

Grand Hotel

Serial of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer film "Grand Hotel" starring Greta Garbo, John Barrymore, Joan Crawford, Wallace Beery and Lionel Barrymore.

FINAL INSTALLMENT
Life is exciting in the "Grand Hotel." Grusinskaya, the great dancer, world-weary with her constant flight to hold success, has fled from her recital. In her hotel room, she finds the Baron who has stolen in to filch her pearls. He hides. She attempts suicide and he saves her. He begs her to let him stay and she melts into his embrace. Their kisses glow, on each other's lips, Kringlein, the aged clerk, is drunk in his room, drunk with life. The Doctor is asleep, bored. Preysing dreams of Flaemmchen's soft skin and enticing limbs. And in her narrow cot, Flaemmchen, the lithe stenographer dreams of luxury.

In the morning the Baron discovered that he really loved Grusinskaya. He confessed his theft of

In the early morning, the Baron's body was taken away, and Preysing was taken away by the police. Flaemmchen consented to go to Paris with Kringlein, and they checked out that morning.
Grusinskaya was ready to leave. She was worried. The Baron had not yet made his appearance. And upon his appearance her happiness depended. The train time was approaching. Suzzette, her maid offered to call his room for her.
"Wait a minute. I've got to ask myself."
"What's the use of asking, Grusinskaya? He will be there," her manager said.
"The troupe, the scenery, everything—all on board, waiting. You have a rehearsal in Vienna tomorrow morning. Come, Madam," he added.
Grusinskaya went to the desk herself. She spoke to Senf, the clerk.
"Have you seen Baron von Gaigern?"
"The Baron is not here, Madam."
"He is gone?"
"Yes, Madam."
"Come, Lisaveta, he will be there."

"You are a good man, Kringlein. I will go with you to Paris," she breathed.

"You are a good man, Kringlein. I will go with you to Paris," she breathed. She felt a new lease on life after this night in the arms of her new lover. She will go on from now to greater triumphs. Tomorrow morning, Vienna. He must come with her. She offers him money. He says: "I love you madly. I want to be good to you. Madly good. I could never take money."

But he must have money for the journey, and even more money to buy off his confederates who had instigated the theft of the pearls. Kringlein, whom the Baron had befriended, called on him on his way past his door, and the Baron went in to find the poor clerk suffering and the doctor with him. Kringlein spoke of the money he had... and the Baron saw his chance and stole the sick man's wallet. But the clerk discovered his loss, and was so crushed, pity was born in the Baron's heart, and he returned the wallet. When the clerk learned that he needed money, he offered some to the Baron, and they played cards that afternoon. But Kringlein won—and the Baron lost. That night he ransacked Preysing's room while Preysing was with Flaemmchen—but he was caught and in his rage, Preysing killed him with the heavy telephone stand. Flaemmchen, who had been planning to go to England with Preysing, ran to Kringlein with the news, and the clerk, glad to hurt his former employer, called the police.

Tremenzo," she said, and she was thinking of her lover.
"The Doctor came to the hotel desk. He saw Kringlein go out of the door."
"Was that Mr. Kringlein leaving?" he asked.
"Yes, Doctor. He's leaving for Paris."

"And the young lady?"
"And the young lady, Doctor."
"Any message for me?"
"No, Doctor."
"Any letters—telegrams?"
"No, Doctor."
"Anybody ask for me?"
"Nobody, Doctor. Is the Doctor leaving us. Or does the Doctor wish to engage the room for today, again?"
"I shall remain for the time being."

As the Doctor stood there, a honey-moon couple arrived and were given the Baron's former room.
"Same thing every day," the Doctor grumbled. "They come and go—the Grand Hotel—nothing ever happens."

SEEK TO HURRY CRESCENT CASE

Alden H. Hughes, through his attorneys, Kelly and Kelly, today filed a motion in circuit court to quash the order for a 60 days extension of time granted in the case of the Crescent City Improvement company, C. B. Day, and the American Surety company, for filing transcript and bill of exceptions, in an appeal to the supreme court, instituted by the surety company. Hughes last spring was awarded an $800 verdict against the defendants.

The motion was based on the grounds that no due and legal notice has been given of the filing of the notice of appeal.
Hughes, and 24 other residents of Jackson county, bought Crescent City lots in 1929-1928, in sums ranging from $25 to $1000, alleging that they were induced to make the investments by false representation, relative to the future prospects and value of the land.

CITY BOOKLET OUT FOR DISTRIBUTION

The new Medford booklet, which has been in preparation for some time, has been completed and is now ready for distribution from the chamber of commerce.
Stressing the city's location in the Shasta-Cascade wonderland, sportsman's paradise, the booklet carries many interesting illustrations of the scenic wonders of this region and the recreational opportunities offered.
The books are available to all persons wishing to invite friends and relatives into this region for vacations, especially those planning to attend the Olympic games.

BORAH IN PLEA FOR EXPANDING CURRENCY ISSUE

WASHINGTON, July 8.—(AP)—Urging legislation to expand the currency Senator Borah (R., Idaho) said in the senate today, "It is estimated this deflation has cost us from $150,000,000 to $200,000,000 compared to the estimated cost of something like $35,000,000,000 of the world war to the nation."
Borah spoke in support of the Glass currency expansion measure, which he offered as a substitute for the Bingham beer rider to the home loan bank bill.

"In my judgment," he said, "this is a very conservative measure. By no means can it be assailed as inflation in the objectionable sense in which that word is used."
The measure is the Glass substitute for the Goldborough dollar stabilization bill passed by the house, and would permit issuance of currency against about $1,000,000,000 of government bonds not now eligible.
"While this is a step in the right direction," he said, "my own view is we will have to go much farther before we have passed through the present period of depression."

Table Rock

TABLE ROCK, July 8.—(Sp.)—Miss Libby Hamilton left last week for Dunsmuir, Cal., where she is visiting her sister, Mrs. Perry Cooper. Cecil Messer returned home Sunday from Los Angeles, where he spent several weeks with relatives.
Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Morris, Laurence Hull and Miss Cleo Kiegg of Medford spent several days celebrating the Fourth at Lake of the Woods. Claude and Glenn Wilson, James Seabrooke and Misses Jessie Seabrooke and Betty Culy spent the holiday at Fish Lake.

Those who attended the Sunday school picnic on the river back of the Fraley ranch report an enjoyable time.
Mr. and Mrs. Moore Hamilton of Medford visited relatives here Monday evening.
Mr. and Mrs. Ray Wyatt of Central Point vacationed with relatives here July 4th.
Mr. and Mrs. John Neston and daughters accompanied Mrs. Mel Atkins and son on a picnic on middle fork of the Rogue river July 4th.
Mr. and Mrs. Frank Marsh of Los Angeles arrived Sunday to spend a few weeks with Mrs. Marsh's mother, Mrs. M. D. Lyliard. Mrs. Rosa, a cousin of Mrs. Lyliard's, from Los Angeles, is also her guest.
Mr. and Mrs. John McBride and Miss Mildred Gregory returned Monday from Portland, where Mr. McBride went for medical observation. Steve and John Wilson of Sams Valley are binding grain for farmers here this week.

According to reports there will be a lighter second cutting of alfalfa than usual in this district this year.
Thousands of yellow butterflies swarming over alfalfa fields indicate that some fields will soon be infested with army worms.

The Sage children are all out again and good spirits after a lengthy siege of measles.

Several good catches of fish from the river have been reported here during the past week.
Mr. Bennett has finished delivering the next year's supply of wood for the local school.
Warm weather is fast ripening the grain, drying out the ground where irrigation is not practiced, making

Wurtz Sisters Boast Perfect School Record

Roberta Wurtz, 13, and her sister, Norma Jean Wurtz, 10, have perfect school attendance records, according to the county school superintendent's office. Roberta has been neither absent or tardy for seven years, and Norma Jean for four years. They live in the Climax school district and encounter snow in winter to reach the school house and coming and going is none too good in other seasons of the year. Besides attendance, the two little girls have excellent marks in their studies.

Neighbors producing butterfat say that a gallon of average cream brings about 40 cents at the creameries, but a gallon of ice cream, wholesale, is worth $1.25, which they claim is too great a margin between producer and consumer.

PHILATELIST USED MAIL TO DEFRAUD

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 8.—(AP)—A fraud order, alleging use of the mails to defraud, has been issued by Postmaster-General Brown against Raymond T. Goode, of Salem, Ore.
According to the findings of Horace J. Donnelly, solicitor of the post-office department, Goode ordered and secured stamps of considerable value from dealers in England and elsewhere and is alleged to have failed to return them or to pay for them.
The evidence disclosed that he has endeavored to secure for examination stamp collections valued as high as $5000.

Red-Heads Crowd Craterian Office On Prize Offer

With a bevy of red-headed women visiting the Fox Craterian theater this morning in answer to an ad in the classified section of The Mail Tribune, Don Geddes, Fox manager, was experiencing some difficulty in completing arrangements for the showing next week of "Red Headed Woman," which opens at the theater Sunday.

By a system to be announced later, the Medford woman with the reddest hair, is to receive a lovely solid gold watch from the theater. The time piece is being purchased from Larry Schade, local jeweler. Mr. Geddes announced, "Red Headed

REPUBLICAN LEADERS LAY CAMPAIGN PLANS

NEW YORK, July 8.—(AP)—Everett Sanders, chairman of the Republican national committee, arrived today from Chicago, accompanied by J. R. Nutt, national committee treasurer, and immediately began a series of conferences with New York Republican leaders.
Sanders expects to leave tonight or tomorrow morning for Washington and will return to Chicago early next week.
