

RIGID ECONOMY IS ROOSEVELT'S PROMISE TO U. S.

Enters White House as 32nd President—Committed to Program of Retrenchment Was Theme of Campaign

By KIRKE SIMPSON.
WASHINGTON — (AP) — Franklin Delano Roosevelt will enter the White House as 32nd president next March, committed by party platform and personal pledge to a program of wide retrenchment in the cost of federal government to taxpayers.

Constantly reiterated, that pledge has been a major theme of the economic discussion which marked his victorious campaign. Repeatedly the president-elect has promised an effort to slash ordinary expenses of government by 25 per cent.

What that goal will amount to in dollars and cents will depend upon what happens to annual appropriations in the session of congress which convenes in December to provide funds for the next fiscal year.

Throughout his nationwide campaigning, however, Mr. Roosevelt insisted that a program of drastic retrenchment sufficient to reach a balanced budget was the essential step toward economic recovery.

This was the foundation stone of every auxiliary proposal he made for restoring trade at home or with other countries, for curing unemployment and for aiding farm recovery. It was even the basis for his insistence upon repeal of the 18th amendment and early modification of the Volstead act.

Mr. Roosevelt, during the campaign, made one definite pledge toward carrying out this fundamental step that went beyond the four corners of the democratic platform. No man would be seated at his cabinet table, he promised, who had not pledged himself to loyal co-operation with his retrenchment policy.

In the course of his swing through the country on the most far-reaching campaign tour of any man elected to the presidency in years, Mr. Roosevelt filled in the outline of his purposes as president with detailed proposals as to many matters.

They constituted the blueprint of the "new deal" to which he pledged himself, in his speech to the Chicago convention accepting the presidential nomination.

A nine-point program of remedies designed to prevent recurrence of the economic crash marked Mr. Roosevelt's first major address of the campaign, delivered at Columbus, Ohio, in August.

This program called for rigid scrutiny and control by the federal government of securities based on interstate commerce, and restriction of the use of reserve bank funds in speculative operations. As a principle of executive policy he pledged himself to avoid even implied government approval of private loans abroad.

An eight-point program for control of public utilities supplemented this general outline during Mr. Roosevelt's western tour.

This program included publicity for security issues, capital investment and indebtedness, ownership of stocks and bonds, and inter-company contracts; regulation of holding companies by the federal power commission; criminal statutes to cover false representations, and substitution of the "prudent investment" for the "reproduction cost" theory in rate making.

A seven-point program for railroads, including extension of interstate commerce commission authority to buses and trucks, also was unfolded during that tour. Mr. Roosevelt described it in brief as designed "to avoid financial excesses, adjust plans to traffic, co-ordinate all carrier services, protect the worker and, above all, serve the public reasonably, swiftly and well."

Has Farm Aid Plan.
At another point Mr. Roosevelt outlined six "specifications" for a plan for farm recovery which he said he endorsed, and on which he understood "most of the reasonable leaders of agriculture" were agreed.

Federal legislative aspects that he touched upon included reorganization of the agriculture department to provide machinery for national planning, and reduction in and more equitable tax distribution.

Among other steps to which the president-elect has committed himself are the substitutions of "negotiated" tariffs for the present method of tariff making; an international initiative in calling an international silver conference, and the re-establishment of an actual cash surplus in the treasury as the only condition that would warrant consideration of any advance payment of the soldiers' bonus.

IDAHO DEMOCRATS SWEEP FAR AHEAD

BOISE, Idaho, Nov. 8. — (AP) — On returns from 442 of Idaho's 819 precincts, Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt led President Hoover, 87,250 to 57,762.

On major state and congressional offices the vote in the same number of precincts was:

Senator: Pope (D) 50,827; Thomas, (R) 37,601.
Congressman, first district: White (D) 23,576; French (R) 17,546.
Congressman, second district: Corbin (D) 27,042; Smith (R) 22,825.
Governor: Ross (D) 55,232; Deffenbach (R) 36,347.

Background of Mrs. Roosevelt's Life Shows Varied Interests of New First Lady

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the new President of the United States, assumes her White House responsibilities no novice in public life and affairs. At the extreme left she is shown en route to a social function, then greeting her neighbors on her first day as mistress of the governor's mansion.

NEW YORK. — (AP) — A warm personal interest in many things shapes the daily activities of the nation's new first lady.

In Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt's adherence to a well filled calendar of affairs in her home and in business friends see nothing abstract and perfunctory.

"Mrs. Roosevelt"—one close to her has said—"is interested in many things. She is not satisfied merely to be interested, but seeks to express her interest in active participation and with actual accomplishment."

For example, Mrs. Roosevelt believes capital should be put to work to give employment. She founded a furniture shop on the Roosevelt Hyde Park estate to create an industry for local people.

She has theories on educational psychology, and so she became part owner and teacher at the Todhunter School for Girls in New York.

She was interested in the welfare of the poor, and so she took active part in the work of the Rivington street settlement home in New York. She was deeply interested in child psychology, and so she became the editor of a magazine on children.

She believed in the gubernatorial candidacy of Colonel Herbert Lehman. Her campaign speeches for him followed naturally.

Meanwhile, ardently assisting her husband in his political career, she was rearing a family of five children.

Though in Washington, she will continue to edit the magazine, on which her daughter, Mrs. Curtis Dall, is her assistant.

Residence in Washington during the days of the Wilson administration, when her husband was assistant secretary of the navy, gave her acquaintance with Washington society.

To her social contacts in the famous executive mansion, where her uncle, the late Theodore Roosevelt, spent two terms, Mrs. Roosevelt's friends are expecting her to bring the impress of a vital personality.

An Old-Fashioned Modern; That's Mrs. John Garner

Mrs. John N. Garner, wife of known at left as she appeared soon woman should help her husband at the vice president-elect believes a has followed out that policy. She is on the path to success and she after Mr. Garner entered congress 30 years ago. At right she is shown as she appeared in 1905; below in 1910, and above as she appears today.

UVALDE, Tex. — (AP) — Picture of an old-fashioned woman doing strictly modern work, and there you have Mrs. John Nance Garner, wife of the vice president-elect.

Mrs. Garner herself insists she is old-fashioned, but as old to her husband she displays the modern woman's executive ability in office matters.

When the vice president-elect held office in his younger days in Texas, Mrs. Garner became his secretary and she continues to assist him and handle his correspondence which has become voluminous the last year.

There was a time, however, when Mrs. Garner didn't think so much of John Nance Garner. But that was before they were married. Mrs. Garner, then Marietta Rheiner, lived down the river in New Valley county, Texas. She didn't know Garner personally, but she had heard a good deal about his propensity for card-playing as well as about his determination in getting things he wanted.

Garner sought to be a judge. Miss Rheiner opposed the appointment, and worked diligently to stop it. Her efforts were in vain, however, because he was appointed. Some time later she met him—and they were married in 1896.

When Mr. Garner went to congress, Mrs. Garner says she might have given up her secretarial work but she found herself so completely interwoven with her husband's political affairs that it was difficult to quit.

Mrs. Garner says she feels it is the wife's business to smooth out all difficulties in the pathway of her husband's march to success. "Religion doesn't amount to anything," she says, "if it is not in every moment of everyday life."

"In this crisis I think women have two outstanding duties—to be strong in faith and to accept the need for retrenchment, to do it gracefully and to make their homes and their husbands as happy and peaceful as possible. What else women can do is the problem of each individual."

The Garners have one son, Tully, and a granddaughter, Genevieve, who is credited with remarkable powers in "boosting" the vice president-elect.

Dependable Insurance Is The Only Kind Worth Having

When insuring your property make certain that you are assured of fair and speedy settlement of claims. Losing your property is tragedy enough without having to worry about settlements.

The dependable fire, casualty and automobile companies we represent, have, gained, the reputation of settling claims promptly. It's a big help to get prompt action when in urgent need of money. But in order to do this, the companies must have prompt payment of premiums in accordance with their rule of either cash or forty-five days from date of policy. We do not have mutual, reciprocal or cut-rate companies.

I am recuperating from injuries sustained in an automobile accident and have been instructed by my physician to rest and stay completely away from work for at least another month. Mrs. Gertrude Fredenburg Greb, who has had seven years' experience in accounting and insurance, Mrs. Mabel Showers and my brother L. A. Wakefield will have charge of the office during my absence. Also F. J. Newman and Geo. Neilson, Attorneys, will represent my agency.

I have been serving friends and clients here for the past twenty-four years and have always been glad to extend time on payments, but at this time I am very much in need of some settlement of your accounts and your prompt attention to same will surely be appreciated.

Very truly yours,
