GRAND JURY TO END YEAR WITH DRY FUND QUIZ

The grand jury, William T. Orive of Prospect, foreman, convened this morning per schedule. They are expected to be in session for two days and will make their final report of the year on the prohibition enforcement fund, as required by state law. No great amount of work confronts the body, as all the criminal matters were disposed of at previous sessions.

The grand jury, the district attorney's office said, would probably hear testimony in the highway accident last week, that resulted in the death, a few hours later of William Scheble, local resident. Scheble sustained injuries that caused his death a few hours later, when the auto in which he was riding, with his brother, Earl, and Ned Holmes of Central Point, plunged over an embankment near Jackson Hot Springs. The tragedy was attributed to the blinding headlight glare of an approaching auto. The party was returning from a visit with friends in Ashland, when the tragedy occurred.

Circuit Judge H. D. Norton has decided that the petit jury will not be called until after January 1, and that all pending criminal cases will be deferred until then. The criminal case docket includes charges of assault with a deadly weapon, against William P. Glayzer, former resident of the Trail district, and transient laborer. Glayzer is alleged to have slashed his wife, at her home in Ashland last August when efforts at a reconciliation failed. He has been in the county jail since.

Other trials scheduled are: Robert Rose and Jack Ross, indicted for alleged setting of forest fires last summer in the Long Mountain district; Leslie (Buck) Wilson, indicted for receiving goods stolen in the J. C. Penney store robbery at Ashland, and Reinhard A. Rolf, indicted for involuntary manslaughter for the accidental slaying of his hunting companion in mistake for a deer.

HOLIDAY JOURNEYS AT CENT A MILE PLAN OF SOU. PAC.

Equally divided in favor of Christmas cheer and New Year happiness, these stories are true about Louis Howe, Steve Early and Hunter McIntyre comprising the new secretariat. Early and McIntyre will handle the press and movie ends. Both were former Washington newspapermen and more recently in charge of local news-reel headquarters, Paramount and Pathé.

They do not belong to any faction here and therefore should be acceptable to the general run of the press corps.

Behind the further "postponement" of the disarmament conference is the final confession that a year of effort has been wasted.

The nice words that are being said about trivial agreements cannot cover the fact that the conference was one of the world's worst flops. Frank Simonds called the turn exactly before it ever started.

The decision to "postpone" was reached after Norman Davis confidentially advised the state department that he might as well be playing tiddle-de-winks in Palm Beach. He talked himself deaf, dumb and blind at London, Paris, Rome and Geneva, but got nowhere.

His inside reports will make good reading in future histories. They show the irony of international idealism in a pessimistic world.

The men in charge blame the situation rather than any particular nation for the underground collapse of the conference.

France went further in secret conferences than she has ever gone before. Her concessions led the officials at one time in the negotiations to predict a settlement. The French offers were not fully met by either Germany or Italy. The good offices of Great Britain were entirely missing, due to her economic plight. Japan was conducting a war at the time and could not be bothered.

If Roosevelt can do any better with this crowd he will have to be a magician.

As an added feature of the Yule program, the company has arranged to deliver prepaid orders for holiday transportation purchased as a new kind of Christmas gift.

All territory served by Southern Pacific in six western states will be covered by the augmented cent-a-mile offer, it was announced.

MOTION TO STRIKE NEWS COMPLAINT WANDERWELL VISITED HERE LAST SUMMER

A motion to strike the supplementary complaint of the News Publishing company against the Medford News Publishing company, in the receivership action, was filed in circuit court this morning by Attorney M. O. Wilkins of Ashland, representing the Medford News.

The motion sets forth that the plaintiff's complaint is contrary to Oregon law and "repugnant and contradictory to the plea in abatement."

The plaintiff, through Attorneys Gus Newbury and E. E. Kelly, filed a supplemental complaint, setting forth that the license fees of the plaintiff corporation had been filed.

No word has been received from Circuit Judge Lewelling of Linn county, assigned by the state supreme court, on the date he will arrive to set in the case. Judge Lewelling was named when an affidavit of prejudice was filed by the defense against Judge James T. Brand of Coos county, and similar action was taken against Judge Norton in this district.

MRS. ROOSEVELT WILL BE FORCE IN WHITE HOUSE

of a marked falling off in commercial business.

Apart from their financial value, political broadcasts were a pain in the neck to radio officials. No one had full authority for the national broadcasts of either party and there was always a last minute scurrying hither and yon. The details of the election eve programs were not finally settled until the morning of the same day. Also there were thousands of squawks from listeners who didn't want their usual programs sidetracked.

Governor Roosevelt is privately planning to return to Warm Springs in January. . . . He may remain there until just before inauguration. . . . Ex-Princess Alice and Dolly Gann will be able to sit anywhere but in the White House after March 4. . . . The election decided that feud against both contestants. . . . Mrs. Longworth will not go near the White House for the next four years and her friends say she probably will desert Washington and return to Cincinnati. . . . Despite the brave interview given out by Mrs. Gann, she had tears on her cheeks when she greeted Mrs. Hoover afterwards.

The Roosevelt crowd is getting off on the right foot in press relations. These stories are true about Louis Howe, Steve Early and Hunter McIntyre comprising the new secretariat. Early and McIntyre will handle the press and movie ends. Both were former Washington newspapermen and more recently in charge of local news-reel headquarters, Paramount and Pathé.

WANDERWELL VISITED HERE LAST SUMMER

Captain Walter Wanderwell, globe-trotter and suspected war-time spy, mysteriously slain aboard his yacht off Long Beach, Cal., in a sea-thriller as strange as fiction, was a visitor to the Rogue River valley last summer, spending several days in this city and Jackson Pass. He endeavored to interest a number of Josephine county people in a winter cruise aboard his yacht. He was accompanied by his wife and two children, and made an auto trip to Crater lake.

WOCKNER ESCAPE NO SURPRISE FOR LOCAL OFFICIALS

The escape of Warren Wockner, in Wisconsin Saturday while in the custody of Ernest Phillips, Illinois deputy, en route to Waukegan, Ill., to face a kidnaping charge, with years in prison ahead, was no surprise to Jackson county official. Wockner boasted while held in the county jail that he would escape, as an opportunity offered, and he made good.

Wockner and his captor, Deputy Phillips were old acquaintances, according to Sheriff Ralph Jennings. When the officer arrived to take him back, Wockner said:

"Dad, I think a lot of you—almost as much as I do my father, but you will never get me to the penitentiary."

Phillips smiled at the boast, with the announcement that good care would be taken.

According to the sheriff, Wockner also told prisoners in the county jail he would escape, as "I will be an old man when I'm loose again."

Besides the kidnaping charge in Illinois, with a 25 year minimum sentence, Wockner also faced charges in Florida, California, and Washington.

Local authorities say that two men should have been sent to return Wockner, as the strain of three days and nights watching on the train, is too much for one official. Wockner was chained to Phillips at night and in the day time wore an "Oregon boot." While the officer slept, Wockner unlocked the chain and fled.

Wockner was arrested two weeks ago by state police in a cabin six miles from Trail. He has relatives living in that section and in Gold Beach, Ore. He said he had been in the southern Oregon district for five or six months and in hiding most of the time. He had previously escaped from Florida and California authorities.

Wockner during his stay in the county jail was an ideal prisoner and gave no trouble.
