

RECIPROCIITY WITH LOS ANGELES PLEA OF TRADE EXPERT

To stimulate a greater sale of Oregon products in Los Angeles, and of Los Angeles products in Oregon, Albert V. Weigel, domestic trade commissioner of the Los Angeles chamber of commerce, arrived in Medford today to hold conferences with the officials of the Medford chamber of commerce and local business men.

"We can rapidly accelerate each other's development by a more consistent interchange of our products," Weigel informed his audience at luncheon at the Hotel Medford last night. "Your producers know that Los Angeles has become the largest customer for food products in the west, as shown by the fact that our fruit and vegetable purchases from Oregon increased from 238 carloads in 1929 to 824 carloads in 1931. Our butter purchases last year amounted to 2,217,770 pounds; cheese, 4,508,451 pounds, dressed poultry, 1,344,703 pounds, and eggs, 13,821 cases. All of these amounts are equal to or larger than any previous year, with dressed poultry showing a gain of 30 per cent and eggs almost 200 per cent over 1931. Reliable authorities estimate that we purchased almost 25,000 head of Oregon cattle, calves, hogs and sheep. In this connection, it occurs to us that your possible producers of hops are overlooking the Los Angeles demand which sometimes reaches far into the middle west for its hog supply.

"Through your ports we received 163,964,000 feet of Oregon lumber and millions of dollars of furniture, other forest products, canned and packed foods, grain, flour, with no figures available as to the amounts received by rail. "We thoroughly appreciate the fact that the western states are buying tremendous quantities of our manufactured products and have helped us to become an industrial center. Data from United States government sources show an annual production of $1,050,000,000 of practically all types of manufactured products, and over 5,000 factories in the Los Angeles industrial zone. We are all mutually benefited by this reciprocity.

"The Los Angeles chamber of commerce will be very glad to assist your producers and show them how to secure more business in Los Angeles, as it has done in the past. Naturally, we expect your people to give preference to your own manufactured products, but we want you to buy in Los Angeles when you are seeking an outside source of supply." Among those who participated in the general discussion following Mr. Weigel's address were W. A. Gates, Raymond Reter and C. C. Lemmon. W. S. Bolger presided at the meeting.

Mr. Weigel is spending a month in the state and while here can be reached through the chamber of commerce.

Members of the California Oregon Power company forum joined the chamber of commerce at the luncheon meeting today.

MOVIE STAR PAYS FLEETING VISIT

Henna hair, black eyebrow lines, conservative makeup and wearing a plain black dress and a gray, broad-tail fur coat, was Betty Lee Marche, motion picture actress from Hollywood, who stopped in Medford overnight en route to Seattle "to be shot" in some wharf scenes for "Joan Carson," a Paramount picture in which Carol Lombard is being starred.

"The cameramen and the rest of the company went north by boat," she said this morning before continuing her trip on the stage. "But I always get sick, and I prefer riding on buses." Miss Marche, a native of Seattle, said that her work in the north would be more or less a vacation, as she would be "home." The company will be in Seattle about 30 days, and from there will continue to Vancouver, B. C.

Miss Marche was formerly with Warner Brothers, and appeared with James Cagney in "The Great Gambler."
