

G. O. P. BIG PUSH UNDER WAY JUST AS LEADERS SAID

Chieftains Meant What They Said After Maine Went Democratic—Heavy Cannonading On All Fronts.

By HERBERT PLUMMER
WASHINGTON—There can be no doubting that the republican chieftains meant what they said when, after Maine went democratic in its state elections, the word went out that a more intensified campaign for President Hoover's reelection would be waged.

The first of October saw heavy cannonading all along the G. O. P. front. Republican big guns were leaving no sector untouched.

President Hoover sped to Des Moines to make the first of his campaign addresses. Vice-President Curtis dipped into the south in the so-called border states, then pushed on for an extensive visit through the west.

Opden Mills, secretary of the treasury and one of the President's foremost political advisers, was on the road for a trip that will carry him to the Pacific coast and back.

The youthful Patrick J. Hurley, secretary of war and another of the cabinetiers who advises the President on political matters, was preparing for a whirlwind plane tour of Oklahoma which called for nine speeches in only two days.

Tireless Pat Hurley
Small wonder that Everett Sanders, chairman of the republican national committee, could chuckle at campaign headquarters and announce triumphantly:

"... The 1932 campaign, both in organization work and in carrying the party message to the voters, is further advanced than at the same stage of any presidential contest I can remember."

The pace being set by Hurley perhaps is the most striking example of the republican big push. Hurley's ability to cover territory is uncanny. Almost daily one reads of his appearance before this or that republican rally—always in a different city, sometimes in a different section of the country.

Already he has won the name of "Pat, the tireless."

Nine Talks in Two Days
His attempt to stump his home state of Oklahoma, making nine speeches in two days, is illustrative of his capacity. Five speeches the first day and four the second are a rather large order for any man.

Goosep has it that Hurley thought so, too. But with a plane he decided that he might be able to make it after all.

Perhaps another reason prompted Hurley to make the effort. He has the reputation—earned at the very beginning of the political open season—of being the republicans' No. 1 "cheer leader." The democrats have had a lot of fun "kidding" him about this.

Maybe the Hon. Pat wants to show the home folks a few things.

ELKS MAKE PLANS FOR FALL ACTIVITY

At the regular weekly meeting of the Medford Elks lodge held last night, plans were perfected for two coming events on the Elks calendar that promise to be exceptionally popular in fraternal circles. The first dance of the fall season will be held on Monday evening, October 31st and will be open to all Elks and invited guests. The second event of interest to Elks is the election night party planned for Tuesday evening, November 8th which all active and unaffiliated Elks are urged to attend.

Hot election news will be received via radio and telegraph and loads of entertainment is being arranged by H. C. "Jerry" Jerome. In addition it is planned to have a banquet starting at 6:30 with tentative plans calling for a vaudeville dinner to be prepared by P. C. Bigham and his committee that has functioned so well in the past. A feature of the evening will be a speech by Floyd H. Thompson, grand exalted ruler, which will be reproduced from a special phonograph record made especially for this occasion.

A resolution was adopted to help out a special reinstatement campaign whereby for the time until April 1st, 1933 Elks whose membership has lapsed may be re-instated by paying only a $2.00 fee and their dues for the current period. This plan is expected to result in at least a hundred reinstatements and a large committee will be named to handle the details of this reinstatement campaign.

Memorial service was held for Glen Fabrick with W. A. Gates giving a very fine talk on the active and constructive life of brother Fabrick.

Catarrhal Deafness and Head Noises

If you have catarrhal deafness, or head noises, caused by catarrh, or if phlegm drops in your throat, secure proper treatment at once. Sprays, salves and inhalers may bring you a temporary relief, but permanent results can only come from a constitutional treatment that will expel the catarrhal poison from your system.

Get from Jarmin & Woods or your druggist 1 oz. of Farmint (Double strength). Take this home and add 1/2 pint hot water and a little sugar. Take a tablespoonful four times a day; clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy, mucous stop dropping. All sufferers from catarrhal deafness or head noises need the simple, pleasant, inexpensive Farmint treatment.
