Stage Show Feature Holly Anniversary

In celebration of the second anniversary of the theater, the Holly will present for today and tomorrow matinee and evening another combination stage and screen program. On the stage will be featured another big time vaudeville program composed of a group of variety artists. Warren and Inman in a comedy riot entitled "Oh Yeah," will furnish laughs enough to last for a long time. The Campus Co-eds and Duke and Duke will furnish everything anyone could want in the way of music and novelty dances and numbers.

On the screen will be featured "The Crooner," a sad and story of a girl who fell for a mega-phonie in the flesh. Crooners are reputed to be responsible for the heart trouble of ten million women and terrific pains in the necks of ten million men. Whether this is the case or not is of little concern as the picture will not settle the question one way or another, but will leave it up to the discretion of the audience.

Featured in "The Crooner" are Ann Dvorak, David Manners and Ken Murray. This picture will be at the Holly today and tomorrow, along with the Holly anniversary celebration.
