Visitors Greeted At Large Affair; C. A. R. Hostesses

The dinner given Friday evening by General Joseph Lane society, Children of the American Revolution honoring Mrs. John H. Hall, state director of the children's society and Mrs. John Richardson, state regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution was one of the chief social events of the week.

Miss Frances Perry, jr. president, graciously presided, introducing the speaker, Mrs. Richardson in her talk told the children of the grave danger confronting our country at the present time, but she especially stressed the problems which will be theirs as future citizens, for at the present time there is an organization known as the "Young Pioneers" which has a branch in Portland. "This society is teaching the overthrow of our government, the non-existence of a God, and defiance of all the accepted ideals of the American people."

Mrs. Hall told of the prize being offered by Judge Tucker, who is state president of the Sons of the American Revolution, and urged all the members of the society to enter the contest. Mrs. Hall also pointed out the need for the members to enter into the activities of the community and take part in relief work when possible.

Mrs. F. S. Gannett, past state director, was also a guest of honor and expressed her pleasure in being at the meeting.

As this was the fifth anniversary of the society, a lovely birthday cake was cut by Mrs. D'Albini, local organizer and its president. She told briefly of its work during the past years.

Mrs. Dixon, regent of Crater Lake chapter, brought greetings from the mother society.

Misses Margaret Childers and Mary Louise McElhose each played piano numbers. Misses Frances and Elizabeth Perry gave instrumental numbers and Lela Henderson a reading.

Each member introduced her mother, which included Meadames Childers, Ferry, Holt, Wilm, McElhose, Henderson and Gifford.

HOW THE BANK CONTRIBUTES TO COMMUNITY WELFARE

Why does a Bank exist?

Three very good reasons for a bank's existence might be stated as follows: First, to provide a place of safekeeping for funds; second, to speed up and make more convenient the handling of transactions; third, to expand the use of money through legitimate credit.

To keep all your money on your person or in hiding-places wouldn't be safe. Then, again, it wouldn't be convenient to march from door to door paying butcher, baker and candlestick-maker in cash. Nor would you care to think of all activities coming to a halt at seasonal periods for lack of a source of temporary credit.

So, when you think of your bank, just remember how many steps it saves you, how many conveniences it brings to you, how much freedom from anxiety it affords you, how much breadth it gives to your activities. And, as a result, the more use you have for a bank the more serviceable it becomes.
