

WALL STREET IS INCLINED TOWARD BACKING CONGRESS

Ministry on December 15th she has a neat alibi for not coming across.

The South American countries are watching France closely and local holders of South American bonds are nervous. French default would set an example several Latin countries yearn for.

Argentina is more likely to honor her obligations than any other Latin debtor. Brazil and Peru—among others—would be less disturbed over making agreements and forgetting all about them.

Most of the financial community thought the second British note set forth a true picture of world conditions. The alarmist attitude is held to be justified by circumstances.

STERLING—This conviction has led to short selling of sterling from important sources. Sterling will also have to run the gauntlet of sales by Americans who have just had their unconverted British bonds paid for in pounds.

DEBITS—There are some strong indications that there was some dirty work at the cross-roads in this war debts business.

The unexpected blast in that first British note nearly bowled Mr. Hoover. The administration had been advised informally to expect something entirely different.

It understood the British would seek reduction of interest rather than principal and ask to make her Dec. 15 payment in her own currency deposited to our credit in the Bank of England. That kind of a proposition could have been submitted to congress and everything would have been perfect.

Instead the British leaped at us hammer and tongs.

That was why Stimson arrived at the White House that day all ailed. It likewise explains why he and Treasury Mills were closeted with Mr. Hoover for something like two hours. It also furnished the excuse for holding up the note until the stock markets had closed.

The stock market likewise had the same advance information. In fact its bad tip is supposed to have come from one of the highest administration sources.

The erroneous dope had a quieting influence on the Street for several days before delivery of the British communication. The market then took a tose.

COUNTY TO SHIFT RESPONSIBILITY FOR TWO WARDS

County authorities today took steps to settle the problem of its two women wards. One is Betty Jane Phillips, 10, and the other is Emalee (Dobby) Mansfield, 22 of Ashland.

The little girl will be placed under care of the Boys' and Girls' Aid society of Portland, and the Mansfield woman will probably be sent to the girls' industrial school. Both have been wards of the county for the past six months.

Betty Jane Phillips is the little maid found last summer with her mother, in a famished condition on the highway near Klamath Falls. The father claimed she had been deserted by her husband, who departed in the family automobile. Klamath county authorities placed them on the county farm. Mother and daughter escaped and came to this city. They were held here until it was determined that the "desertion" by the husband was a racket. The mother was sent to a state institution. Relatives of the girl were unable to assume her care, so she has been a ward of the county, under the care of the jail matron.

The Mansfield woman has been held in the woman's ward of the county jail for five months, as a figure in the robbery of the J. C. Penney

Missionary Leads Services In C. P.

Rev. Joe S. Flacks, who has preached the Gospel in many lands, and who spent eighteen months in China in the midst of the torn and ravished conditions there is stirring his hearers with facts, and with applications of Gospel truth, that will certainly "stick." It is hard to understand how any people can endure such conditions. All are invited to hear Mr. Flacks at the Central Point Federated church this evening, and in the two church services on Sunday.
