BAKER—Rock applied to local dirt streets

One case where the food they need is the food they like

MOST of us eat food because we like it—and if it is good for us—that's fine.

This is particularly true of children. Here's a food that is full of nourishment and energy—Amaizo Golden Syrup. It builds up vigor and resistance. Children are crazy about it on bread and it never distresses them. The first syrup to be accepted for infant feeding by the American Medical Association. What more can be said about its value as a food?
