Guests Here From San Francisco
Included among San Francisco's prominent who arrived in Medford on the Shasta this morning were Mr. and Mrs. Herbert J. Fleischacker and Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Henderson. They will be guests while here of Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Noyes at their Rogue river lodge.

Frank D. Madison, also of the bay city, arrived here today by train to spend a few days at his summer lodge.

Mrs. Reames Returns From Welfare Conference
Mrs. A. E. Reames, Jackson county chairman of the governor's relief committee, returned to Medford last evening from Portland, where Tuesday and Wednesday she attended the annual conference of the Social Workers' Association of Oregon, held in conjunction with the American Red Cross and the Oregon Prison Association.

The board of directors was named the closing day of the gathering, and Mrs. Reames was selected as one of the members.

The conference was presided over by Raymond B. Wilcox, president of the Portland Community Chest and chairman of the governor's relief committee, who also addressed the county chairman in attendance.

The talks given by the various leaders were quite constructive. Mrs. Reames stated, and she also expressed enthusiasm over the address given by Miss Marietta Stevenson of Washington, D. C.

Miss Stevenson spoke on the federal aid loans and gave the delegation details of the plans followed in making the loans.

Mrs. Reames was accompanied home by her son, Edward, Mr. Reames having returned here Sunday by plane.

Inter-City League Will Meet Sunday
Presbyterian Christian Endeavorers will be in charge of the meeting Sunday evening at 7 o'clock of the Inter-City league to be held in that church.

Included in the program they will present is the play, "At the Foot of the Cross," written by Miss Helen Wilson III and Donald Darnelle.

All young people of the city are being invited to the fifth meeting of the organization.

Miss Shreve Returns East

Miss Virginia Shreve, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy K. Shreve, left by train last evening for Leavenworth, Kas., where she will enter St. Mary's college. Miss Shreve has been spending the summer in Medford and during her visit was entertained extensively.

Miss Shreve received a scholarship to the college last year and will complete her work there, according to present plans.

Society Basks at Stylish Atlantic Resorts But Economic Pinch Hits Yachts and Villas

NEWPORT, R. I.—(AP)—"Economic readjustment" has come to Newport, but it's the kind of readjustment that is measured in terms of beach villas and power yachts.

Visitors who are easily dazzled by such things will hardly realize that it has been an off-year for this summer capital of the rich. Bailey's Beach still displays as much luxury as one of Cecil DeMille's sets, but Bailey's Beach feels a bit poor, all the same.

The beach cottages of 40 rooms may look as magnificent as ever—those that are not boarded up—but the owners know that zeros have been falling off the back end of fantastic rental figures.

"Tennis week," the peak of the season, brought out a virtual millionaires' convention in the galleries, but old-timers noted the absence of many of the "regulars."

Fleet of Yachts Reduced.

The New York Yacht club fleet sailed into Newport harbor the same week, with the trim Westmore and Yacht—America's cup defender—behind Vincent Astor's liner-like Nourmahal, but the host of white-winged playthings won only a sigh from the fashionable. The fleet wasn't a shadow of its former self.

The same week, too, saw the announcement that Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont had sold Marble House, the famous home built for her by the late William E. Vanderbilt, then her husband. Newport speculated on the price paid by Frederick H. Prince of Boston, knowing that the property was taxed at $382,500.

Cabinet Members There.

But despite the numerous boarded-up mansions and despite the sighs over the side of the yacht club fleet, Newport in tennis week still seemed, to the unpracticed eye, fairly prosperous.

Ogden L. Mills, secretary of the treasury, was present on board his yacht, the Avalon. Another cabinet officer, Charles Francis Adams, arrived aboard the towering sloop Vanitie, assisting Harold Vanderbilt at the wheel. Acting Commodore William A. W. Stewart arrived on Vincent Astor's Nourmahal, flagship for the yacht club cruise.

With Frank Shields, Ellsworth Vines, George Lott and Gregory Mangin all playing at the same time, the tennis galleries looked like the Social Register come to life.

Mrs. Vincent Astor was present with Mr. Astor. Mrs. William Goadby Loew watched the tournament with her daughter, Mrs. Loew Burrill. William Van Alen was there with his titian-haired bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Atwater Kent. There were many others, too, whose names are prominent on Wall street or Park avenue.

Whether depression is largely a mental state or something more real to the colonists, it is apparent that it has become fashionable to economize. There is more entertaining, but the parties are smaller, more intimate, less expensive.

On the surface, exclusive Bailey's Beach at Newport, R. I. (above) looks as prosperous as ever, but the spacious beach villas aren't commanding the rents they did in more prosperous times, and some of them are closed. The yacht fleet was smaller this year, too, and parties were less expensive. Members of society still are seen in large numbers at the Atlantic resorts, however. Betty Morris (left) and Mrs. Whitehouse Walker (right) are shown at Newport and Dorothy Gay (center) at Southampton, L. I. All are of New York.

Released from the necessity for keeping up the fast pace set in more expensive days the colonists are employing their leisure more largely in behalf of Newport's many charities, church bazaars and benefit entertainments.

The same situation holds true at other society resorts along the Atlantic coast, including Southampton, Bar Harbor and Watch Hill. But there is at least one consolation—sun tan is just as inexpensive as ever at the exclusive beaches.

DIXON MAY FIGHT WINNER OF GIBBS-CRIM IMBROGLIO

George Dixon, the colored light heavyweight of Portland, may appear in Medford and fight the winner of the Gibbs-Crim 10-rounder Wednesday.

Dixon, through his manager, Abe Brown, has expressed a willingness to meet the winner of Wednesday's fight, providing the terms are right.

Dixon's terms so far have been out of reason regarding a match with Jack Gibbs, but new light was thrown on the proposed match last night when Gibbs said, "If I win my fight here Wednesday against Jack Crim, I will fight Dixon, winner take all, or, if necessary, give him my part of the purse. I want to knock him over so the Portland and Seattle promoters will have to use me."

Nearly every light-heavy in the northwest has heard of Gibbs' deadly left hook and are none too anxious to be a target for it.

Herb White has laid off his job in the orchards and is devoting all his spare time toward conditioning himself for his first 10-round fight when he meets Jimmy Lewis of Spokane.

Lewis has had three fights to Herb's one and is a tough lad and a hard puncher.

Much interest is being shown in the initial appearance of Herm Newland, local heavyweight. Newland is fighting Ray Henderson, a big boy from Portland, who is also making the Medford fight his first.

A four-round curtain raiser between two local sluggers will complete the card.

Oregon Weather.

Fair tonight and Saturday; warmer tonight, and east and central portions Saturday; moderate changeable winds offshore; fair Sunday, except cloudy on the coast.

REGATTA SEPT. 18 AT SAVAGE RAPIDS

The Southern Oregon Motor Boat club announce they will hold races at Savage Rapids dam, Sunday, September 18, and will be the last aquatic event of the year.

Entries have been received from Albany, including George Hurley and John Pierstine. Hurley has a new motor in his craft, and expects to make a thrilling showing.

A number of local motor boat enthusiasts will also enter.

On account of the narrow course the Savage Rapids water makes one of the most spectacular raceways on the coast.
