STAGE FAVORITE OF OLD PASSES

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Max Rogers, a nationally known stage favorite for many years, is dead.

He was one of the Rogers brothers, German dialect comedians who provided fun for a generation of theater goers with skits such as "Rogers Brothers in Spain," "Rogers Brothers in Wall Street," "Rogers Brothers at Harvard."

The two brothers opened in Miner's Bowery theater as Max and Gus, and their stage fame grew rapidly.

Max Rogers was 59. His death occurred Monday at his home in Far Rockaway.

J. Fred Woodruff, vice president and former general manager of Campbell-Ewald's home office at Detroit, who comes to San Francisco as general manager of the Pacific Coast division.

Before returning this week to the Detroit headquarters of Campbell-Ewald Company, the national advertising agency directing General Motors and other accounts familiar to the readers of the United States and Canada, H. T. Ewald, president, announced the appointment of J. Fred Woodruff as vice president in charge of the Pacific Coast region. This appointment brings back into active service the former vice president, secretary, treasurer and general manager of the Campbell-Ewald Company who resigned in Detroit about a year ago to devote himself to several personal activities.

One of the most widely experienced executives in the country, Woodruff will have supervision over the Los Angeles, San Francisco and Portland offices which are maintained in keeping with the Campbell-Ewald Company policy of servicing directly its national and other accounts on the coast. W. S. Wood will continue as manager of the Los Angeles office, Earle V. Weller in San Francisco, and Steve Arnett in Portland.

"The Campbell-Ewald Company is very happy to have Mr. Woodruff return to us in this important capacity", said Mr. Ewald who was visiting the coast making a survey of the organization and to meet executives of the General Motors and distributing organizations. "He is thoroughly experienced in Campbell-Ewald Company direction and policies and will, we are sure, bring us closer to the Pacific Coast than ever before. And that always is our desire.

"The Pacific Coast is very important in national merchandising and, therefore, in advertising. For eight years we have maintained a coast organization to better assist us in carrying on our work and bring us directly to the market where we could keep familiar with conditions at all times. For that same reason we have offices in other key points of the United States as well as in Canada."

Griffin Creek

GRIFFIN CREEK, Dec. 28.(Spl.)—School closed Friday evening for the holidays and will open January 3. The teachers and pupils entertained with an interesting program. The P. T. A. served refreshments during the social time and Santa stopped by with a treat for all the kiddies.

Mr. and Mrs. McIntire and family of the Howard district have moved to Griffin creek, adding three new children to the school and one in the freshmen class of Jacksonville high school.

Eugene Hornback and James Bowers, who own and operate Medford's New Aucation House, called at the J. D. Brown home recently.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Hart and daughters spent Christmas day with Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Childs and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Brown entertained with Christmas dinner for Mrs. Brown's mother and father and family and Lee Henderson, a brother-in-law.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Laman and family have moved into Medford. Victor and Keith are staying with their grandparents, so they can continue in this school.

Mr. and Mrs. George Fisk and daughters entertained Christmas day for Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bellinger of Medford and Mr. and Mrs. Warner Kimball and family.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Bohl spent Christmas with Mr. Bohl's mother, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Brown have Mrs. Margaret Bohl and family, been confined to their home with the flu.

Mapleton Man in Strange Fadeout

EUGENE, Ore., Dec. 28.—(AP)—State police today questioned Ed Clark, S. P. conductor, on the theory Ted Frsberg, missing Mapleton man, at first thought drowned in the Siuslaw river, might have boarded a train Sunday night. Fosberg's boat was found upturned in the river shortly after he had been seen rowing across.

Budget Recommendation For Legislature Slices $8,000,000 Off Costs

Savings Under Meier Administration Pointed Out by Director Hanzen; Extra Session May Be Long

By CLAYTON V. BERNHARD, Associated Press Staff Writer.

SALEM, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Political events over the Christmas holiday period, looking toward the opening of the special and regular sessions of the Oregon legislature set for January 3 and 9, respectively, included completion of the 1933-34 budget, several tax studies by the state tax commission and considerable conjecture as to the outcome of the extraordinary session.

The new budget, as outlined by Henry M. Hanzen, budget director, calls for total appropriations for the next two years, including all millages, of $9,339,616. This is a reduction of slightly over $8,000,000 compared to that submitted by Governor A. W. Norblad two years ago. His budget called for $17,344,889.

Savings Cited.

The budget, which will be submitted to the regular session by Governor Julius L. Meier, declares its requests are $5,888,011 below the actual millages and appropriations approved by the 1931 legislature after reducing some of the requested appropriations of Norblad.

Saving under the Meier administration was given in the report at $1,594,554 on appropriations authorized for the past two years, of which $1,031,974 went back to the treasury from the general fund and $562,-580, for the 1932 half-mill contribution to the soldiers' bonus fund was never levied.

Many Items Out.

Hanzen's report further shows that 35 out of the 106 items in the 1931-1932 budget have been entirely eliminated by the budget director with the accompanying recommendation these activities either be made self-sustaining or eliminated entirely. Of the remaining items all have been reduced from 3 to 40 per cent.

Hanzen's statement to the governor declared that if the budget were adhered to by the legislature, and the conservative tax receipts estimates are realized the state deficit, which will stand at $3,650,000 on December 31 of this year, can be reduced to $743,616 by the end of two years. This figure, however, includes a levy by the state to the full amount of the six per cent limitation, either on property or on new taxes devised to relieve property.

Full Levy Mandatory.

Under the Oregon law, the report points out, the full tax levy must be made as long as a deficit remains, irrespective of budget estimates or elimination of state activities.

Hanzen further pointed out that educational institutions, reformatory and eleemosynary institutions took all but $2,000,000 of the 1933-34 estimates. The division of state government costs for the next two years under the budget proposed is:

General administrative, $1,016,476.
Judicial and legal, $539,941.
Military, $203,644.
Educational, $3,987,850.
State institutions and eleemosynary, $2,590,240.
Penal and reformatory, $670,474.
Non-governmental functions, $310,-991.

The state tax commission, which this week will issue its new levy, has already announced a 3-mill levy on all real property, which it is the purpose of the special session to relieve in the form of new sources before time it must be paid.

No Levy for Vets.

The commission has already announced its agreement not to levy a half-mill tax for the World war veterans' state aid commission, as was done last year. This is being done on the recommendation of the bonus commission. The property tax two years ago, including the half-mill bonus figure, was 4½ mills.

Most of the legislators will come to Salem next week pledged to strict economy in public expenditures, but already reports are coming in that friends of state activities scheduled for the skids will fight for their retention. The legislature's task will be difficult.

Some of the eliminated items on which fights are expected include the $308,896 continuing appropriation for experiment and extension work by the state board of higher education. This includes eight experiment stations and the state's share of county agent expense. The budget director contends this fund should be taken out of regular education fund or be entirely discontinued.

Other eliminated items which will bring lobbyists to Salem include that for the state board of health, predatory animal eradication, maintenance of battleship Oregon, Pacific Northwest Livestock exposition, state fair and other fairs to which the state has contributed, Oregon Humane society and several state-aided institutions.

May Extend Time.

Doubt that the extraordinary session can complete its business—the solution of Oregon's financial situation and relief of real property tax—in five days has given rise to belief the session will be extended and the regular assembly postponed. Such action, if necessary, will not be taken until late next week.

Several tax conferences will be held during this week with the purpose of preparing bills for consideration. Several are already in the making, having to do with a sales or consumers' tax, while it is indicated increased income tax measures will also be considered.

The general retail consumers' sales tax bill, which has already been prepared, calls for a two per cent tax for 26 months, from May 1, 1933, to June 30, 1935. The tax would be paid monthly by the retailer and no exemptions for any line of business be provided.

Accompanying the tax bill enacted would be a measure providing for a special election if the act is referended, by May 1. The regular session will also have before it measures to make referendums more difficult, it was understood.

The extraordinary session of the 1933 legislature has been set for 10:30 a. m., January 3.

BELIEVE EVANGELIST LEAPED INTO RIVER

ONTARIO, Ore., Dec. 28.—(AP)—Identification of clothing and personal effects found on a bridge here Tuesday as those of G. A. Ringer of Emmett, Idaho, was made by Mrs. Ringer who, police said, tended to support their theory that the independent evangelist had leaped into the icy waters of the Snake river.

Groups of men were today searching the river for his body. Mrs. Ringer could give no reason why her husband should have taken his life.

POOR FARM INMATES ARE BURNED TO DEATH

STANWOOD, Mich., Dec. 12.—(AP)—Three aged women inmates were burned to death, a dozen persons received minor burns and cuts, and 30 more fled to safety early today when fire destroyed the Mecosta county poor farm near here.

The dead were identified tentatively as Lela Wilson, Rosetta Smith and Emma Waldon.

Nervous Bandit Shoots

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 28.—(AP)—L. R. Daniels, service station employe, was shot through the leg here today by a nervous youth who held him up. When Daniels told the robber he had no money the youth grew nervous, turned, fired a shot and ran.

Boats Burn

SAN PEDRO, Cal., Dec. 28.—(AP)—The San Pedro Boat Building company on Terminal Island and a number of small fishing boats in drydock there were destroyed by fire early today, causing a loss estimated by officials by the company as $100,000.

LA GRANDE, Ore., Dec. 28.—(AP)—Robert S. Eakin, city attorney and past grand master of the A. F. and A. M. of Oregon, died unexpectedly at his home here this morning of heart disease. Mr. Eakin was born at Union, December 4, 1884.
