CO-OP CREAMERY MOVE LAUNCHED BY VALLEY DAIRYMEN

Committee Named to Secure Data on Costs at Meeting Last Night - Needs of Agriculturist Emphasized

Definite steps toward formation of a cooperative creamery to serve the southern Oregon public were taken here last night at a meeting of approximately 100 dairymen from Jackson and Josephine counties, held at the new Jackson county court house. John Heumers of Jacksonville, W. C. Blankenship of Central Point, and Wm. Wilson of Grants Pass were named as a committee of three to bring a detailed report of costs and plan of operation to the next meeting of the Rogue River Valley dairymen to be held in Grants Pass.

Wm. Carl, president of the dairy association, presided at the meeting, and farmers from Ashland, Grants Pass, Central Point, Medford and neighboring communities joined in the discussion, setting forth the needs of all branches of farming as well as dairying. It was several times stressed that the time has come when farmers must help themselves and cease seeking aid from the administration.

The practicality of cooperative marketing was emphasized and cited by numerous speakers as the farmer's one hope of prosperity. "The producer must come nearer the consumer," Mr. Blankenship declared. "Let the creameries attend to their own business and we will attend to ours," he added. "Our homes are at stake and this is no time to concern ourselves with the affairs of the creameries. The trouble in America today is largely the result of the fact that the farmer won't do anything to help himself. The administration has done nothing for the farmer and isn't going to do anything." It was concluded that George Andrews of the Bellview district opened his address to fellow dairymen with the statement, "unless we work out a system of cooperative marketing, our names are mud. The farmers are at the mercy of the dealer on every hand."

The indebtedness of the farming population was introduced by Mr. Andrews as proof of the necessity for immediate action for relief. "There is no class of people in the United States who can bring the country to its senses more rapidly than the farmers," he added. "We hope it will be done peacefully. Farmers of the middlewest are desperate, unless we help ourselves we will also be desperate."

Advisability of consulting merchants and manufacturers and developing a feeling of understanding and sympathy was emphasized by Mr. Andrews, who stated, "competition has become the death of trade. Many merchants do not dare give the farmer a better deal under the present system." Patronage of merchants, who patronize the farmer was then urged by Mr. Andrews, who condemned the importation of products from California, which are destroying the market for local products.

Herb Howell, county agent of Josephine county, called for a check on the number of "honest to goodness" cow owners attending the meeting, and the number of cows represented. The total was in excess of 800 dairy animals. He also voiced an objection to permitting representation of existing creameries attending the dairymen's meetings.

D. M. Lowe, who has had much experience in farmers' cooperatives, voiced a plea for a strong and capable board of directors for the concern, pointing out that upon the selection of men the success of the venture depends. The failure of previous organizations he blamed to inability and lack of industry on the part of the leaders.

Dr. J. M. Keene asked that a practical plan, such as that adopted by the Mt. Angel cooperative, cited as the most successful on the coast, be followed by the local dairymen, in preference to any fancy college ideas available. Mr. Heumers of Jacksonville outlined the work so far done toward organization of a cooperative and urged that the sentiment of the dairymen be obtained before further steps are taken.

George King of Grants Pass, who has operated a milk route and small creamery, suggested that the cooperative be started in a small way permitting development as the demand increases. Called to the stand by Mr. Carl in line with his charges of dominance by "the ring of five creameries," Mr. King had little to say, remarking it is all in the business and that he had no complaint to offer against his competitors.

OUTRIGHT REPEAL OF LIQUOR LAWS VOTED, 1144 TO 133

The order that Secretary Hurley issued calling the army into action on the afternoon of July 28.

The statement concluded with the paragraph: "All fatalities incident to the riot took place before the arrival of the United States troops a force of about 600 men, not one shot was fired and no person was seriously injured. Law and order were promptly restored."

The ayes and noes both were loud, but Commander Stevens declared the vote of censure had been passed. A motion by Walter Edwards, Muskogee, Okla., condemning the National Broadboating company for taking Floyd Gibbons, war correspondent and radio announcer, off the air on Legion broadcasts was tabled after another disturbance. A few bores came from the gallery.

Limit Speeches.
Speeches on the bonus were limited by a vote of the convention to five minutes. Commander Henry L. Stevens, Jr., said he felt sure the resolution would be adopted overwhelmingly but that both sides should be given a respectful hearing.

Representative Wright Patman of Texas, author of the soldier legislation and a delegate to the convention, was the first speaker.

Patman said the congress had been trying to find a way to put money in circulation through a "controlled inflation of the currency." He said the bonus, had it been paid, would have had a far more beneficial effect than the advances to the reconstruction finance corporation. "The international bankers," Patman said, have been the "enemies of the veterans on the question of bonus payment."

"The bonus will promote the welfare of this country," Patman said. "I believe the American people will be grateful to you if you go on record for payment now. The benefits will not be restricted to the veterans and their families."

Bonus For Boon.
Loud bores greeted Sam Reynolds of Nebraska, as he was called to present the case against the bonus.

National Commander Stevens intervened. "Let's hear them all," he said. Scattered bores continued to heckle Reynolds.

"The question, he said, is whether we shall place first the nation's good or the disabled man's welfare. 'All the nation,' he said, 'is awaiting the action of this convention. All the people know we are under fire.'"

"Times we stop that storm which is growing we will see the day when men run for office on the boat of 'stop the veterans!'"

"We've got to say to the people of America," Reynolds said, "that we want nothing for ourselves, but that we do want to help only the disabled veteran."

"How can we raise our hand for the disabled veteran while with the other we beg gratuities for ourselves. 'Let there be no organization that puts country first. Let us ask everything for the disabled, but nothing for the able-bodied.'"

He called for "unselfish patriotism." Shouts of "time" were heard, but there was much applause when he concluded his speech.

There were no other speakers on the platform and Commander Stevens asked if others wanted to talk. There were cries in the front row of "let Robertson speak." Commander Stevens asked who was meant and some of the delegates shouted "Roy Robertson of California," the man who led the "death march" of veterans on Washington, D. C.

"Boys, we all know how it's going," Commander Stevens shouted, "but for God's sake let us hear these men. We believe in Americanism and free speech. Let's show it."

Henry D. Lindsey of Texas, past national commander, finally took the speaker's platform. He disapproved of immediate payment of the bonus. The last part of his talk was made under considerable heckling.

Commander Stevens finally had to bring the convention to order so he could proceed. "Come on, boys," Stevens said, "let's be good sports."

Lindsey continued amid considerable noise, bores and shouts of "throw him out" while another section of the auditorium appeared to heed Commander Stevens' suggestion to "play fair."

"I appeal to you my comrades," Lindsey said, "not to desert the Legion, but to remain for it and fight for it."

SAVAGE RAPIDS REGATTA LURE TO LOCAL SPEEDISTS

An afternoon of thrills and spills is promised all Southern Oregon speedboat fans attending the last boat race of the year to be held at Savage Rapids dam, Sunday, September 18, by the Southern Oregon Boat Club.

Several local boats, including those of James H. Dally, Abijah Woods, Harry Lewis, Earl Voorhies, Arnold Bohmert, Fred Knox and several other boats were at the river last Sunday giving the spectators a few breath-taking thrills they won't forget.

From all indications there will be one of the best runabouts races that has ever been held on any waterway on the Pacific coast and there will probably be several dark horses in this race.

The race committee, composed of Joe Marshall, Abijah Woods, Earl Voorhies and James Dally, has arranged for all events to be run off on time. There will be surfboard riding by the best riders in Southern Oregon.

The Savage Rapids race course is the most thrilling race course in this part of the country and one of the most dangerous turns lies right in front of the spectators, so the crowd will get the benefit of seeing the boats make this turn at speeds as high as 45 miles an hour and trying to keep from running into other boats beside them. Imagine this thrill and, best of all, the fee is only 25 cents for adults and 10 cents for the kiddies.

There will be plenty of room to park your car at the service stations across the street free, also plenty of room to picnic if you want to bring your lunch and stay all day. This will positively be the last boat race of this season, so reserve this coming Sunday for the last big thrill this year.

3-M MERGER BILL FOES TO ORGANIZE

Meeting to organize the Medford district in opposition to the Zorn-McPherson bill for merging of Oregon's schools of higher learning will be held tonight at the Hotel Medford. O. M. Green of the Ashland Tidings, chairman of the southern Oregon committee, organized in opposition to the bill, announced yesterday.

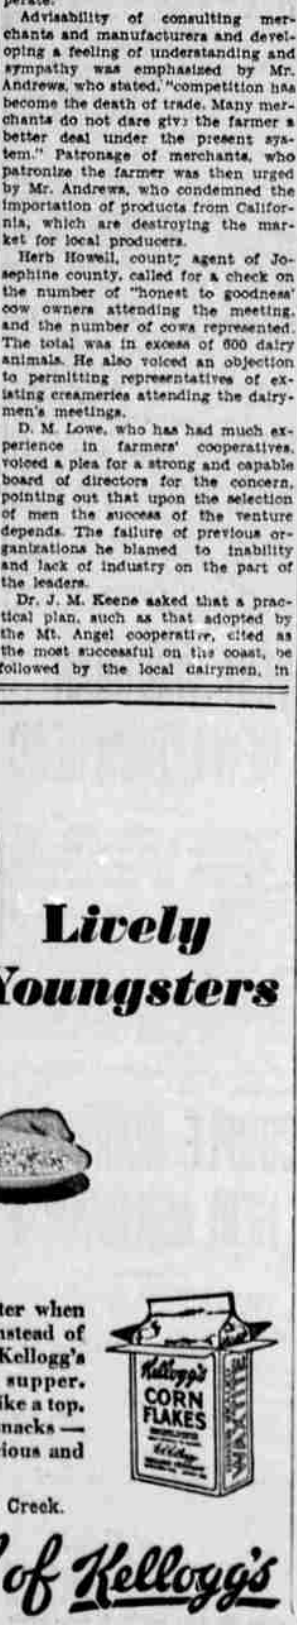

The session will open at 8 o'clock on the mezzanine floor of the Hotel Medford and all persons interested in the welfare of the University of Oregon, Oregon State college and the normal schools of Oregon are invited to attend the meeting.

While it is felt that the people of the state are too well informed to adopt a bill, involving so much expense, and the abandonment of so much school property, the need for organized opposition is also realized, to carry information to people, who have not followed closely recent developments, for promotion of the merger.

Lucky Strike CIGARETTES
"IT'S TOASTED"

"Nature in the Raw" is seldom MILD

—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes

They are not present in Luckies ... the mildest cigarette you ever smoked

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

"It's toasted" That package of mild Luckies

"If a man write a better book, preach a better sermon, or make a better mousetrap than his neighbor, tho he build his house in the woods, the world will make a beaver path to his door."—RALPH WALDO EMERSON.
Does not this explain the world-wide acceptance and approval of Lucky Strike?
