ASK MORE TIME IN 'NAT' APPEAL

An order seeking an extension of time for preparation of transcripts and appeal to the state supreme court has been filed in the circuit court by Jesse E. Enyart and Grace Brown, cross-complainants in their suit against Mrs. Stella J. Merrick and the Nattorium Amusement company, for an accounting. Enyart is represented by Attorney A. E. Reames; Mrs. Grace Brown by Attorney Ralph E. Moody, and the Nattorium by Attorneys Porter J. Neff and George M. Roberts.

The Nattorium is linked with the boom day history of the city. Enyart and other leading citizens made investments in the project and afterwards abandoned their investments. It was claimed in the circuit court hearing. The Merrick family asserted they rehabilitated the property, when tourist traffic flourished on the Pacific highway, through their own efforts, and established it as "Merrick's Motor Inn."

William Powell In Holly Mystery Hit

Kay Francis and William Powell make a splendid movie team and "The Jewel Robbery," which is showing at the Holly theatre now, is just the kind of a picture that the two fit into nicely. The plot is simple and very light. The dialogue and situations provide plenty of opportunity for the two to display their talents, however, and we find a fast, breezy, saucy, non-sensational comedy as the result. William Powell is a debonair jewel bandit while Kay is the wife of a Viennese banker and has a passion for jewels. After Powell has robbed her of her jewels she lets her romantic self overrule her better judgment and therein lies the story.

Sunday the Holly will present Leo Carrillo in his latest hit, "Race Track." This picture is taken from the famous stage play and presents Carrillo at his dramatic best.

COOKING EXPERT'S APPROVAL GIVEN ON DRIFTED SNOW

The signature of Martha Meade, distinguished cooking authority and radio lecturer, now appears on the new package of Drifted Snow flour, according to A. H. Endria, manager of the Sperry Flour Co. in this district. The signature of the famous home economist is on the new Drifted Snow sacks as her stamp of approval upon flour which, according to Miss Meade, this well-known "home-perfected" brings uniformity of results to home baking.

In her statement to southern Oregon housewives, Martha Meade says: "If you want an easier, simpler and far more successful way in home baking, just try this 'home-perfected' flour. The scientific blending of the finest wheats grown in western America overcome the principal causes of home baking failures—variations in the baking action of the flour itself. Uniformity of blend especially features Drifted Snow and not only does it assure successful baking under all conditions but also possesses the valuable and rare property of acting equally well with either yeast or baking powder."

Probably one of the greatest points that recommends Drifted Snow "home-perfected" flour to the housewife is that it will make all types of baked goods equally well. The reason is that it contains just enough hard wheat for flavor, delicate texture, and golden crusts — and just enough soft wheat for airy lightness and snowy whiteness. The result is that pies, cakes, muffins, or pastries, turn out perfect.

Medford grocers are showing ten-pound sacks of Drifted Snow flour to induce women to more quickly try this new flour development. "All we ask is for housewives to try Drifted Snow; see for themselves how easy it is to successfully bake with this "home-perfected," scientifically blended flour. The results will prove equally pleasing to the woman who uses this new product, Mr. Endria said today.

Housewives are urged by Mr. Endria to choose the sack of flour bearing the signature of Martha Meade.
