

EGG PRODUCTION LAGS ON COAST; INCREASES EAST

CORVALLIS, Ore., Aug. 26.—(AP)—

Continual gradual decline in western egg production over the last two years, and an increase in commercial egg output in the Atlantic states, near the big eastern markets, is noted in the regular mid-year egg and poultry outlook report issued by L. R. Brethaupt, economist of the Oregon State college extension service.

Taking the country as a whole, the number of layers in farm flocks this fall and winter is expected to be about 4 to 5 per cent greater than last year. This expected increase may not result in a comparable increase in egg production, however, the report points out, as winter conditions a year ago were unusually favorable for high production, because of general mild weather and cheap feed.

"Though egg prices in Oregon on July 25 were only 48 per cent of the 1925-1930 average for that date, eggs and poultry in general have not been especially low in price on the coast compared with most other farm products," the report said. "Low prices are due mostly to poor demand and low purchasing power of consumers rather than to high production, statistics show."

"Carlot shipments from the western states to date in 1932 have been 40 per cent less than during the same period a year ago. Storage stocks of eggs for the entire country are about one-third less than a year ago, but no shortage is expected. Commercial hatcheries in western states show a sharp decrease in numbers of chicks hatched."

"A larger supply of poultry for markets this fall and winter is foreseen. As the number of chickens raised is estimated at 7.5 per cent larger, while abundance of cheap feed will probably result in heavier birds."

Prune Shippers Stabilize Price By Organization

SALEM, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Prune shippers representing 1,000 cars or about 95 per cent of the produce in the Milton-Freswater district, have organized themselves in order to stabilize prices and regulate sales and shipments of prunes, it was related here by W. L. Close, supervisor of shipping point inspection for the state department of agriculture.

This is a unique organization in Oregon, Close said, but it is already proving of benefit to growers. The first car was sold last Monday and brought an excellent price. The members meet daily at two o'clock in the afternoon and study prices and sales of prunes from all points as a sort of stock exchange. The group is bound by strict regulations and no sales are made at any price unless unanimously agreed upon.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—(AP)—An abrupt reversal sent the stock market up swiftly today, after a slow decline had carried many issues off 1 to 4 points.

Some leaders registered extreme gains of 2 to more than 3 points late, although there was a slight sag just before the close. The late lunge was strong. Transfers approximated 3,000,000 shares.

The selling, in part a continuation of the movement late yesterday, dried up in the afternoon, which encouraged a fresh bull drive. The Interborough Rapid Transit receivership had only a temporarily dampening effect upon sentiment, and several quarters were optimistic over the probable results of the economic conference in Washington.

Adrienne Will Present Style Show, Craterian

There is an increasing demand for better merchandise, indicating a bright outlook for the fall and winter season, according to Mrs. Adrienne Steward, who returned to Medford yesterday after spending the past month in Los Angeles and San Francisco, Cal. In addition to selecting new apparel for her Medford and Grants Pass shops, Mrs. Steward attended the Olympic games.

Highlights of the fashion forecast for autumn will be revealed at Adrienne's style show at the Craterian theatre September 7, Wednesday, with Dave Macovsky of San Francisco assisting and displaying a line of dresses, suits and coats.

Feminine interest is centered on elaborate sleeve treatment, pin-wheel shoulders, high necklines and intriguing new materials in both silk and woolen fabrics. Velvet is important in accessories such as hats, capes, sashes and collars. For general daytime wear black, brown and white are the most popular colors. Crinkle crepe, rib sheer, tolon, a velvety wool with diagonal weave, valken, a granular semi-sheer wool, crepe ruffin, ribbed dull silk, are only a few of the new materials included in the new apparel which is arriving daily at Adrienne's.

Better Times for Oregon—IF?

WE OREGONIANS are funny people. We see our neighbors lose their jobs—their families reduced to want—dig into our pockets to help them—seek some far-away cause for the depression and a more distant source of relief, when the solution is at our own door.

How often do we repeat the old sayings—"Distance lends enchantment," or "Far away hills look the greenest," little realizing that we are victims of this greatest of all human fallacies, for in merchandise are we most susceptible.

Oregon wool goes to eastern or foreign mills—western grains to eastern cereal mills—valley pears to far away canneries—Oregon lumber to furniture factories, and come back to us at higher prices. Distant factories are busy, while our own neighbors are reduced to want.

Yes, better times are possible in Oregon, but like personal happiness, they will come only with the application of common sense.
