

CIVIC LEAGUERS LAUD LEGION IN ARMISTICE MOVE

Letters endorsing the stand taken by the Medford post of the American Legion to stop the turmoil which has swept through Jackson county, regarding progress in city and county, have been sent out by the Jackson County Civic League, composed of representatives of practically all churches and other improvement associations of the valley.

They have been sent by the league to L. C. Garlock, commander of the Legion, voicing appreciation of his stand; to Commissioners Billings and Nealon, expressing faith in their administration of their offices and granting them unqualified support; and to District Attorney Coddling, voicing recognition of his "faithful service" during the preceding term of office.

All letters are signed by E. A. Oldenburg, secretary of the League. The letters read as follows:

Mr. George A. Coddling, District Attorney, Jackson County.

Dear Sir:

In recognition of your faithful service during the preceding term of office of the voters of Jackson county re-elected you on Nov. 8 last. The Jackson County Civic League rendered its best assistance they could to that end.

We cannot help but view with suspicion and apprehension the activities of those who have opposed you since the beginning of this term of office and who have openly declared their aim of absolute and unbridled control of the affairs of the county. Their past record proves that affairs under their absolute control fare poorly indeed.

We are persuaded, Sir, that you have begun your new term of office with renewed zeal, for the best interests of Jackson county, using your responsible office for the advancement of the moral prosperity of Jackson county.

As to that end we helped to continue you in the office of District Attorney so to that same end we shall do all that may be necessary to sustain you in that office and to encourage you in the faithful performance of your duties. We have no doubt but you may depend upon all right minded people in Jackson county to do that same end and we heartily approve actions already taken by organizations to express themselves, especially those of the American Legion.

Mr. Ralph Billings, Commissioner, Jackson County, Ore.

Dear Sir:

We were well pleased with the faith in you which the voters of Jackson county expressed at the polls November 8 last when they elected you to the office of County Commissioner. The Jackson County Civic League glad to do what they could toward that end. There has been a great deal of uncalculated trouble made at the court house by interested parties since the beginning of the present term of office.

At their last regular monthly meeting on Tuesday last the Jackson County Civic League instructed their secretary to write you and others who have suffered from these disturbances to assure you of our faith in you and of our every possible support in your office.

Mr. E. E. Nealon, Commissioner, Jackson County, Oregon.

Dear Sir:

Since your appointment to the office of County Commissioner and the statement of Attorney-General Van Winkle as to the absolute legality of such appointment right minded people of the county have heartily approved.

The Jackson County Civic League at their regular meeting on Tuesday last instructed their secretary to advise you that we shall heartily support you in that office; hence this letter.

We feel assured that you will do all in your power for the best interests of Jackson County.

We cannot help but mention our admiration for your manly stand on the court house steps, facing that excited crowd calling for your scalp.

Mr. L. C. Garlock, Commander Medford Post, American Legion.

Dear Sir:

It had long been evident some measures needed to be taken to stop the unseemingly disturbances that have afflicted Jackson County. We appreciate your firm stand in the matter. At the meeting of the Jackson County Civic League last night the secretary was instructed to advise you of our sincere approval of

There Ain't No Justice Cry Boys in Burlesque Of Banks' Protest Meet

"I'm for it. They're ag'n it. Down with the plutocrats. There's a miscarriage of justice. Hurrah for the people. This is the people's court house"—hurled into the ether with Shakespearean eloquence, the preceding phrases, familiar to the ears of many southern Oregonians recently, echoed through the south end of town when a group of Medford youths gathered after the "protest demonstration" in the lot adjoining the high school grounds.

Speaking from a railing disguised as a court house steps, the young elocutionists assured the crowd which gathered round that they had come "Not to bury Caesar, but the district attorney."

With a dramatic gesture, Jack Doyle was introduced to the crowd as "L. A. Banks" and took his bow with an extra flourish. Dick Applegate then ascended the rostrum and was introduced as Judge "Swell." His appearance was followed with repeated applause as he explained to the listeners his stand as "your duly elected county judge."

John Reddy was then brought to the railing, the impersonator of one "Neal-on," and cries of "He ain't got no vote" smote the air. "Hang him. There ain't no justice. There ain't no nothing," the harangue continued until Judge "Swell" took the situation well in hand by pushing Neal-on off the railing into the crowd.

"I have no connection with any newspaper," Judge "Swell" declared, drawing to his side Mr. "Bunks," whom the stage hands explained was appearing "Incognito (without his golf pants)."

Another cheer rang through the audience and "There ain't no law and order" mounted a sound wave and traveled into the high school building. Bob Colvig, with "Copco" shining on his back, grabbed his camera and started into the center of the ring, but was stopped by a group of hecklers, his camera was taken from his hands and much hooting of "Subsidy" monopolized the show.

The noise subsided as Ralph Bailey, instructor, drove by and the chant changed to "Down with the plutocrats." She blasted plutocrats, ridiculing while the proletariat starves—in our shirt sleeves. There ain't no justice. This is the people's court house and they are welcome to it.

A signal for resumption of school interrupted the jeers and much of the crowd broke away as Judge "Swell" invited all present to come in and shake his hand. The offer was refused by all excepting Mr. "Bunks." And a call for "Petitions, petitions" brought a shower of gum wrappers and paper towels.

"There has been a break down of law and order. A great miscarriage of justice," shouted Mr. "Bunks" as someone called "Curtain," and the crowd cleared from the lot, many to receive reprimands for being late to school.

GLEEMEN TO SING FOR JACKSONVILLE MEET OF GRANGE

Jacksonville Grange enjoyed another splendid program by the Medford high school Friday evening. This was the fourth consecutive program presented by the Medford high at the Jacksonville Grange and each one always proves a special attraction to the Grange patrons.

Mrs. Leora Niedermeyer, lecturer of the Grange began the program with a community song. She then introduced Ralph Bailey of the Medford high faculty who gave an introductory explanation of the tax problems to be discussed by the high school debating team.

The affirmative team, Winifred Roseborough and Dolph James held the floor for the adoption of a sales tax and the reduction of the property tax where as the negative team, Frances Perry and Cleo Hicks held that the present property tax was a fair and just tax. Some very sound arguments were presented by each side and the skillful manner in which they were given showed evidence of quick thinking and deep thought on the part of the debaters.

Mrs. Niedermeyer announced that C. C. Hoover would have charge of the next program. He has announced that the Medford Gleemen under the direction of James Stevens will put on the program Jan. 27th at 8 o'clock. They will be assisted by the Medford Chamber of Commerce who will present several speakers.

The Grange wishes to share this opportunity with the community and a most cordial invitation is extended to the Jacksonville Chamber of Commerce, high school and Jacksonville friends to attend.

First meeting of the Home Economics club was with Mrs. Severance last week at which time officers for the coming year were elected; Mrs. Florence Severance, president; Mrs. Edna Jones, vice president; Mrs. Mattie Mechem, secretary, and Mrs. Anna Hartley, treasurer. A lively discussion on plans for the coming year was held and many worth while suggestions submitted.

Next meeting will be Jan. 25 at the home of Mrs. Anna Hartley. Mrs. Emma Conger will have charge of the entertainment.

SECOND FAREWELL TO FILMS IS PLAN OF MISS RAMBEAU

By HUBBARD KEAVY

HOLLYWOOD — Her "hobby is broadminded," and so Marjorie Rambeau is back in Hollywood. But she insists she'll stay here only long enough to play in one picture.

When she became Mrs. Francis Gunder, Miss Rambeau gave up screen and stage—permanently, she hoped—to live with her husband in Florida. Inactivity, she says, hasn't become boreome. In fact, she rather likes the rest she feels she deserves.

"My husband has his hunting and fishing and golf to keep him busy, but I have no such hobbies because I never had time to learn them," Miss Rambeau said.

She was between scenes of "Strictly Personal," in which she has one of the leads. "When this offer came he was good enough to say, 'Let's take it.' So we motored out.

"Many things this romance of ours," Marjorie said, "fifteen years ago Mr. Gunder and I were engaged. I had just arrived on Broadway after years of trouping all over the country.

"He didn't want a wife whose heart and soul were frapped up in being a star.

"So we drifted apart. He married and I married. Later his wife died and 15 months ago he came to Hollywood, that was a little while after

I had my divorce. (Her second, incidentally, this one from Willard Mack, the playwright.) In two weeks we were married and on the way to Florida."
