TRIAL OF BATES WILL WAIT TERM OPENING OCT. 24

Trial of F. A. Bates, aged Gold Hill miner, indicted by the grand jury last spring, for alleged threatening to commit a felony, as one of the chapters in the Foot Creek mine political controversy, has been postponed until the term of the circuit court, which starts Monday, October 24.

Bates, and his daughter, Mrs. Margaret Lund, according to reports received by authorities and this paper, have moved to Linn county. The Bates case does not appear on the calendar of the circuit court for the final week of the present term. His approval, or that it will count in that day. The motive underlying it may be recognized and rewarded, but it is better to give one hour in accord with his orders than to minister a whole lifetime disregarding his commands. Ignorant as we are of the process by which God's goal is to be gained, it is the utmost imprudence to ignore His mind in seeking to serve Him.

Concerned with our contacts with mankind, and the failure of humanity, closes with a glimpse of Utopia. The saint sings to himself, give thanks to God for all through Christ, and are subject to one another. What more would be needed for an ideal existence? We should be overflowing with happiness, glorifying God, and serving our fellowmen. If all men did this the problem of this era would be settled. But, alas, only the spirit of God can occasion such a condition. Therefore, let us be filled with that spirit, through God's Word, and, in some

A motion will be heard also in the libel suit of F. A. Bates against the Mail-Tribune. All the libel suits are an outgrowth of the disturbed conditions on Foots creek. Judge Brand will hear testimony and depositions in the Nalley will suit, now scheduled for Monday, October 24.

The breach of promise suit of Marguerite Kirksmith of Seattle, against Robert W. Frame of Central Point, for $25,000 alleged heart balm is scheduled to start Monday before Circuit Judge Norton. The plaintiff claims that Frame failed to keep alleged promises to marry.

A. E. Kellogg Says True Religious Faith Holds Hope for Dark World

To the Editor: It is evident to all that this is an era of futility. An apparent gain in one direction is balanced by a loss in another. Men are riding a merry-go-round. They get nowhere. The same mirage looms up before them as in all previous eras, but it moves onward when it is approached. Some are not certain but that mankind is moving backward. We know that they are riding to a fall. The era of God's indignation is impending. Shall we participate in this futility? That would be most unwise. We are exhorted to reclaim it (Eph. 5:16.) God's purpose is being carried out in this era as in all others. Our wisdom is to fall in line with his plans and avoid vain human devices for man's amelioration apart from God. The days are wicked. We cannot alter that. They will become more so, until Christ comes. But this very condition is fruitful soil for God's gracious activities. Business depression may cause spiritual prosperity.

The will of the Lord is the key to conduct. If we are to anticipate the lack of Christ and investigate the lack of real efficiency in so-called Christian service, we would be astonished to find how little of it is in accord with the will of the Lord. A vast proportion of the efforts of God's servants is based on ignorance of his attention, and utter disregard of His administrations. Let no one imagine that such services will receive His approval, or that it will count in that day. The motive underlying it may be recognized and rewarded, but it is better to give one hour in accord with his orders than to minister a whole lifetime disregarding his commands. Ignorant as we are of the process by which God's goal is to be gained, it is the utmost imprudence to ignore His mind in seeking to serve Him.

Concerned with our contacts with mankind, and the failure of humanity, closes with a glimpse of Utopia. The saint sings to himself, give thanks to God for all through Christ, and are subject to one another. What more would be needed for an ideal existence? We should be overflowing with happiness, glorifying God, and serving our fellowmen. If all men did this the problem of this era would be settled. But, alas, only the spirit of God can occasion such a condition. Therefore, let us be filled with that spirit, through God's Word, and, in some measure at least, we will realize the ideal of which men dream. The unbeliever gives thanks for nothing. The infant saint is grateful for good. The mature man of God gives thanks for all things, bad as well as good, for he realizes that all is of God, and is destined to contribute to his beneficent end, however unfortunate its present aspect may seem. A conviction of God's deity, of his power to attain the goal He has set before Him, of His ability to use the evil as well as the good in his designs, of the great truth that He is operating the universe in accord with the counsel of His will (Eph. 1:11), is of the utmost value in determining conduct and in harboring happiness. The saint who cannot take the life of life from God's hands with son of manness has hardly begun the life of faith.

Singler Campaign Recalls Father's

Twenty years after August Singler was elected sheriff of Jackson county one of his sons aspires to the political field. Val A. Singler, oldest son of August, comes out for city treasurer, bringing back old memories of the campaign in 1912 when August came out with a card, saying "The Party I Am Working For." On this card was the picture of his family. Some of the old timers will remember this as it was instrumental in winning the election.

Val has been a resident of this city for a good number of years and has had experience in general office and accounting work for the past 12 or 13 years, being employed in the past by Mason Ehrman & Co., First National bank, Copco and Associated Oil. He is a graduate of the local high school and well known here. There is a rumor out that Mr. Singler does not live in Medford. This is to advise all concerned that he is a
