PEAR PROSPECTS FOR OREGON ARE HELD FAVORABLE

Bureau Agriculture Predicts Yield 2,880,000 Bushels Compared to 1,995,000 Bushels For Last Year.

From the bureau of agricultural economics in Portland, first fruit report of August for Oregon and the United States has been issued, showing the July conditions continued to be generally favorable to the development of Oregon fruits during the entire month, and on August 1, fruit production prospects showed little change from the previous month.

The report states that the moisture supply is generally ample and little damage has resulted from worms or coddling moths. In some sections fruit is maturing slowly, due to cool weather.

Prospective production of Oregon apples remains the same, approximately 4,950,000 bushels, with cool weather being favorable to good growth and sizing," the bulletin shows. "Through careful and thorough spray programs, worm damage has been only nominal in spite of rather favorable conditions for worms."

Apples Increased.

Commercial apples are estimated at 1,050,000 barrels, compared to only 700,000 barrels last year.

"Pear Prospects in Oregon," quoting the bulletin, "continue favorable, with the crop showing considerable increase over last year. The production forecast on August 1 is for 2,880,000 bushels, compared to 1,995,000 bushels last year and the 3-year average of 1,885,000 bushels."

In Oregon, the production of pears was 2,880,000 bushels in 1932, compared to 1,995,000 bushels in 1931. For the United States, the commercial output for 1932 is estimated at 22,149,000 in comparison with 23,346,000 bushels for 1931.

Apples were listed as 4,950,000 bushels in '32, with 4,150,000 for '31. The United States production was given as 135,496,000 bushels this year with 202,415,000 last year.

A total of 320,000 bushels of peaches was this year's production, the bulletin showed, with 220,000 bushels last year. For the United States, 46,126,000 bushels were on the 1932 table, with the commercial output in 1931 76,586,000 bushels.

Duck-Billed Belles With Barnes' Circus

TWO TYPES OF BEAUTY UNDER THE BIG TOP

Rosemary and Christine Belmont, equestriennes, pose with the Ubangi sisters, Jennie and Hot-Cha, from the Congo district of Africa. They are with the Al G. Barnes show.

A whole tribe of monster-lipped Ubangi savages from the Congo district of Africa will be with the Al G. Barnes Circus when it visits Medford, Wed., Aug. 17. It will be the first time that a tribe of the duck-billed women has been exhibited in the West.

Traveling from the village of Kiya Be, French Congo, Africa, the Ubangies reached California several days ago to join the circus. They are shown in the menagerie tent with a native bamboo hut as the last remaining link between civilization and their un-Christian jungle nativity.

Only the female species of the Ubangi tribe resort to the practice of developing monster lips. It is a mark of beauty and the larger the lip and mouth the greater is their social caste. According to Miss Hot-Cha Ubangi, only about 2,000 of the saucer-lip women remain in the French colony of Africa. Their vocabulary consists of only 200 words.

Valley View

VALLEY VIEW, Aug. 15.—(Spl.)—Saturday the first brush fire of the season occured near here when the hills above the Van Dyke and old Moreland place, now owned by Mr. Chambers burned. The buildings on the Chambers place were in danger and only by the aid of about 25 neighbors and forestry men were they saved. Some grain and hay stacks on Van Dyke's place and the buildings on the Harley Dunn ranch also narrowly escaped burning.

E. B. Adamson was a business caller here this week.

Mrs. Geo. Ross and Miss Jaunita Ross of Ashland were Valley View callers Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Enders of Ashland called here Wednesday morning.

Mrs. Agnes Merrill visited Mrs. C. W. Glasgow last week.

Saturday evening for about twenty minutes a terrific wind storm scattered the shocked hay over the fields, put the telephone lines out of commission and blew off the fruit badly. The D. M. Lowe and sons ranch suffered most damage to buildings where it blew over the silo and uprooted three old walnut trees. One tree fell against the porch on the house, knocking the porch off; also struck the water tower, the lower part of which was used as a cooler, knocking the upper part of the tower down and breaking a great quantity of canned fruit.

Louis Jennings, deputy sheriff, was a business caller in Valley View Tuesday morning.

Wednesday noon 35 men and women on a tour of southern Oregon dairies furnishing milk for Medford, called at the W. A. Stratton ranch. Mrs. Glen Fabrick, medford, president of the Women's Greater Oregon Association, Chas. Austin, Medford milk inspector, and Mr. Leach, state milk inspector, led the tour. Cars were furnished by producers and distributors of milk.
