

TITLED LADY WINS ACTION FOR LIBEL ON SCANDAL YARN

Article Claiming Lady Louis Mountbatten Associated With Negro Brings Court Action and Damages

LONDON, July 8.—(AP)—Lady Louis Mountbatten won a libel action today against the Odhams Press, Ltd., publisher of The People, a Sunday newspaper, which accused her inferentially of scandalous association with a negro. The defendants apologized and paid all costs.

Lady Mountbatten was said to have refused to accept heavy damages which the paper was willing to pay. She and her husband hurried back to England unexpectedly yesterday from a long vacation in Malta where they entertained former King Alfonso XIII of Spain.

Article Read in Court.

During the brief proceedings this morning the plaintiff's attorney informed the court that although it was unusual he wanted to read into the record the libelous article on which the action was based.

Then he read the following clipping from the newspaper:

"Famous hostess exiled. Society shaken by terrible scandal. 'I am able to reveal today the sequel to a scandal which has shaken society to its very depths. It concerns one of the leading hostesses in the country, a woman highly connected and immensely rich. Her associations with a colored man became so marked that they were the talk of the west end. Then one day the couple were caught in compromising circumstances. Told to Clear Out. The sequel is that the society woman has been given a hint to clear out of England for a couple of years to let the affair blow over, and the hint comes from a quarter which cannot be ignored. The lord chief justice impounded a copy of the publication containing the libel, after pointing out that some libels are crimes. Lord Louis sat with Lady Mountbatten during the proceedings. He is a second cousin of King George. Notwithstanding the settlement of the case, Lady Mountbatten and her husband both entered the witness box, with the consent of the court, to deny explicitly the allegations in the newspaper article. Truth Denied. 'This article refers to a colored man,' said her attorney. 'Is there one syllable of truth in the allegation it makes?' 'There is not a single word of truth in it,' replied Lady Mountbatten. 'Never in the whole course of my life have I met the man referred to.' 'Your friends,' said the attorney, 'have named the colored man supposed to be referred to.' 'Yes,' said the witness, 'but I never have even met the man. I've had nothing to do with him in any shape or form. It's a preposterous story, the whole thing.'

Yen to Write of Broadway Puts Texas Girl on Stage

By WILLIAM GAINES.
NEW YORK — (AP)—Katherine Mauk came to New York from San Angelo, Texas, last November, with a desire to succeed as an author. She wanted to know New York life and write about it. She had no illusion that publishers were waiting to grab up her manuscripts, so she looked in the "want ad" columns for a job. She found one, as a secretary in an orphanage.

Broadway and the people of the show world fascinated her. Their was the life she wanted to write about. Soon it occurred to Miss Mauk that the best way to learn about any sort of life is to live it.

She came here equipped with beauty, brown eyes and golden hair, as well as her knowledge of stenography. Carrying on at the orphanage, she got an engagement to appear in the floor show at a restaurant. The hours did not conflict. She was able to see Broadway from the inside.

Broadway also saw Miss Mauk, and recognized the charm of the 22-year-old Texas girl (maybe in all fairness it should be recorded that she was born at Clovis, N. M.).

Florenz Ziegfeld heard about her. Now she is in his revival of "Show Boat," and her beauty stands in an ensemble that includes such glorified girls as Marcelle Edwards, Coja Eric and Elsie Bossi. The experience at the orphanage is something of the past.

"But," says Miss Mauk, who also says she is Scotch-Irish, "I learned a lot about life there, too."

The stage is thrilling, she finds. She can sing and dance and she won't turn down opportunities to get ahead in musical productions. But whatever she does, wherever she goes, on the stage or off, Miss Mauk will be writing about life as she lives it.

An author will her fondest dream come true.

Because she wanted to learn and write about Broadway life, Katherine Mauk left San Angelo, Tex., for New York. Now she's in a musical show getting her information first hand. She likes the stage, but writing comes first with her.

HOPE TO RESCUE LOST SEARCHER FOR 'ATLANTIS'

Expedition Will Penetrate Brazilian Interior to Probe Theories of Colonel Fawcett's Disappearance

By F. B. Colton,
(Associated Press Science Writer.)
WASHINGTON — (AP)—The mystery of Colonel P. H. Fawcett, lost since 1925 in the Brazilian interior, where he was seeking a clue to the "lost Atlantis," has lured another expedition to search for him.

Its leaders, Robert Churchward, an Englishman, and Capt. John G. Holman of Brazil, will try to learn which of the theories about Fawcett's fate is true. Among the theories are: That Fawcett found the "lost civilization" he was seeking and remained to study it.

That he found life in the interior so much pleasanter than civilization that he decided to stay there.

That he was captured and held prisoner by hostile Indians.

That he was slain outright by Indians, or died of hardship.

Trappers' Tales Inspires Hunt.

The new expedition, now on its way to Brazil, was inspired partly by the report of a Swiss trapper, Stephan Rattin, that he saw Fawcett alive and well last October, between the Tapajos and Madeira rivers, far in the Brazilian interior. Rattin said Fawcett was a captive of Indians.

Hunting for Fawcett in the huge hinterland of Brazil is much like hunting for a needle in a haystack. He disappeared seven years ago in the enormous state of Mato Grosso, which had an area of 570,138 square miles, almost as large as France, Germany and Spain combined.

Although part of the state is settled by cattle raisers, much of it remained wild and unexplored, inhabited only by primitive Indians. The country is not a jungle, but a fairly open grassland, with few trees except along the rivers.

Traced Romantic Legends.

Colonel Fawcett, who is said to have been considerable of a mystic, became interested in local legends of rich gold mines, walled cities in which lived races of men who had lost contact with the outside world, fair-skinned Indians ruled by women, and bright lights that shone at night from the windows of old ruins.

Other explorers describe him as seeing in these legends the answer to the riddle of the "lost Atlantis." Fawcett himself wrote just before he disappeared, "I am confident we shall find the key to much lost history."

Various expeditions have explored the area where Fawcett disappeared. Some have returned with the conviction he is dead, others that he is still alive.

PASSION PLAY AT BAPTIST CHURCH

The "Passion Play" is veritably a treasured heritage of the ages to all Christian people, whose faith is anchored in the resurrection of the "Son of Man." The versions given periodically at Oberammergau and Freiburg are visited by thousands of people from all parts of the world.

The public of Medford is to be given the rare opportunity of seeing the complete story of the life, death and resurrection of Jesus, in motion pictures, with recorded musical program, at the Baptist church to-night at 8 p. m.

Accompanying the film, as featured singer, will be Laurence A. Lambert, noted baritone, who will render several appropriate sacred numbers and readings. This great program of film and music has been attracting "turn-away" audiences in many of the largest churches in southern California, and a very large audience is anticipated here.

The public is cordially invited to attend. A silver collection will be taken to defray expenses.

YOUNG PEOPLE MEET AT HOWARD SCHOOL

A service specially for young people will be held in the Howard school house this evening at eight o'clock.

A good song service, including special, the young people taking part in the program, and an address by Rev. J. M. Johnson of the Central Point Federated churches on the subject "What Shall I Do With My Life?" will make up the evening's program. All are welcome.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN'S AUTO WORTH $700

LOS ANGELES, July 8.—(P)—The county assessor has answered one of Hollywood's great speculations, namely: Who is filmdom's richest celebrity?

The assessment roll revealed Thursday he is Charlie Chaplin.

Chaplin possesses taxable stocks and bonds valued at $7,696,370, cash and solvent credits totaling $295,600, but his automobile is worth but $770.

There were also a variety of other figuring secrets about Hollywood's finances which came out of the assessor's office, such as:

That Oreta Garbo owns taxable stocks and bonds valued at $122,010 and an automobile listed at $220.

That Gloria Swanson has a harp worth $350.

That Douglas Fairbanks is runner-up to Chaplin, possessing taxable stocks and bonds worth $699,000.

That Harold Lloyd has taxable stocks and bonds worth $174,450, automobiles at $700; furniture, $102,840; real estate and improvements, $341,250.
