

COUNTY PROBING ANTECEDENTS OF STARVED WOMAN

Rula Phillips, 35, also known as Rena Johnson, transient woman, whose tale of starvation and inhumanity on the part of her traveling companion, stirred the sympathy of the state two weeks ago, was yesterday taken to the state hospital at Salem, for care and treatment.

This county will make an effort to establish the legal residence of the woman, if any, and then inaugurate extradition proceedings for removal to her state. It is thought that this is Montana, but the unfortunate has toured the past year, over Idaho, Nevada, northern California, and this state.

Steps have been taken for either an aunt living in this state, or a grandmother residing in Arkansas, to care for Betty, the nine year old daughter of the woman, instead of becoming a county charge.

The woman first came into the news two weeks ago, when she was found near Klamath Falls, apparently famished and in a pitiable condition physically. She claimed that her husband had forced her to leave their auto, with her child, while he sped away. Last Saturday, she fled from Klamath county farm, and was detained in Ashland. Investigation brought admitted discrepancies, in the story. It was learned that she had told the same story at Ely, Nevada three weeks ago, and had been provided with funds for her return to Klamath Falls, Oregon.

YAKIMA WARNS FRUIT WORKERS In order to give local residents preference, a "local resident identification card" has been issued by the unemployment committee of the Yakima, Wash., chamber of commerce, in order to eliminate the thousands of transient workers of the west who flock into the Yakima valley annually for work in the fruit, hop and potato crops.

This information, with a copy of the card, was received by the Mail Tribune today from L. F. Bishop, chairman of the committee. In his letter Mr. Bishop stated that residents of Medford who plan to make the journey north for work might save themselves expense and embarrassment by not making the trip.

An agreement, reached jointly by the Yakima county commissioners, Yakima city commissioners, Yakima chamber of commerce and U. S. employment service, states that only Yakima residents will be given employment.

Shrine Dance Large Affair

A large and festive event of last evening was the Shrine dance at the Fair Grounds pavilion. Music by Val Valente's 12-piece orchestra of San Francisco, which will appear there again tonight.

Dancing was preceded by several dinner parties for which members of the younger set were hostesses. Members of the Hillah temple party were hosts for the evening and music for dancing was interspersed with several novel numbers, which received much applause.

Booths had been arranged for the serving of ices and the informal summer atmosphere prevailed. Or-gandy frocks in pastel colors and many fancied creations, worn by the dancers added beauty to the occasion.

Mrs. Ernest Beer, a bride of the past month was the inspiration for a miscellaneous shower given at the home of Mrs. James Daily at 803 E. 9th street, Wednesday evening, June 29.

Communications

Another Rogers Booster. To the Editor: I am inclosing a clipping from this morning's Examiner, quoting The Mail Tribune. More power to Oregon! I have been trying since January to get an attentive ear among the newspapers. The people want Will Rogers for president, but naturally big interests don't.

I made a registration of voters for Los Angeles county the first of the year in my own precinct. It is a district of substantial, intelligent, thinking people, home owners, taxpayers, people who believe in sound government by men of ability, nothing radical or hysterical about these people, yet 85 per cent of the Republicans I called upon VOLUNTEERED their desire to have Will Rogers for president. Three out of a hundred said they would support him, and the rest liked the idea when it was presented to them. I have asked dozens of people since now they felt and almost without exception they endorse him. The most common recommendation given was the fact that he is not a politician, not committed to any interest or machine. They are sick of steam roller methods. They declared a belief in his honesty, intelligence and strength of character, said he would be able to win the people's confidence, predicted a landslide if his name could be submitted and many other interesting and complimentary things.

I am hoping and praying the Oregon delegation will start the ball rolling that is to gather snow as time goes on.

Yours most heartily, EDITH LATHAM JONES, 1421 Livonia Ave., Los Angeles.

Tribune Is Commended.

To the Editor: I am a Democrat, but have read your paper for 20 years or more.

In my opinion, the best thing you have done, through your paper, during that 20 years, has been to mention the name of Will Rogers for president. Perhaps you have done many creditable things, but this is the best.

I have lived in southern California and know that his reputation is sound, substantial, irreproachable. The man has a humane streak such as few public men possess.

We have most forcibly felt the need of a leader who is strong enough to take us out of this political Egypt. I believe that Rogers can come as near doing that thing as any man living today. He sure will pull the votes, if nominated.

Talks To Parents

The Doll Baby A little 3-year old girl suddenly developed a very evident envy of little boys. Her face clouded and she grew sulky whenever they joined her in play.

"Mother," she said one day, "I think you were very mean not to make me a boy. I'd much rather be a boy. Can't you change me now?"

This feeling of inferiority, of having been cheated, is so common in little girls at a certain stage of development that it may be called universal. It springs, of course, from a feeling that boys are definitely superior to girls physically.

The mother in this instance, well aware of the feelings which lay below the little girl's speech and indeed her entire attitude toward boys, answered in this fashion: "I can't make you into a boy, but I will give you a present which is something that boys never have and can't play with properly."

The next day she brought home to the child a baby doll. "See," she said, "Here is a baby for you. It belongs to you and you are its mother. That is something a little boy can never be. And when you grow up you will be a real mother with a real baby. Won't that be fine?"

The little girl's feeling of inferiority toward boys is not a joke. Developed and emphasized by an accumulation of experiences which in themselves seem unimportant, it may form a disturbing element in the personality of the grown woman.

A timely understanding of what is going forward in the little girl's inner world and an honest effort to help her meet her difficulty then and there should do much to prevent later trouble.

DEMOCRATS SEE SUN RISE AGAIN

CHICAGO, July 1.—(AP)—The sunlight streaming in the eastern windows of Chicago stadium this morning upon the balloting Democratic national convention repeated for the party an experience of twenty years ago.

At Baltimore in 1912, the Democrats last sat out the night. That was the season in which Champ Clark attained a majority of the votes only to lose in the end to Woodrow Wilson.

In 1924's celebrated Madison Square party there were late night and early morning sessions galore, but never did the sun rise on the delegates at work.
