

NORTHWEST VISIT BY HOOVER URGED FOR FINAL DRIVE

another Roosevelt speech a few days before election.

Both sides claimed victory as the campaign approached its final week. Washington Democratic leaders predicted a 100,000 majority for Roosevelt in this state and in Oregon. Democratic leaders claimed a 20,000 edge. Washington Republicans said the "race will be close," and G. O. P. managers in Oregon confidently predicted Oregon will remain in its usual place in the Republican column.

Registration Gains.
A big increase in registration was recorded in both Washington and Oregon, and with it a marked increase in Democratic votes in the primary.

In Washington, the Democratic vote increased from 42,591 in the 1928 primary to 137,275 in the primary last month. The Republican primary vote in 1928 was 292,897, compared with 230,059 in the September, 1932, primary. Thus the Democrats showed a gain of 155,344 votes compared with a loss of 62,828 by the Republicans.

In Oregon, the Democrats gained 56,000 in registration totals this year compared with a Republican gain of 11,000.

Oregon showed a total increase in registration of about 50,000 over 1928 figures, while Washington's registration increased about 100,000.

Oregon Once for Demo.
Only once in the past has Oregon gone Democratic on a presidential ticket. That was in 1912, when Wilson carried the state by about 15,000 votes.

Washington voted for Wilson in 1912 by about 15,000 votes, after having given "Teddy" Roosevelt a majority of 27,000 votes in 1912.

Both Washington and Oregon voted for Hoover in 1928, about two to one.

Minor parties are represented on the ballots in both states. In Washington the strength of the Liberty party has been giving concern to both Republican and Democratic candidates, especially in some of the county races. The Liberty party leaders claim a strength of 150,000 paid members. The Washington ballot also will carry the names of Socialist, Labor, Prohibition, Socialist-Labor, Farmer-Labor and Communist party candidates. In Oregon, the Communist party is well represented by candidates for various state and national offices.

Dry Issue to Rear.
Both states will vote on measures to repeal the state bone-dry laws, but prohibition played a comparative minor role in the campaigns for either state or national offices.

In Washington the veteran Republican, Sen. Wesley L. Jones of the "3 and 10" dry law fame, is challenged by Homer T. Bone, a liberal running on the Democratic ticket. Rep. Ralph A. Horr was elected out for the Republican nomination of the First Washington district in congress by John F. Miller, whom Horr displaced two years ago. A youthful attorney, Marion A. Zlonchek, is Miller's Democratic opponent.

In Oregon, the veteran Republican congressman, Willis C. Hawley, co-author of the much-discussed Smoot-Hawley tariff legislation, is watching the campaign from the sidelines, having been eliminated in the primary by James W. Mott. Harvey Starkweather, Democrat, is Mott's opponent.

5 WORLD POWERS MARK TRAIL FOR NEW PEACE DEAL

ment in disrupted northern Manchuria.

The Chinese troops have cut off a large area of northern Manchuria from the world, and several hundred Japanese are held in Manchuria, just across the Russian border. Half of these may be released through the good offices of the Soviet. Besides, Russia has been sending Japan daily reports on the Manchurian situation. Two Yoshike Matsukata, who will lead Japan's defense of her Manchurian policy before the League of Nations in November, will first visit Moscow. There he presumably will seek to ascertain Russia's attitude toward the Lytton report to the league, which condemned Japanese aggression.

Secrecy on Pact.
A veil of secrecy, however, covers the prospect of a non-aggression pact between these two powers, although Russia has long openly sought such an agreement.

Paris dispatches said the new French disarmament scheme has a security section which is based on the idea of strengthening the Kellogg-Briand pact outlawing war. "In line with this policy," it was learned authoritatively, France has virtually reached an agreement with Russia on terms of a non-aggression pact. There was no amplification.

Norman Davis, the American representative at the disarmament conference, went to the French capital today to talk over disarmament with Premier Edouard Herriot.

Mr. Davis left London last night after reaching an agreement in principle with Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald to harmonize the Hoover disarmament proposals and the British viewpoint.

It was authoritatively stated that the conversations between Mr. Davis, Mr. MacDonald and Sir John Simon, the foreign secretary, had thinned out the Anglo-American differences to the point of unity of purpose at Geneva.
