INSANITY IS PLEA FOR GLAYZNER IN ATTACK ON WIFE

The defense in the trial of William F. Glayzner this afternoon called a number of local physicians to testify to insanity signs and causes. Glayzner claims his attacks upon his wife were prompted by worry over domestic troubles.

Dr. W. W. P. Holt was called at the afternoon session, and was asked what effect large doses of veronal, a mild sleep-inducing drug would produce. Dr. Holt replied that they might produce symptoms of "confusional insanity."

The case is now expected to go to the jury tomorrow morning.

William R. Glayzner, former resident of the Trail district, and transient laborer, on trial in circuit court on a charge of assault with intent to kill, took the stand this morning in his own behalf. The frail worried and slightly built man is alleged to have assaulted his estranged wife, Golda, with a butcher-knife last August in her Ashland home, when efforts at a reconciliation failed.

In his opening statements to the jury, Attorney O. H. Bengtson, named by the court to defend Glayzner, stated that insanity would be pleaded, and that Glayzner's mind had been affected by physical ailments, financial worries, and despondency over the suspected infidelity of his wife, whom he "loved dearly."

Glayzner testified that in 1930, while working for Young Bros., on a contract near Salem, he came into possession of a letter, written to his wife, by a man in Ashland, whose name was not revealed. The letter was signed "Daddy." The defendant said he knew the name of the man, and that he and his wife "had words" over the letter. He testified that the contents "made me blue and moody."

The first witness called by the defense was Mrs. Glayzner, now fully recovered from the wounds. She identified a sheet of letters, turned over to the defense by the district attorney's office. The letters are alleged to be from "Daddy," and to hold menacing terms and propositions.

The trial rested this morning, after calling a dozen witnesses.

It is expected that the case will go to the jury by tomorrow morning. The jury is composed of ten men and two women—Mrs. Ruth Sparrow of Central Point, and Mrs. Lucinda Hubbard of this city.

HEATED CHARGES FLY AT MEETING CONTROL BOARD of the governor, "Mr. Holman, did you issue these charges against the board of control?"

Holman replied that he did and that he thought they were very good suggestions. He declared there was secretiveness in the board of control office and charged William Einzig as conducting a "reign of terror."

"It is unfortunate that you should use these methods to present your case," the governor told Holman. William Einzig, secretary of the board as well as state purchasing agent, charged that Holman's statements were false, and he challenged the treasurer to prove them.

Fight Four-Sided. At this point the "fight" became a four-sided affair with Hoza declaring he took exception to the method of Holman's probe into the affairs of the board, as it was a reflection against the other two members. He asked the matter be investigated, and if found true, he would be for a general housecleaning.

Einzig further charged that Holman had signed his name to all budget items and that it was absolutely a false statement that no departmental budgets had been presented him for study before submitted to the budget director. This was likewise charged in Holman's list of suggestions.

The treasurer then attacked Einzig for his "insubordination," which he termed "no employer would tolerate." He declared that Einzig had forbidden his employees to speak to Holman, on the threat of being discharged. He declared three employees had come to him and reported that was the case. Einzig again took issue, declaring he demanded only that all files were taken out of that office, he get his permission. This action was upheld by the other two members of the board.

Einzig Hurls Charges. "You have intimidated every employee in my office," Einzig charged Holman. "You have taken out files which have never been returned, which is something Hoza would not let you do."

"I have not kept your files, and I can take them out whenever I like. Why, you are nothing but a chief clerk," Holman retorted. The governor and Hoza both concurred with Einzig that the taking out of files should not be permitted.

Einzig further declared there was nothing secret about his activities, and that whenever bids are opened all members are invited to attend, and that Holman had never done so, "but waits to criticize me afterwards."

Answering the governor's statement that Holman's methods were "unfortunate" in this matter, the treasurer replied he would go the limit to stand on his grounds and that he would do it "as I please." "I will do it because I was elected by 58,000 more votes than you were," he hurled at the governor.

The resolution will be forwarded the state highway commission as a petition from the Medford committee.

The petition, prepared by the Talent business men supercedes a petition addressed to the state highway commission and presented at a recent protest meeting in Ashland. Talent business men emphasized that they have at no time opposed the 1.6 miles improvement, contract for which will probably be let January 25, but did oppose the tentative survey which would leave Talent off the route. The petition was similar to resolutions approved by the Ashland chamber of commerce and the Ashland city council.

GOOD NEWS for California travelers

Since we introduced these Tourist fares in 1928, we have consistently pursued the policy of fitting them to the requirements of our passengers. First they were good in the coaches only. Then they were honored in tourist sleeping cars. Drastic reductions were made in the roundtrips. And now, with further reductions in the fares, longer limits, stopover privileges and the inclusion of many more California destinations, we know you will agree that these fares are today's outstanding travel value.
