Kirkpatrick Honor

Aunt on Birthday
A very pleasant surprise party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Kirkpatrick on Monday evening, complimenting Aunt Betty Kirkpatrick on the occasion of her birthday. The table was arranged on the lawn, bordered with flowers, just at sunset.

The birthday cake, baked by Mrs. Henry Currier for the dinner, was an attractive as well as tasty addition to the menu. Covers were arranged for Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Wooda, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Currier, Mrs. H. Elnhoff, Mrs. Susie Stewart, Mrs. Harriet E. Allen, J. Coggins and Mr. and Mrs. J. Kirkpatrick and the honor guest, Mrs. Allen. A birthday greeting, sponsored by Mrs. Allen, was read by Mrs. Currier before the birthday cake was cut by Aunt Betty. The greeting follows:

Birthday greetings, Aunt Betty, dear. You see we know your birthday here. Remember it? Of course we do; That's why we've come to dine with you.

We always wish you health and wealth. And birthdays by the score. So here we are to celebrate. And wish you many more. May your step be light, and your heart be gay.

As the years are rolling swiftly away. May birthdays come and birthdays go. But you, dear Betty, no older grow. For you are good and fine and sweet. So may all blessings be laid at your feet.

These wishes you'll find sincere and true. Because, dear Betty, we all love you.

PENTHOUSE FROCK LATEST FOR FALL IN FASHION SHOW

By RUTH COWAN (Associated Press Staff Writer)

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—(AP)—"Penthouse frocks." That's the latest in fall fashions.

These new dresses were so named because their designers envisaged creations of silk, satin, velvet and lace, dressy enough for a roof dwelling and yet warm enough to withstand a 20-story breeze on an outdoor terrace.

Numerous models of these were displayed today at the 54th semi-annual fashion mart of moderately priced merchandise attended by several hundred buyers, mainly from the smaller towns over the country.

These new fashions are sleeveless and closely related to the simple dinner dress, except that they are shorter. Each has its jacket, its characteristic mark.

The new formal gowns in this display were either fur or ostrich trim in the main. There were a few satins, but most of them were of heavy rough weave crepes. Jackets were seen, but capes predominated and are newer. Many of the latter fasten on the left side in an entirely new manner.

STRIKING CANNERS ARE SENT HOME

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 3.—(AP)—

Three hundred white men and 150 Filipino, disgruntled workers from Alaska salmon canneries, were landed here last night from the steamer North King, under supervision of policemen and members of the harbor patrol.

The men struck last May because of a 35 per cent reduction in wages, they said. Not only were they angry about the amount paid them, but they objected to the plan of paying on board and by check.

About 100 of the men, hired in Seattle when the strike developed, were taken home immediately by stages which had been sent to the pier to await the North King's arrival.

Indian Givers Swap Horses As Tribes Pay Annual Visits

PONCA CITY, Okla.—(AP)—

Gift horses come back to look their Indian owners in the mouth, now that the plains tribes are enjoying their outdoor seasons.

Tribal visits between tepee villagers end invariably with give-away feasts. The visitors go home laden with bolts of calico and blankets and leading gift horses, but when the hosts in turn become guests the same horses frequently are brought back to their former homes as presents.

The federal government long has attempted to discourage the gift custom, but it sticks among the plains Indians who move into the open either as families or tribes each summer. They believe Mother Earth provides many cures for human ailments and that man should live as close to her as possible.

BARNUM ENTERS BLANKET DENIAL WIFE'S CHARGES

"After this I ordered all from the house and went to my car and got an empty Lager and stood in the yard. I held the unloaded gun in my hand, and when Daley came up, I said: 'Pat, I want you to get off the place, and stay off.' Pat said: 'I will, and I won't come back.'"

Barnum denied he had made any threats. He admitted he had taken his wife's car because "I was afraid it would get mixed up in a liquor deal."

The witness denied in detail all the allegations of the plaintiff, but testified "she was the only one at the party not drunk." He also admitted that he had struck his wife, when she struck him while shaving.

At the conclusion of the hearing, Circuit Judge H. D. Norton will take the case under advisement, ere rendering an opinion.

"WOMEN CAN BE CHARMING AT ALMOST ANY AGE"

"Of course I am 39," says Frances Starr, famous stage and screen star. "Years matter so little nowadays if a woman knows how to guard complexion loveliness."

FLORIDA LASSIES HERE EN ROUTE TO OLYMPIC GAMES

Five young ladies, with a lot of freckles and sun tan which they brought all the way from Florida, stopped in Medford yesterday afternoon to register their car at the out-of-state bureau on South Riverside, en route to the Olympic games in Los Angeles.

The five were dressed in traveling togs (without stockings). Each has one pair of stockings. Sue Maxwell of West Palm Beach said, but only wear them on extra special occasions or when they get in cold country.

They arrived here from Crater lake, having made the trip from Vancouver, B. C., via Portland and The Dalles-California highway. During the three weeks of their travel, the young women also visited Yellowstone national park and various resorts in Colorado.

Sue White is chauffeur for the tour, and with her sister Olga is from Pensacola. Nan Allan and Mary Allan are from Miami. The five girls attended the Florida State college at Tallahassee, of which school three are graduates. They plan to return to that city in time for Miss Olga and Miss Mary to enter the college for their senior work.

Hungry after their drive from Crater lake, three of the young ladies bought them some fresh, warm bread and some butter, which they placed in the leaves at the grocery store.

Miss Olga, the youngest, who enjoyed using the phrase "You bet," which she picked up in the west, bought a bag of peaches. The others said they would remain in Oregon until the fruit was all gone, so they would not have to turn it over to the California authorities when they crossed the line.

Miss Sue Maxwell, who graduated from the school of journalism at Florida state college, headed the quietest on a visit to the office of the Mail Tribune, where they looked over the plant.

From Medford they planned to motor to Crescent City, and continue south.

KANSAS VOTERS REMAIN DRY IN PRIMARY CHOICE

TOPEKA, Kan., Aug. 3.—(AP)—It's still dry Kansas after yesterday's primary — in which wet candidates sought the favor of voters for the first time in two decades.

While prohibition was not the major issue, taking a supporting role to the more lively questions of taxation and economy in government, it was clearly demonstrated that Kan-

PORTLAND BUFFALO FIGURE IN TRADING

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 3.—(AP)—More business cheer, the buffalo market in Portland is on the up grade, although it isn't on a cash basis.

Sacramento is taking three buffalo in exchange for sheep cubs, and two others will be shipped to Boise for the Julia Davis park zoo, in exchange for other animals.
