

AUTO FEE SLASH MAY PERIL PLANS FOR ROAD WORK

Highway Association Meeting Told Drastic Reduction Will Mean Problem for Regions Interested

Reports covering the activities of the Oregon Pacific Highway association during the past year, election of officers for the organization, and projects to be considered during the coming year were the principal items of business considered at the meeting of the association, held at the Hotel Umpqua, in Roseburg yesterday, according to a report made public today by W. S. Bolger, president of the Medford chamber of commerce, who was the official representative from Medford.

A discussion of highway finances also occupied much of the attention of the representatives of cities along the Pacific highway, which was brought forward by Joseph Shelton, manager of the Oregon State Motor association.

It was Mr. Shelton's opinion that pressure will undoubtedly be brought upon the state legislature for drastic reduction in automobile license fees, and those interested in the promotion of good roads must take the lead in solving this problem, lest drastic steps be taken which may permanently cripple Oregon's highway construction and maintenance programs.

Mr. Shelton stated in his remarks that it is probable that the Oregon State Motor association may go on record as favoring a 50 per cent reduction in motor license fees, without increasing the present gasoline tax, which, according to statistics presented, has already reached as high a point as can be efficiently collected. He stated that a further increase in the gas tax would bring in diminishing returns, according to experience in other states where higher gas taxes have been tried.

The Pacific Highway association went on record as further reiterating its request that the state highway commission establish a definite program for highway expansion, covering at least five years, and that after this program has been approved and adopted, the program for new projects be closed for that period. It was believed that this is the only satisfactory way in which a definite, regular program can be made effective.

A legislative committee to confer with the governor's committee on license fee revision, and to consider legislative matters affecting the Pacific highway, was appointed by Ed Bailey, president of the association. The new committee will be composed of Dr. Gerald Smith, Woodburn, chairman, Ed Turnbull, Eugene; A. C. Marsters, Roseburg; C. H. Demaray, Grants Pass; and H. S. Deuel, Medford, Commission Lauded.

A resolution commending the action of the state highway commission in starting construction work on the two projects recommended last year by the Pacific Highway association was passed unanimously at yesterday's meeting. These two projects include the reconstruction of the Portland-Salem section of the highway and the Skikyou project. C. H. Demaray, Grants Pass, a member of the special committee appointed at the Medford meeting, reported that the Skikyou project was progressing satisfactorily. His report was supplemented by remarks by Mayor J. Edward Thornton of Ashland.

A publicity program for the Pacific Highway was discussed, and left in the hands of a special committee appointed to consider the feasibility of publishing material for release through the various tourist agencies. This committee will report to the executive committee of the association some time in December.

Local Men Attend.

Included in those present at yesterday's meeting were E. P. Bailey, John Anderson, Shy Huntington, R. A. Booth, E. R. Morris, Guy Piles, Howard Merriam, J. E. Turnbull, R. H. Parsons and E. G. Harlan of Eugene; W. S. Bolger, C. T. Baker, Medford; J. M. Thornton and H. L. Claycomb, Ashland; C. H. Demaray, J. B. Harvey, P. B. Herman and Walter Stockwell, Grants Pass; Dr. Gerald Smith, Woodburn; Leonard Gilkey, Albany; Fred Perrine, Oregon City; Ray Alexander, Portland; J. S. Shelton, Portland; A. C. Marsters, J. P. Ewell, W. C. Harding, B. S. Nichols and Foster Butler, Roseburg.

SOCIETY and Clubs

Parish Dinner Large Affair of Thursday.

One of the largest affairs in the history of the church and one thoroughly enjoyed was the dinner last evening at St. Mark's Parish hall. The hall was beautifully decorated for the occasion in chrysanthemums, autumn leaves and red berries and the long tables were lined with more than 100 guests.

James Stevens, Medford's favorite soloist, entertained with a group of songs and was in exceptionally fine voice. He was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Roberta Ward Bebb and each number brought repeated and enthusiastic encores.

Miss LaMurie Bebb also entertained with two numbers, "Alice Blue Gown" and "Beautiful Lady," supplementing song with the dance, by giving in costume a toe dance for the choruses. She was also enthusiastically applauded by the audience and accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Bebb.

Fashion Puts Fur to Varied New Uses 'As Sleeves, Pockets, and Even Belts

Unusual treatment of furs is noted in winter suits and coats. Pelts are used not only for collars and cuffs, but also for every other part of the costume. In the brown wool street ensemble at left Lanvin uses beaver for the sleeves, narrow collar and band.

Black and white are strikingly combined in the broadtail afternoon wrap (center) worn by Myrna Loy, actress. A black fox border on the sleeves and an ermine-lined tie are features. At right, blue fox is used with caracul in the wrap worn by Gall Patrick.

PARIS — (AP) — Fashion in using furs in more varied and extraordinary ways this winter than ever before.

"Fur trims" no longer mean simply "collar and cuffs." Pelts are now used for every part of coat or suit from neck to hem. Pockets, sleeves and even belts are made of flat furs, while fluffy pelts swirl in unusual ways about smart women's figures.

Sleeves show the most interesting development in these new fur fashions. Some coats display large bishop sleeves made entirely of beaver, others show shoulder puffs of galeak, while still others are accented at the elbow with bands which wind about the arm.

Cuffs are widely varied, some models displaying deep fur trims extending from wrist to elbow, others showing simply a narrow band.

Collars have taken on new forms. The old shawl design, so long in vogue, has been replaced in fashion's favor by high-cushion models which frame the face, broad scarfs tied in a trig bow on one side of the throat, high narrow collars extending their trimming down the side of the coat and tiny pelerine capes which give a piquant air to the silhouette.

The fur trims used on the upper part of fur coats are an outstanding note in the mode. Many models show entire bodices or detachable boleros made of galeak or broadtail while another category uses the same flat pelts to form yokes and upper sleeves. Pelts of every variety are used for these new fur-decked coats. Foxes, thrust into the background for the past several seasons, have come into their own again, and silver, beige, brown and blue fox swirls luxuriously about the shoulders of many afternoon models.

The flat pelts hold their popularity, however, since they are particularly adaptable to the new trims. Astrakhan, Persian lamb, galeak, broadtail and beaver are used for scores of street coats, while sports models favor panther or leopard.

White furs, such as ermine or broadtail, trim the most formal afternoon coats.

and Representative Rainey of Illinois, Democratic floor leader and ranking member of the committee, agreed today to accept. Representative Doughton of North Carolina, Democrat; Hawley of Oregon, Trendway of Massachusetts, and Bachrach of New Jersey, Republicans, are expected here Tuesday night in preparation for the conference.

Opposition Voiced.
Meanwhile, Rainey told newspapermen he could not think what phase of the situation President Hoover had to submit to the group "except to revive the old war debt commission, to which I am opposed."

Rainey and Collier both have voiced opposition to revision of the debts or extension of the moratorium.
Representative Pons of North Carolina, chairman of the rules committee and Democratic dean in the house, today said that "on international matters I want to follow my leader and he is Mr. Franklin D. Roosevelt, our next president."

"However, I have a very deep feeling that the foreign nations are not treating America right in seeking wholesale cancellation or reduction in the debt," Pons said. "I feel as if they ought to show an honest purpose to try to meet their obligations."
