POLITICAL PICTURE ON STUDIO SCREEN TODAY

"The Dark Horse," which is now playing at the Studio theater affords a most timely glimpse of behind-the-scenes activities of political leaders. Aside from its timeliness, the picture apparently is an authentic story of political manipulation, high-lighted by comedy and melodramatic action in which Warren William, the sensation of "The Mouthpiece," plays the role of a "maker of men."

To The Citizens Of This Community

The people of every community have a right to the advantages of Motion Picture.

Fox-West Coast theatres are apparently trying to deliberately stop us from securing suitable pictures to show at the Holly, thereby forcing it to close. If successful, many pictures produced may not be shown in Medford. Do you sanction such methods of competition in your community? Do you believe that any organization should have a monopoly? If you do not, support the independent theatres.
