

PRICE CUTTING IN EGG TRADE HURTS VALUES, IS CLAIM

PORTLAND, Ore., June 24.—(AP)—Increasing strength in the egg trade here is held back to some extent by the continued underselling of the established price list by so-called independent producers selling direct to retail stores that make a specialty of price cutting and selling at cost or less.

There was no further change in the selling price of eggs for the day while buying values have in general been up, or even slightly better, than the increase in sales.

Receipts of butter from points outside of Portland have been extremely heavy during the last few days while liberal production has been shown in centralizing plants. Here and there the market appears easy and is reflected.

Very quiet trading situation is reflected in the market for live chickens. Prices are still down in the cellar and especially so for lightweight hens and broilers.

Some country killed turkeys are still arriving, the latest the trade here has ever known. Good quality is finding a fair call, but again at the extreme all-time low mark.

All through the market for country killed meats steady prices and trade conditions are reflected. There was no change in values on veal, hogs and lambs generally for the day.

First young berries, a cross between the loganberries and the blackberry, have been received. The initial shipment consisted of two and one-half crates. They were sold at $1 a half crate.

Almost general dullness is reflected in the market for berries. Strawberries are moving slowly and at various prices; loganberries are dragging with increased supplies while raspberries are lower and only a slight movement.

Prices continue to seek a lower level in the tomato stock. This applies to outdoor stock from the south as well as the local hot-house offerings.

LOCAL CHAMBER VOICES PROTEST LAKE OMISSION

Our highways are modern, and that our accommodations for the tourist are ample?

"Perhaps your artist who drew your map did not realize that the states of Oregon, Washington and Idaho have highways. If he did, he failed to make any notation on his map. The Pacific highway, which is the longest paved highway in the world, stretching from Agua Caliente in southern California, to Vancouver, B. C., is paved throughout its entire length, and has along its route many of the west's outstanding scenic attractions. That the Redwood highway, reaching from San Francisco, and connecting with the Oregon Coast highway, offers some of the finest ocean vistas to be found anywhere in the world. And that the Old Oregon trail is one of the nation's most historic highways. None of these is found on your map. The Columbia River highway and the Mount Hood Loop highway, with its sparkling waterfalls, snow-capped mountains and beautiful valleys, provides one of the country's most enjoyable and scenic drives. That the highways in Oregon and northern California pass through vast areas of virgin fir and pine timber found nowhere else in the world, and that the Redwood highway is famous for its marvelous vistas of nature's oldest living things—the California redwoods.

"We wish you, in all fairness to a great section of the United States, which is so attractive to the tourist and vacation seeker, that if your writer did know some of the things outlined herein, why in the name of all that is right, did he not make some mention of them in his otherwise fine article?"

"Why were not Crater Lake, Mount Shasta, Mount Hood, the Pacific highway, the Old Oregon Trail, the Coast highway and other scenic attractions in the Pacific northwest, noted in your article and on your map? "We hope, sir, that you will not feel that we are being unduly critical of the article mentioned, but we do wish that in the not-too-distant future you would devote a similar article to the Pacific northwest, the greatest recreational area left in the United States, and that in all justice you would endeavor to make amends for the omission in the article in your July issue. We are certain that your many thousands of readers would be deeply interested in such a writeup, and that the response you would receive would more than repay you for the cost and effort of compiling such a story.

"Very sincerely yours, "MEDFORD CHAMBER OF COMMERCE."

ALLEGED FORGER TO FACE GRAND JURORS

Alvin Myles, 25, charged with passing a spurious check on E. C. Faber, Central Point merchant, slated to appear this morning for pleading, changed his mind and requested that his case be heard by the grand jury. Myles withdrew a plea direct on a waiver of grand jury indictment.

FEDERAL HEALTH WORKER PRAISES JACKSON COUNTY

Complimenting Jackson county upon the wisdom used in adoption of a program of economy, which does not force elimination of health service, the most important to humanity, Dr. Estella Ford Warner, surgeon of the United States Health Service, announced the completion of her inspection of the local health unit today. She will leave tonight for Washington, D. C., where she now makes her headquarters.

There are two definite programs now being carried out in the United States, she explained in a telephone conversation with The Mail Tribune. One involves just a slashing of budgets; the other, the weighing of values in adoption of economies. Maintenance of a health department, she stated, does not represent economy within the fiscal year, but will be realized in the future well-being of the country.

"Jackson county is one which is looking to the future," she declared. "and will be well repaid for her foresight. Don't do anything which will permit the Jackson county health unit to go down. A sacrifice of health is always expensive." Counties, which have decreased their health budgets, have always found it necessary to increase other budgets in later years to care for the resulting problems. Dr. Warner showed in emphasizing the increased need for health service in times of depression.

An infant mortality rate a little lower than that of the United States as a whole, has been accomplished here, she continued, commending Jackson county for the splendid work carried on in this particular department. She also complimented the Jackson County Public Health association upon important progress in control and cure of tuberculosis.

In addition to her tour of the health unit yesterday, Dr. Warner visited the Memorial Hospital, now under construction in the new county courthouse, and described it a beautiful and appropriate tribute to the late Judge Sparrow.

Turning from her professional talk to comment upon her stay here this week as guest of the Misses Carlton at their home on the Old Stage road, Dr. Warner concluded, "I have never seen the valley more beautiful." The telephone clicked and she was off to catch the train which will carry her to the national capital.

AUTO LICENSE BUYING SLOWS

The sheriff's office and the banks today reported a sharp decline in the number of applications for auto licenses. Applications were being received in a fairly brisk manner until agitation was started for a moratorium, though the governor had announced that such action would be demoralizing to the state's financial program, as the money normally received from license fees was needed for indebtedness payments.

It is expected that the governor will issue a proclamation soon fully covering his reasons for declining to order a period of grace. The drop here is attributed to the hope that the chief executive may change his mind.

ASSOCIATED OIL RETURNS TO USE OF NEWSPAPERS

"After an absence of approximately 12 months from the field of newspaper advertising, the Associated Oil company has determined that the use of newspaper copy is essential in getting over an effective sales message to the public."

This statement was made by Harold R. Deal, advertising manager of the Associated Oil company, in announcing the opening today of an extensive newspaper advertising campaign which will blanket the coast with announcement of an entirely new aero-type gasoline for automobiles.

Deal pointed out that the company has been in an excellent position during the past year to form its conclusions that in any well-rounded advertising campaign, newspapers are an element vital to the effectiveness and efficient results of the advertising message. Associated has been one of the largest users of radio time on the Pacific coast, and has also been a continuous advertiser in the outdoor field.

WOULD BAR SMITH FROM CONVENTION UNLESS REPENTS

"As a member of the Tennessee delegation and as a democrat who supported Governor Smith in 1928 because he was the party nominee, I shall advocate the adoption of a resolution in the convention denying Governor Smith the privileges of the floor and declaring him ineligible to be voted for as a candidate of the party unless and until he assures the delegates he will abide by the action of the convention and support its nominee.

"It is high time to deal vigorously with a man who seeks to thwart the will of the majority of the party and who obviously intends to wreck it unless he can coerce the party into accepting his will with reference to candidate and platform."
