

COAST FOOTBALL SCHEDULE GIVEN FINAL APPROVAL

Athletes May Appear in Films if Names Not Mentioned and Salary Not in Excess of $10 Per Diem

PASADENA, Cal., July 28.—(AP)—Two grid players of Oregon and Oregon State were reinstated by the Pacific Coast conference. The reinstated athletes were John Biscoe, star Oregon State quarterback, and Ted Giesecke, backfield player of Oregon. They were barred from competition for competing in soccer games last winter, but the faculty representatives declared that the violation of the conference code was only technical.

PASADENA, Cal., July 28.—(AP)—Athletes of the Pacific coast conference may appear in motion pictures as long as their names are not mentioned and their salaries are not in excess of the fixed sum of ten dollars per day, regularly paid to extras, faculty representatives of the members of the group decided today. Although the question of athletes' pictures and names used in commercial advertisements was tabled, it was understood that when the representatives do discuss this point, it will be decided to prohibit such pictures and names from appearing, with the penalty loss of amateur standing.

Will Hear Report. Col. D. L. Griffith, athletic commissioner of the big ten conference, was in attendance at the annual session of the Pacific organization. The representatives did not hear the reading of the report of Jonathan Butler, conference investigator. You are considered likely this report would be heard tomorrow, but will not be made public. Professor W. B. Owens of Stanford, chairman of the meeting, said the report would be of a "constructive nature."

Faculty approval was given the 1933 football schedule drawn up yesterday by graduate managers, including four inter-sectional games. Stanford plays Northwestern at Evanston, Ill., October 14; Utah plays Oregon at Eugene, November 4; Oregon State travels to New York to meet Fordham November 18 and Southern California clashes with Notre Dame at South Bend, Ind., November 25.

REED WINS ROUGH GO WITH BULLDOG

PORTLAND, Ore., July 28.—(AP)—Robin Reed defeated Bulldog Jackson two out of three falls here last night. The first fall went to Reed in 25 minutes, seven seconds, with a series of whip whistles. Jackson took the second in eight minutes, 25 seconds, with a hammerlock. Reed asked an additional five minutes, but Jackson refused. Both were throwing haymakers right and left in the final session when Reed rushed his opponent into the ropes. In some manner Jackson's neck got twisted between the ropes and hung outside the ring. After the referee and spectators freed him, Jackson staggered back into the ring, where Reed picked him up and slammed him for the fall.

Doc Nelson was so badly shaken from a body slam by Bo Campbell in the five-round preliminary, he was unable to continue. Joe Gardner won a fall from Bud Garney.

Eddie Egan's entertaining book, "Fighting for Fun," throws the light on one of the most unusual amateur athletic careers on record. The Colorado boy who went to war, to Yale, to Oxford and boxed his way around the world just for the sport of swapping left fists, seems to have enjoyed himself immensely. Yet he had a difficult time resisting the temptation to turn professional. Recurrently, thru the schoolboy stages of his career, he defends himself, but it took Gene Tunney's advice, apparently, to finally check a strong impulse to turn "pro."

"It's not worth it," Tunney told Egan, as the professional and amateur heavyweight champions meet in Colorado Springs. "You don't know what a champ has to put up with until you are one. It's a long road to the championship. I was years getting my chance. It takes lots of fights to get to the top and then it's a matter of luck."

"You wouldn't start at the bottom, it's true, but the bees are busier around the top of the honey jar. There are plenty ahead of you. Maybe you can lick 'em all, only remember, the better you are, the harder you'll find it to get matches with top-notchers. . . . You're ready to tackle law. It won't help your career a bit to be known as a former pug. People just don't associate brains and pugilism."

Years earlier, in Denver, Jack Dempsey hosted an exhibition with the youthful Egan, showed him some tricks of the game and advised: "Stick to college, kid. I wish I had your chance. The professional gets darn little money and lots of punches."

The future Rhodes scholar and Olympic champion might not have been so willing to accept this advice if either he or Dempsey had known the big money that was to be collected during boxing's later boom times. Egan nevertheless resisted offers from Tex Rickard as well as London promoters to turn "pro" after it was apparent he could very likely "clean up." If he has any lingering regrets now, he does not indicate them.

Against Olympic Boxing. It may interest the Olympic moguls to have Egan's viewpoint on the fistie sport's place on the international program.

"I have been to three Olympiads and seen all the events," he says. "It seems to me that the object of the games, good fellowship and sportsmanship between nations could be better achieved without the boxing events."

The decision of two inexperienced judges is often wrong—science, skill blows are often not appreciated by the judges if a favored national charges in continually like a maddened bull. I have seen biting in the clinches, knives drawn by spectators, and policemen using their clubs at the boxing matches when a decision seemed unfair."

As to the two great men of pugilism with whom he boxed and associated on friendly terms, Egan says: "In my opinion Jack Dempsey is the greatest fighter and Gene Tunney the greatest boxer in ring history. Of course, I did not see the old-time champions, but I think boxing has evolved upward just as every other sport has. Fighters today know more about training and scientific living than the earlier champions ever knew."

PROMOTER SAYS FANS DEMANDED REMATCH OF PAIR

Answering the plaint of Fritz Tolman, Rocky Mountain light-heavy title claimant, that he had been given the cold shoulder in efforts to secure a spot on Promoter Mack Lillard's August 3rd fistie card at the Armory here, Lillard declared today that he had hoped to use Tolman, but that a rematch of Lomax and McCarthy had been signed at the insistent demand of fans, following the unsatisfactory ending of their fight August 20. The Aberdeen Assassin, all but out, rushed over to McCarthy's corner at the opening of the fourth frame and laid the Pisco boy low with a pair of blows before the Irishman had put up his hands.

"The fans named their own ticket," said Lillard regarding next Wednesday's bout. "The rematch necessitated a guarantee of $350 for Lomax, probably the highest guarantee for a fighter here in many years. The judgment of the fans is being proved good, however, by the advance sale of tickets, and indications now point to a sell-out."

Lillard is giving a five per cent cut on the gross receipts to the American Legion drum corps, to aid in defraying expenses of attending the national convention in Portland in September. This is in addition to the usual five per cent which goes to the boxing commission for distribution among the city's charitable organizations.

Adding interest to the card, Lillard is negotiating for a four-round curtain-raiser between Del Campbell, Medford aspirant to fistie fame, and Roy Harris, Phoenix boy. Harris has been working at the open air training camp and Campbell has a home gymnasium where he has trained for a long period. There is no love lost between the youngsters, it is rumored, and they were so eager to fight that a winner-take-all agreement was their first thought. However, this plan has been abandoned and if the match goes through it will be on a 60-40 basis.

DISASTROUS TOUR PLUNGES TIGERS TO FIFTH PLACE

By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr.
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)
Consider the plight of the Detroit Tigers. After July 4, the traditional turning point of the season, the Tigers were in second place, a good distance behind the league-leading New York Yankees, and with a very slim margin over a couple of rivals, but still to all appearances the best team in the western section of the league. Today they are fifth, and Cleveland's Indians have usurped their place as the outstanding western club.

22 games in a disastrous road tour, and yesterday they took it on the chin twice as they opened their home stand against the Athletics, losing 13 to 8 and 4 to 0.

Cleveland held its virtual tie with the Athletics by taking a double bill from the league leaders, 2 to 1 and 12 to 10.
