PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 13.—(AP)—A whooping secretary of war, untruffed by an echo of catcalls that penetrated the spontaneous outburst of applause which greeted him, led the cheering throngs in Multnomah stadium here today as the American Legion marched in their greatest peace-time demonstration.
Patrick J. Hurley, war secretary, whose visit to this annual convention of the Legion has met with fire and determined criticism as well as occasional thunderous ovations, whooped his famous Oklahoma war cry as the Oklahoma delegation passed through the stadium. In all sections of the great structure his piercing, happy shouts were heard.
Then, heavily guarded by army city police and secret service men, he left the stadium for the airport, to leave behind him the city and the convention which greeted him with varied moods.
OREGON SINGING UNITS WIN CUPS
PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 13.—(AP)—Two Oregon organizations won first place in the national contest for American Legion singing units here Monday night.
The Rose City Auxiliary Glee club of Portland won the glee club contest and a trio from Salem won first honors in that division.
First place in the quartet division went to a group from New Hampton, Iowa.

"steering" the convention spoke of unanimity and compromise.
Overwhelmingly in favor of immediate cash payment of the bonus, the Legion membership nevertheless will be asked that action on this matter be deferred. There was no doubt as to the report the sub-committee would bring in, its membership including five men definitely pledged to immediate payment, and four men openly opposed to such payment. This five to four report advocating immediate payment will be made to the general legislative committee tomorrow.
Robert W. Reed, of Kansas City, member of the sub-committee, declared today that there is some hope of a compromise on the question and the Missouri delegation is working diligently for their proposal to defer action on the bonus matter until the next convention.
Nebraska, likewise, is strenuously attempting to enlist aid in opposition to the bonus payment.
Mrs. Edna Daboff Smith, one of Ashland's leading vocalists, will sing over KMPD tomorrow morning from 10:15 to 10:45 on the Ashland Convalescent and Rest Home program. Familiar hymns and old time songs will be featured.

STAN SMITH STARS AS IOWA GOLFER
"Big golfing" news of Stanley Smith, former resident of Medford, was received here today in a newspaper from Washington, Iowa, which tells of his defeating Dick Westphal for five consecutive years champion of the Washington Golf and Country club.
Stan defeated Westphal, two up and one to go, in the semi-finals of the club championship. He then met his cousin, Walter Wells, in the final and lost the cup to the latter with a finish of five and three. The defeat was not a sad one, friends of Smith report, since the cup was kept in the family.
The Washington press describes the two cousins as great assets to the club, being the longest drivers on Washington's team. They are frequently seen driving a distance of 250 yards, straight down the fairway, neck and neck.
TRAILER ON AUTO BREAKS LOOSE AND PEDESTRIANS HURT
Mr. and Mrs. Scott Hamilton suffered injuries at 6:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon when a trailer broke loose from a passing automobile driven by Louella Moore, and struck the Hamiltons, who were walking down the street. Hamilton was knocked unconscious by the impact.
Hamilton grabbed the tongue of the trailer to keep it from injuring Mrs. Hamilton. He suffered an injury to his right leg, a sprained back, and severe bruises. Mrs. Hamilton received torn tendons and pulled muscles as a result of the crash.
Dr. Sweeney was called, and treated the injured, who were only a few doors from their home at the time of the accident. The Moores, who are moving to Ashland, had household furniture in the trailer.
Another accident, reported as having occurred at 5:30 Monday afternoon, completely demolished the car driven by Arthur Hardisty of Phoenix, and badly damaged the John Dodge auto when the two collided at the corner of Eleventh and King streets.
Hardisty was reported as traveling at a high rate of speed, and the impact turned his car over. It was necessary for Hardisty to have three stitches taken in his arm.
Reports of both mishaps were filed at the city police station.

BEARDED BRUTE HUNTED FOR CRIME ON PHOENIX LASS
crime until 7 o'clock last night, the father of the child having started with her on an immediate search for the fiend, which led to Ashland, where officers were notified and in turn lashed the call to Medford.
A searching party was organized at once and guards placed on the highways north and south. Section hands were informed and given a description of the man. The search continued until midnight and guards were kept on duty until daylight, when county, state and city officials resumed their search for the degenerate. Freight cars in and out of the city were headed by officials and all jungles visited.
A visit to the transients' headquarters near Phoenix revealed that a tramp, answering the description given by the girl, had left there about 4 o'clock, heading north. He arrived at the jungle about 2 o'clock and during his stay there convinced the men that he was a religious fanatic with his constant ravings on Biblical topics. He carried a bedding roll when he left the jungle.
A hobo of the same general characteristics was seen yesterday noon by a section gang out from Talent. He was also heading north, so officers are convinced today that the crazed hobo for whom they are searching, is the one seen at the Phoenix jungle.
Officers, when notified of the crime, immediately summoned a physician. Medical treatment was administered the child and her condition was reported much improved today.
No new clues regarding the location or identification of the fleeing degenerate were obtained by officials today, but all seemed convinced that he had not escaped from southern Oregon and would be located near Medford.
Nine proposed amendments to the state constitution will be passed upon by Texas voters at the general election this fall.
Men students will be allowed to enroll at the Alabama Women's college the coming term, under a temporary arrangement.

GLORY TRAIL HARD IN WAKE OF STAR GLENDA DISCOVERS By ROBBIN COONS
HOLLYWOOD—Taking a bow in the glory trail of a famous star has its advantages as a means of putting yourself before the public, but it has its drawbacks, too, as Glenda Farrell learned.
Glenda has joined the ranks of those whose second attempt at Hollywood fame proved more successful than the first. If you strain your memory you may recall Glenda who was Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.'s sweetheart in "Little Caesar." But the picture brought Edward G. Robinson so much acclaim that other players in it were all but overlooked.
It was her first attempt at screen acting, and nobody seemed interested. She returned to the stage, where one of her roles was in "Life Begins." When the movie of the same name was made from the play, Glenda was "discovered" all over again and signed for the same role in the movie version. Now her "second screen career" is well launched, for her outstanding work won a contract.
By coincidence she is playing now with Paul Muni, who had a similar experience, being returned to Hollywood favor by "Scarface." Sylvia Sydney, Zita Johann, Clark Gable, and Virginia Bruce (John Gilbert's bride), are others who were passed up by Hollywood only to become "finds" later.
Maria Alba, the Spanish actress, has found her role opposite Douglas Fairbanks in "Mr. Robinson Crusoe" the key to a better career. Fairly well established in silent pictures, her inability to speak English relegated her to Spanish versions almost exclusively until Fairbanks chose her for leading lady. Now she has roles booked in advance in English versions. Producers reckon with the "girl in the Fairbanks" picture where they would not notice "that pretty girl who was stopped by talkies—too bad."
IRENE DUNNE AT RIALTO WITH RICARDO CORTEZ
Irene Dunne and Ricardo Cortez are co-featured in the Rialto's feature attraction for today and tomorrow, "Symphony of Six Million."
Irene Dunne plays the part of the teacher of the poor, a woman who has devoted her life to the teaching of the children of the East Side. She gives a performance that rivals that of the part she played in "Cim-
