

CITY DEPARTMENT HEADS REPORT ON YEAR'S ACTIVITIES

Superintendent Scheffel and Inspector Rogers Give Council Resume of Work — Much Is Accomplished

Annual reports by Fred Scheffel, city superintendent and Frank Rogers, city inspector, were submitted Tuesday night to the city council in regular meeting and showed that in spite of the depression, there was much worth-while activity in Medford during the year 1932.

There were 163 building permits issued, with a given valuation of $245,217, according to Mr. Rogers' report, which read as follows: "Due to equipment and installations over which we have no control and which necessarily enter into the construction of buildings, this valuation should be increased to approximately $304,021.09. There were 110 electrical, 21 sign, and 83 plumbing permits issued during the same time. "The building permits occasioned approximately 1000 inspections, and the electrical, sign, and re-inspection of buildings and electrical work necessitated approximately 800 inspections. In addition to the above, considerable time was devoted to the removal of radio interference.

"Renovating the city hall, changing the heating system from oil to wood fuel and moving the city offices from the old location was accomplished with a minimum of labor and expense.

"Extensive investigations relative to street lighting rates and franchises were conducted and as a result, the new franchise and lighting contract with the local power company was executed giving the city one of the best contracts in the state at this time.

"Detailed plans were started for a new lighting system on Main street and Central and Riverdale avenues. While the system on Central and Riverdale might not be installed for some time, the proposed system on Main street must be in with a definite system to be event later duplications and changes.

"Plans were made for an extension to the police alarm system which, when completed, will provide a very complete system for a city of this size."

Mr. Scheffel's report showed that 3600 passengers visited the Medford airport during the past year. That 448 tickets were sold for passage by air from Medford and that considerable improvement was made at the port, including a new concrete apron and sidewalk in front of the administration building.

Turning to the question of construction and unemployment, Mr. Scheffel stated:

"In the early part of the year, the problem of unemployment was discussed by the council; an appropriation of $8000 was approved direct from the general fund, and in addition the employees of all departments donated $1068, making available the sum of $9068. These funds were directed for use in constructing the extension of a 24-inch concrete storm drain from West 4th street along the alley between Quince and Rose to West Main street; and the cleaning of Bear Creek from Earhart street to 1000 feet below the Jackson street bridge; widened East Main street and constructed a hand place rock wall at the end of the present pavement near the James Owens property; cut back the intersections and rebuilt the pavement at the corner of Oakdale and West 1st street. The cost of improvements totaled $4748.84."

All phases of work in his department were thoroughly covered by Mr. Scheffel in his report, which closed with the following summary on maintenance of paving.

"Sooner or later it will be necessary to resurface about 4 miles of pavement. This pavement was laid in 1910 and 1911. It is depreciating very rapidly. The question of financing such an improvement is a questionable one. We have, however, during the past year, prepared a report on cost, valuations, etc.

"We have anticipated such an expenditure for a number of years, but due to the construction of other improvements this work has been delayed."

Both reports were favorably received by the city council and Scheffel and Rogers thanked for their detailed accounts of the past year's activity in their departments.

HOT STOVE SLAVE NO LONGER SEEN IN MODERN HOME

"Don't allow cooking to become a bogey! Modern ways, modern recipes will equip you to be a 'kitcheneer' instead. No longer is there need for women to stand red-faced and with a persecuted look over a hot stove all day."

This is the message Mrs. Marion Spencer and Miss Helen Brown, members of the Safeway Stores Home-makers' Bureau cooking school staff, who will conduct a modernized cooking school in Medford for three days, beginning February 1, under the auspices of the Safeway Stores.

Mrs. Marion Spencer, noted home economist of the west, is prepared to prove her statement to western women when she offers to them, free of charge, results of thorough culinary research from the bureau's scientific testing kitchen.

Sessions will be held for the benefit of Medford housewives, each day at the Fox Rialto, from 2 until 4 p. m., with doors opening at 1 o'clock. Household questions will be answered before, during and after the class periods, and extra queries replied to by mail.

Within the two-hour time limit, Mrs. Wright will prepare ten varied dinner, luncheon and dessert dishes each day, as evidence of her contention that:

"There is no mystery, no hardship to cooking. It's merely a matter of using what material you have at hand, adaptability and the following of recipes."

Mrs. Wright, national director of the Safeway Stores Home-makers' Bureau, is well known to western homemakers by reason of her leadership in the Safeway Stores Home-makers' Bureau and testing kitchen and from her Friday morning radio network household talks and newspaper articles. Under her direction is a cooking school staff of eight young women, all university trained home economists with practical working experience. These are in addition to the bureau's regular staff.

Records of the bureau show that as many as 5,000 women have attended a single session of Mrs. Wright's cooking school.

"Information I am bringing from the test kitchen," says the noted home economics instructor, "is the result of the most modern, up-to-the-minute experimentation. And there is no laxity in our tests, either," she says. "Before we place our seal of approval on a product, it must be of the best."

Mrs. Wright has a kitchen mascot, the Little Red Teakettle, and it will be in evidence to the homemakers who attend the sessions. This little red teakettle, it is confided, was found only after diligent search of shops on highways and byways. It is the insignia of the bureau's contention that western home life centers about the kitchen fire more than the living room hearth.

It is this test kitchen, with its little red teakettle that makes possible the practical, modern culinary knowledge which will be offered homemakers at the three-day cooking school.

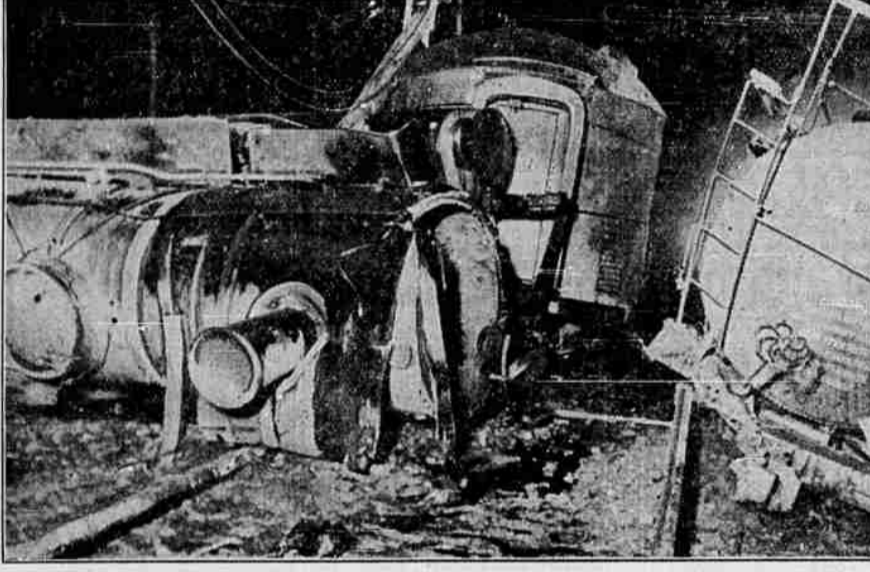

"Bring a pencil and take notes," urges Helen Brown. And she promises tasty souvenirs to various members of the class.

ENTIRE CAST FOR OPERA FURNISHED BY HIGH SCHOOL

For the first time in the history of Medford high school stage productions, definite plans are being formulated which involve every department in the school which is able to contribute to the production of the 1933 opera. The cast and choruses for H. M. S. Pinafore are supplied entirely from the music organizations in the high school.

The music will be furnished by the high school orchestra, the stage setting and art work will be done by the high school art department, the construction work in connection with the stage setting will be handled by the general industries department, all costuming will be taken care of by the home economics department, the public speaking, dramatic and physical education departments will take care of speaking parts, dances and stage business, the commercial department will handle business details in connection with the production.

Those faculty members who are definitely tied in with the various pieces of work are as follows: Music, Miss Baldwin; Mr. Wall; staging, Miss Baler; Mr. Bailey; Miss Degermark; stage design and setting, Miss Holten; construction, Mr. Metzger; costumes, Miss Carroll; business organization, Mrs. Getchell.

The purpose of the opera is not to make money, but to give to a maximum number of students the opportunity to profit by experience in such a co-operative enterprise. Over 300 students will be involved either directly or indirectly as members of the cast, orchestra, or other groups which have to do with the production.

Glazner was represented by Attorney O. H. Bengtson and Kayl by Attorney E. E. Kelly, both appointed by the court.

Glazner committed the crime for which he was sentenced last summer, slashing his estranged wife with a butcher knife, when his efforts at a reconciliation failed. The attack occurred in Ashland.

Kayl was arrested at Crescent City last Saturday by state police. He confessed to boring a hole in the wall of his house, occupied by the Bryant family and stuffing the aperture with inflammable material before igniting. The house was insured for $1500 and valued at $200.
