THREE RUTHS OUT BUT HOUSE KEEPS WOMEN IN CHAIRS

Two Feminine Representatives Coming in From West in 73rd Congress—Kansas Lady Is Colorful

By Herbert Plummer

WASHINGTON—There'll be one fewer in the feminine bloc of the next congress, but if advance notions mean anything there will be no loss of color among the gentlewomen of the 73rd.

The famed trio of Ruths—Ruth Hanna McCormick, Ruth Bryan Owen and Ruth Baker Pratt—has been broken up. One by one the thrushes are migrating from the house rolls. Mrs. McCormick went out because she had ambitions to be a senator. Mrs. Owen fell in the Florida primaries and Mrs. Pratt in the Roosevelt landslide.

There are two women coming in from the west, however, to sit in the next congress who promise to add much to the feminine bloc.

One is Mrs. Virginia Jencks of Indiana. Mrs. Jencks had to beat two sitting congressmen to come to Washington. In redistricting the state, the legislature placed Representative Gillen, a democrat, and Fred Purnell, a republican, in the same district.

In the democratic primary, Mrs. Jencks defeated Gillen for the right to run against Purnell in the general election. Then on November 8th she handed Purnell a crushing blow.

One From Kansas From the sixth district of Kansas Miss Kathryn O'Loughlin, a tall, slender, bobbed hair brunet, will take the seat occupied by a republican, Charles I. Sparks.

She too, picked her skill against eight men to win the nomination in the democratic primary and then defeated her republican opponent.

Miss O'Loughlin, who at one time rode bronchos for diversion, but who now prefers golf and sewing, took up law to escape the monotony of keeping books for her father in a garage. Politics interested her early and she served for a while as clerk of the house judiciary committee of the Kansas legislature.

Later she edited a legislative service bulletin for an insurance firm. Two years ago she was elected to the Kansas legislature as the state's first woman representative.

She comes to Washington next March as the first Kansas woman ever elected to congress.

Three Veteran Women Back Congress who survived the November elections will be back.

The witty, wise-cracking Mrs. Florence P. Kahn of California begins her fifth consecutive term. Mrs. Mary T. Norton of New Jersey, the first woman to be elected to congress from the democratic party and the first woman to be appointed chairman of a major congressional standing committee, also begins her fifth term. Then, there's also Edith Norris Rogers of Massachusetts.

And with Mrs. Caraway of Arkansas firmly entrenched in her seat in the senate for the next six years, the feminine influence "on the hill" during the next few years, at least, shows no signs of diminishing.

EINSTEIN FORGIVES CONSULAR OFFICIAL

BRERENHAYEN, Germany, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Before sailing today on the steamer Oakland for the United States, Prof. Albert Einstein said he hoped no summary action would be taken against the American consular official who subjected him to questioning about his political beliefs when he applied for a visa early this week.
