FANCY FRILLS BAD FOR CHILD'S DRESS

CHICAGO, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Fancy frills may make Jack a dull boy. The fussy parent who dresses her small son, or her little daughter with too many frills, overly conspicuous colors or ill-fitting garments, may be retarding the child's mental progress, in the opinion of Dr. Josephine E. Young, who makes a study of mental diseases in children.

She expressed her belief yesterday in addressing a health meeting held under auspices of the Chicago Woman's club.

"The child who is embarrassed because of any peculiarity in his appearance, or whose clothes are uncomfortable, has his attention distracted from constructive mental effort and is thereby unable to make progress," she said.

Taft Will Hold Redhead Roundup Coming Sunday

Word was received at the local Chamber of Commerce yesterday that Taft, Ore., is preparing for its second annual Red-Head roundup, to be held in that city next Sunday, August 14, and extending an invitation to all red-heads in southern Oregon to participate in the festivities. It was indicated that a large number of prizes will be awarded for various varieties of sorrel-tops, and plans are being made for an extensive celebration, according to the information received.

Prizes are to be awarded for the oldest, youngest, reddest and most profusely freckled red-head; for red-headed twins and triplets, greatest number of red-heads in one family, etc. The contest and roundup was held in Taft last year, and with marked success.

TOURIST INDUSTRY IN WISCONSIN BIG ITEM

MADISON, Wis.—(AP)—The tourist industry is the fourth largest industry in the state of Wisconsin, says E. J. O'Meara, traffic engineer of the state highway commission.

"Motor vehicles, dairy products and steel and iron alone outrank the tourist business in Wisconsin," he said.

A traffic count indicated that an average of 19,625 out-state cars per day entered the state, with an average of 3.34 passengers.

POLICE IN CHARGE SAFETY LANES TO TEST LOCAL CARS

Safety lanes, for the testing of headlights, steering gear, brakes, and all safety appliances, will be marked off in Medford, according to announcement yesterday afternoon by Fred Brown, in charge of the southern Oregon district of the Oregon State Motor association. The tests will be in charge of the Medford police department, under the supervision of Chief Clatus McCrede, Mr. Brown said.

"All autos are to be tested free of charge," he stated, "and is being carried out as a safety measure for school children." Tests are to be conducted here in about three weeks, he said.

A school ward patrol is to be established as a part of the safety program for Medford, the motor representative said, and a juvenile police force will be organized. As Mr. Brown's plan is outlined, the youths selected for the force will be furnished belts and badges. They will meet with Chief McCrede for instructions and training.

An educational program, to be outlined by E. H. Hedrick, city superintendent of schools, will be carried out in the Medford schools, Mr. Brown said, from the kindergarten through the ninth grade. Mr. Hedrick, he said, has already voiced his approval of the movement for the safety of the city's school children.

Mr. Brown, who arrived here last week to make his headquarters, was formerly with the American Automobile association at the national headquarters in Washington, D. C. For three years he was stationed in Florida, and for the past 60 days has been in Oregon.

Another innovation to be included in the Oregon Automobile association's program for Medford and southern Oregon is the publication of detour maps, the representative stated. Actual road conditions are portrayed on the maps, which are renewed each two weeks. This practice is carried out in practically all of the states west of the Rockies, and detour maps are distributed by the motor associations.

Washouts, fresh tar, or any other changes in road conditions, are clearly marked on the maps. The southern Oregon charts will probably be issued the latter part of this season.

OUTDOOR DANCING AIDS VENDERS DRAW TRADE

ST. LOUIS.—(AP)—Where once miniature golf courses blossomed along highways leading from St. Louis, informal outdoor dance halls have sprung up this summer.

Most of the platforms, illuminated by strings of colored lights, were erected by lunch stand proprietors seeking to attract trade. Some offer free dancing, others six dances for 25 cents, still others an evening of dancing for 50 cents a couple.

My Beauty Hint

IRENE DUNNE

I believe the early morning dew and the British fogs are wonderful stimulants and fresheners for the skin. Since California does not have these morning dews, I have compounded a skin freshener very similar in effect to nature's stimulant, and with a spray like a perfume atomizer I apply this to my neck and face.

The effect is startling. A tonic, vital freshness is awakened in the skin, and a healthy glow and fineness of texture results from the daily use of such a preparation.

QUARTET TRAILED FOR WEEKS TAKEN LATE YESTERDAY

eight head of veal are admitted in the confessions, the state police claim. The veal, at the present market price, brought from $10 to $15 per head.

Suspicion was directed to the quartet by the number of licenses to peddle they procured in the past six weeks. To secure direct evidence state policemen were detailed to watch every move of the suspects.

Indignant denials were registered when first taken into custody. The confessions were made, when confronted with direct evidence, and the equipment used.

The last of the suspects was arrested last night. One of the confessions embodies seven hand-written pages, and gives the mode of operation in detail.

Hard to Track. According to the trooper, who sustained losses, and the authorities, the "gasoline cowboys" were difficult to trail, as they knew every road and trail and were well acquainted with the territory over which they prowled.

The arrests followed three years of complaint of county stockmen relative to the loss of stock. The Butte Falls and Dead Indian districts ranges were raided the past two years. The state sent in a special investigator a year ago. He was able to find the horns and hides of the butchered cows, but no clues to the identity of the rustlers.

Because of the ready sale most of the stock to which the quartet allegedly confessed theft, was young. Under the Oregon law, conviction of the crime charged provides for state prison terms of from one to ten years.

Small Close Fitting Hat Fashionable for Autumn

By JANE EADS

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—(AP) Small, close-fitting hats with an international flare—there's an English boater, Spanish sailor, Florentine tricorne and chapes inspired by the Alabama mammy's bandana—are what the women should wear this fall, the Retail Milliners' Association of America suggests.

The close fitting cloche, the tiny turban, the small hat with varied brims, and the sailor, all worn far down over the right eye, were shown at the association's annual fall show last night. Hats led as trimmings and a great many feather effects were shown, placed to the fore of the hat.

The skull-shaped and beret crowns were favored with many folded, shirred, trucked and stitched effects featured. Brims were popular but they were narrow and often turned up.
