"Unashamed" Star Leads Quiet Life

"An actress needs a less hectic life than other women."
So declares Helen Twelvetrees, ex-otic charmer of the screen, who in real life leads one of the quietest of existences. In fact, she doesn't do many things that the average woman in other walks of life does, just because she's an actress.

"Work before the camera," explains the star of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Unashamed," now playing at the Fox Craterian theatre, "is very exciting, and to be successful one has to put everything into it."
"This requires a constant toll of nervous energy. That's why the actress should really do little else."
Miss Twelvetrees plays a vivid emotional role in "Unashamed," a drama written by Bayard Veiler, author of "Within the Law," and directed by Harry Beaumont, Robert Young, Lewis Stone, Jean O'Sullivan, Robert Warwick, Gertrude Michael, Wilfred North, Tommy Jackson and Louise Beaver complete the supporting cast.

PEAR TESTING TO START AUGUST 1 FOR PICKING HINT

The pear testing and picking date determination service will be available to all pear growers beginning August 1, states L. P. Wilcox, county agent.

The pressure test method of determining degrees of maturity of pears was first worked out by the Oregon Experiment Station and is still considered the most reliable method of telling when the fruit should be picked, in order to obtain the best quality.
Select ten to twelve specimens of healthy, normal fruits from several different trees, so that the sample will represent an average for the entire crop. This should be done in the early morning while the fruit is cool, bring the sample in for testing as soon after picking as possible.
The service is free and all growers can well afford to make use of this means of determining their approximate picking date.

MULKEY BIRTHDAY REVEALS HISTORY

In yesterday's birthday feature column of the Portland Oregonian appeared the name and photograph of a former Medford resident, remembered by many friends—B. F. Mulkey. Of him David W. Hazen, author of the column has said many things, including a life's history, which reviews his activities in southern Oregon, as follows:
"In 1897 he became a teacher in the normal school at Monmouth and continued in that position five years. In the fall of 1902 he went to Ashland as president of the state normal school there. He was president of the school five years, when he retired to practice law. While county clerk at Dallas, Mr. Mulkey studied law. He served in the state senate from 1914 to 1916. He continued reading legal tomes while a normal teacher, so when he left the Ashland normal school in 1907 he went to Medford to begin the practice of his new profession.

"In 1908 he was made district attorney of Jackson county. In 1910 he decided Portland offered a larger field, so to Portland he came. Here he has since been an active member of the bar. Mr. Mulkey has also been a tireless worker in Sunday school affairs, being a member of the First Christian church. He has likewise taken an active part in the work of the Sons of the American Revolution and is remarkably well posted on the history of revolutionary times. Mr. Mulkey's children are three daughters and two-sons as many sons."
