Maine Has "Went!"

"A S Maine goes, so goes the nation." This political slogan is too deeply imbedded in American tradition...

THIS year, with the political situation so uncertain and confused, and with so many voters still on the fence...

THERE is another discouraging feature about this Maine election, as far as the Republican party is concerned...

The democratic donkey is going to bray long and loudly over this victory in the pivot state, on the Atlantic seaboard...

"Thank God for Al Smith!"

THERE is one great thing about Al Smith. No matter how ticklish, from a political standpoint, a question may be, Al never leaves the people in doubt as to JUST WHERE HE STANDS.

Of course not being a candidate for public office, it was far easier for Al Smith to do this, than it was for the President of the United States...

BUT those considerations have never bothered the former Governor of New York, and we hope they never will.

We wish everyone might read this Saturday Evening Post article. It shows so clearly the "other side" of this perplexing and serious problem.

Nobody can question the feeling of the people generally for the veteran, but when the burden becomes so great that it oppresses everybody...

It is also undoubtedly true that the veteran has a spirit of patriotism, and he must stand in the position of being entirely unwilling to have improper payments made for the benefit of less than 5 per cent of the people of the United States...

As to the men who were disabled, again I say, with emphasis: To those who were killed, to their relatives and their dependents and beneficiaries, the gratitude of the American people cannot even be expressed in dollars.

I earnestly hope that a time will never come when the people of the United States will be lacking in expression of their gratitude to the men who offered themselves to the country in her time of trouble...

We can't but believe, not only a vast majority of the American tax payers, but many world war veterans themselves, WILL AGREE WITH THAT VIEW.

THE BONUS HAS BEEN ALLOWED!
The only question is whether it should be paid NOW, when there is no surplus cash in the treasury...

War debts have been deferred, personal debts have been deferred. Is there anything unreasonable in the request, which President Hoover makes for the nation, and Al Smith makes for himself...

That the debt to the veterans, also be deferred, until Uncle Sam and the taxpayers of this country, get on their financial feet again!

As that cultured woman speaker from Massachusetts declared at the Democratic convention: "Thank God for Al Smith!"

Turbulent World, Talkative Ambassador, An Engineer's Job, A. P. Sloan, Jr.'s Problem.

We live in a turbulent world, ladies and gentlemen, and more than a few kind words or debts forgiven are needed to smooth it out.

Far more important is the German news that Von Papen, head of the aristocratic "baron" government, dissolves the reichstag autocratically.

The Hitler crowd joins the "reds" in upsetting the present aristocratic government. The latter hints it may stay in office by force.

Mr. Edge, our ambassador in Paris, presenting to France an expensive memorial built by the United States near Meaux, supposedly in recognition of the statute of Liberty sent to us, took occasion to say that when the American people see a territory overrun, they "instinctively" resolve to throw their moral, and, if need be, their material weight on the side of the invaded.

This half way promise that if somebody attacks France or some other European country, the United States will rush in, as it did in the last war, is fortunately not official.

Mr. Edge is mistaken. And what is more, any president or public official that should undertake to send men and money from the United States into another war, without letting the American people vote on it, would be kicked out of office, and ought to be impeached for treason. ONCE IS ENOUGH.

Washington suggests that President Hoover may put Calvin Coolidge in charge of a committee to rehabilitate railroads, restore their prosperity and full usefulness.

But what railroads were is NEW METHODS. Mr. C. F. Katerling, head engineer of General Motors, or some engineer of equal ability, if he can be found, should be invited to form an organization of engineers to suggest plans for railroad RECONSTRUCTION.

The railroads ignored automobiles and motor trucks until it was too late to do anything but weep about them, treating automobiles just as the old stage coach owners treated the locomotives.

Mr. Katerling, with engineers selected from Standard Oil, General Electric, Westinghouse, United States Steel, and a few other great inventive centers, would replace the heavy coach weighing one hundred and fifty thousand pounds, carrying twenty-four thousand passengers...

Anti-bonus leaders were waging an admittedly hopeless fight against reversal of the Legion's stand against the bonus. An equally determined group of Pennsylvania delegates were seeking to force through a resolution condemning President Hoover for his ejection of the bonus army from Washington by the use of troops.

The Legion closed the first day of their convention yesterday with the bitter plaint of Mayor J. M. Curley, Democrat, of Boston that wartime heroes had been "shot down like dogs in the capital of our nation," ringing in their ears.

Curley was a distinguished guest of the convention as was Secretary of War Patrick Hurley, who adroitly turned booring into applause as he carefully avoided controversial subjects into a brief address urging the Legionnaires to "put patriotism above politics."

The war secretary was expected to march in the ranks as a buck private among the Legionnaires from his home state during the parade. He had been asked to review the parade but preferred to march.

Hurley clashed with Floyd Gibbons, war correspondent and author, during a dinner given by Henry L. Stevens, Jr., national commander of the Legion, last night.

Gibbons criticized the methods used by the administration in ejecting the B. E. F. from their billets in Washington, D. C. He accused the army of having started the fire and said the bonus seekers had been and are being treated as "undesirable."

Personal Health Service

A NEUROSTHENIC PROTEST WORTH HEARING.

I am a young woman recovering from a severe case of neurasthenia, she writes. Seems to me, Mr. Brady, your education on the disorders of the nervous system, has been sadly neglected, and what you don't know about the subject would fill a big book.

Get it clear in your delicate mind, I believe the majority of "neurasthenics" are deceived, but a minority of them are working "bad nerves" as a racket.

Received your little book on "Constitutional Habits," and will say it is the finest investment I ever made.

I have been greatly benefited by calcium lactate taken for a nasal cold which always came in April and lasted throughout the summer.

Answer—Coincidentally, calcium lactate medication, as you have taken it for the hay fever, is sometimes as excellent remedy for migraine or periodic sick headache.

Mouthwash having antiseptic and astringent qualities... Answer—Rounded teaspoonful boric acid dissolved in pint boiled water.

Hurley said he had not intended to talk on the subject, but that he felt he should reply to Gibbons' charges.

PORTLAND GREETS LEGION MARCHERS; HURLEY CRITICISED

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 13.—(AP)—The nation's greatest annual peace-time military spectacle was Portland's treat today.

The whole day was set aside for the annual parade of the American Legion, the high point, from a spectator's viewpoint, of the convention being held here.

For the day controversial matters of bonus payment, bonus expeditionary force and prohibition were forgotten by the rank and file of the delegates.

Anti-bonus leaders were waging an admittedly hopeless fight against reversal of the Legion's stand against the bonus.

TOKYO, Sept. 13.—(AP)—It has been three days since United States Ambassador Grew asked Foreign Minister Uchida to expatriate the National City Bank from charges of espionage.

MAINE ELECTION CHEERS ROOSEVELT ON WESTERN TRIP

CLEVELAND, Sept. 13.—(AP)—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt and his presidential campaign party arrived here on their special train from Albany, N. Y., at 8:28 a. m.

A delegation of Cleveland Democrats was at the station, headed by Congressman Martin L. Sweeney, of the Ohio district.

James Roosevelt, son of the New York governor, appeared on the platform of the train and spoke a greeting to the crowd.

The candidate's son related the question to his father, and then reappeared, saying the nominee's only comment was "a broad smile."

DEMOCRATIC WIN IN MAINE SPURS G. O. P. TO ACTION

Beedy has always been an ardent supporter of prohibition and defeated a "repeatist" in the party primary in June.

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 13.—(AP)—U. S. Senator George H. Moses, commenting on the Maine vote, said: "No thoughtful Republican can overlook the implications of the election in Maine, nor can they be elated away by the customary form of political alibi."

"There were some local cross-currents in the Maine election which were readily discernible to those of us from the outside who were campaigning there. But this was not sufficient."

"The fact is that Republicans are confronted by opposition well organized and enthusiastic. The answer to this is that we should organize and develop enthusiasm."

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—(AP)—White House official said today there would be "no comment" on the election returns from Maine.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—(AP)—Democratic National Chairman James A. Farley met late returns from the Maine election today with a statement in which he predicted "as Maine goes so goes the ball game."

"It really seems to me," he said in a statement, "that our Republican friends ought to make the statement in regard to the result of the Maine election. I certainly am most anxious to hear their explanation for the election of a Democratic governor and two Democratic congressmen in 'rock-ribbed Republican Maine.'"

"According to the latest figures I have seen, our Maine vote has increased 55 per cent in the state at large over the 1928 figures."

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 13.—(AP)—Returns in the Maine state election at 12:30 p. m. (E. D. T.) gave: For governor—611 out of 632 precincts.

Brann (D.), 118,789; Martin (R.), 117,402. For congress, first district complete: Beedy (R.), 40,997; Connolly (D.), 38,916.

Second district, 209 out of 213: Moran (D.), 41,795; Nelson (R.), 39,374. Bonney (Ind. R.), 1,649. Third district, 255 out of 274 precincts. Uterback (D.), 54,386; Brewster (R.), 53,236.
