, flashing seconds that ripped open his life and stripped his soul of all honor. "Two Seconds" has almost a dual story. One that of John Allen and his buddy and the other the story of what transpired in the mind of John Allen. In "Two Seconds," Edward G. Robinson is just an ordinary human and portrays the part of John Allen, a steel worker on a construction crew. His buddy, played by Preston Foster, who, by the way, played the same part in the stage version and was sent to Hollywood expressly to make this picture, is one of Robinson's great loves and the two work together very nicely.

"Two Seconds" is a very unique story, showing what happens in the mind of this man during an interval of only two seconds.

How Cheap Is Cheap?

Cheapness is one thing and good value is another. Bread can be manufactured very cheaply by skimping on all materials but flour and water. A sure sign that a bread is manufactured with this idea in mind is to observe its keeping qualities. If it dries out over night it is an infallible sign that the bread is made cheaply.

Cheap bread thus made does not carry the food value and nourishment so necessary to growing children.

This is why cheap bread is not good value.

Fluhrer's Breads are not cheap breads because they are built up to a standard and not down to a price and carry all the nourishment and food value conducive to rugged health.

Fluhrer's Breads are good value.

As a result Fluhrer's Breads are Southern Oregon's and Northern California's largest selling breads.
