Mrs. Boggs Named Queen of Zuleima Temple Saturday

While social events outside organizations have been few during the past week, lodge and club life has filled the calendar with many affairs and yesterday in Grants Pass one of the major meetings of the year for members of Zuleima temple, Daughters of the Nile, was held. Mrs. O. C. Boggs of this city was elected queen of the temple to succeed Mrs. Sophia Baker and other new officers are: Lulu Franco, Ashland; Princess Royal, Margaret Barnes, Grants Pass; Princess Tirzah, Minnie T. Wood, Medford; Princess Bodouria, Ruth Brownell, Grants Pass; recorder, Mollie B. T. Jacksonville, banker.

The tables were most attractive with baskets of poinsettias, heather and ferns and lighted with tall tapers in blending colors.

Mrs. F. D. Wagner introduced Miss Rosa Gore who played the Prelude Number Four by Chopin and Follies-innello by Bachmannoff. Mrs. Hale was for forty years editor of Goddey's Ladies Magazine and discussed the progress of women during the Victorian age. Mrs. Hale believed women had rights, but she was too clever to antagonize her audience by openly campaigning for them. At the age of ninety, she wrote "New avenues for higher culture, an opening for women that they may improve these opportunities and be faithful in their high vocation, is my heartfelt prayer."

The club has invited Mrs. Avis Lobdell, women's affairs director of the Union Pacific system to speak on "Women's Place in International Peace," the date to be announced later.

Members of the Medford Garden club will be interested in the announcement received yesterday from Mrs. Jessie M. Honeyman, of Eugene, president of the Oregon Council for the Protection of Roadside Beauty, that the first quarterly meeting of the council is to be held in Salem, January 23.

Mrs. Honeyman has on her executive board a number of the state's outstanding citizens who are actually interested in the preservation of Oregon's roadside beauty. Among them are:

Mrs. A. E. Rockney, honorary president, Portland, Oregon.
Mr. Earl C. Bronough, counsel, Portland, Oregon.
Mr. Robert W. Sawyer, vice-president, Bend, Oregon.
Mr. J. C. Alnoworth, vice-president, Portland, Oregon.
Dean Eric W. Allen, vice-president, Eugene, Oregon.
Mr. John Yeon Jr., vice-president, Portland, Oregon.
Mrs. Rex Sanford, secretary-treasurer, Eugene, Oregon.

According to Mrs. Honeyman, the council's program is planned to accomplish the following things:

"To coordinate the efforts of all organizations and agencies interested in the preservation of the aesthetic and economic values of these resources.

To save the unrivaled beauty of our natural forests along the roadways by preventing mutilation and defacement of our trees.

To save the charm of our highways by cooperating with the Forest Service in preventing forest fires."
