Relief for Jackson County

The Daily News complains because its constructive program for the relief of unemployment and economic betterment of this community is not given as much publicity, as its disregard for the law, defiance of the courts, and constant appeals to mob violence and open sedition.

The answer to that is this: There can BE no economic recovery here; there can BE no constructive program realized whether offered by the News or ANY other paper; until the present reign of terror which THE NEWS ALONE IS RESPONSIBLE FOR, has been put down, and law and order has been restored once more.

It is because the Mail Tribune WANTS relief of unemployment in this community, WANTS a constructive program of economic recovery, put in force, at the earliest possible moment, WANTS this community to stop fighting and get together; that the well-being and welfare of our people—and our people—may be advanced, that the Mail Tribune is—and has been—doing everything in its power to put down what renders SUCH A PROGRAM ABSOLUTELY IMPOSSIBLE.

Let peace and sanity be restored in this valley and the Mail Tribune will not only favor, but aggressively support, any program of economic or agricultural rehabilitation, which appears to it, practical and wise. Until that is done NOTHING can be done!

Must We Have Martial Law?

DURING the past few days the present writer has been visited by well known and responsible citizens, urging that we advocate the declaring of martial law, so that bloodshed can be avoided, respect for our courts and our laws, enforced, and those threatening bombs and the noose, can be put behind the bars where they belong.

CAN IT BE things in Jackson County have come to such a pass, our courage and manhood have fallen so low, that the citizens of this community can't THEMSELVES, bring order out of chaos; can't THEMSELVES through their courts and the proper law enforcing agencies, restore law and order, and advertise to the world, that this IS a community, where it is safe for any self-respecting and law-abiding American citizen to live!

WE DON'T believe it. We refuse to believe it! The present writer has lived in Medford for over twenty years, and we believe we know something about it. We know that NORMALLY it is one of the finest, most progressive and enlightened communities in this state, or any other. With practically no alien or illiterate element, with a high quality of citizenship which is unsurpassed, we know that UNTIL the News came under its PRESENT management, this district was not only the just pride of its citizens, but of the entire state.

And we KNOW what has destroyed that pride, what has made this community a by-word up and down the coast, what has destroyed what legitimate business, the worst depression in world history, allows,—and so does every fair-minded person who has investigated the situation,—AND THAT IS THE CAMPAIGN OF FALSEHOOD, INTIMIDATION, AND SLANDER, WHICH THIS NEWSPAPER HAS CARRIED ON, DAY IN AND DAY OUT, FOR SO MANY MONTHS.

THE people HAVE been deluded,—not all of them, but many. Their minds have been poisoned so persistently that some of them came to BELIEVE law and order had broken down,—WHEN IT HADN'T,—and that a corrupt and lawless gang was in control,—when it WASN'T. And now because their minds have become so inflamed and their suspicions so aroused—when law and order is actually on the point of being broken down: when a gang—and a real GANG—threatens to gain control, they FAIL TO SEE IT.

But fortunately this element represents a decided minority. And because they represent a minority and because we KNOW the rank and file of the people of this valley, are sound in mind and heart, know that they believe in law and order, know that they trust Judge Norton, and law enforcement officials under him, and want to uphold them in maintaining law and order that, we urged them the other day, to stand up and be counted.

SINCE then a number of good citizens—some close personal friends—have come to this office and asked: "But what can we do! ISN'T it the job of the grand jury to protect us from law breakers and seditionists; ISN'T it the job of the police to arrest them; ISN'T it the job of the juries to convict them and the court to punish them? What can we do!"

Quite true under normal conditions. But present conditions are NOT normal, and for several weeks have not been normal. We live in a democracy. Behind our juries, behind our police, behind our courts, behind everything in government, STAND THE PEOPLE. When police engaged in the public performance of their duty are publicly termed "BANDITS,"—when juries are intimidated and threatened, when courts are assailed and defied, there is only one thing outside of martial law which can save the situation—which, in truth—can save civilization.

THAT IS AN AROUSED AND ARTICULATE PUBLIC OPINION. For neither juries, nor police, nor local courts, can defy public opinion, nor can they be expected to go beyond public opinion. They are not the rulers of the people, they are merely their servants,—and they do—and should do—what the people demand of them.

THAT IS WHY we asked the people of this community to stand up, in this crisis, and be counted. That is why we asked them to give their opinions to the grand jury now in session, why we asked them to communicate either by word of mouth or by the written word, with those public officials, in whom they believed, so that the latter might know they had the people—a majority of the people, behind them,—that they might KNOW what public opinion here actually is,—and act accordingly.

We are glad to say many followed that advice. We hope many more will.

For, we repeat, in a situation such as this, public opinion, plainly and emphatically expressed, is the ONLY HOPE,—either of avoiding a declaration of martial law—which would be a lasting shame and disgrace to the good citizens of this county,—or a major catastrophe!

Personal Health Service

HYPOSULPHITE FOR DEAD FINGERS

Two years ago we quoted here the hypothesis advanced by a physician who had succeeded in curing one case, that Raynaud's disease, commonly called "dead fingers" or "dead toes," may be caused by mild chronic arsenic poisoning. This case cured appeared to be of that nature, the woman having worked in a dye house for several years. In greenhouses sprays containing arsenic are much used against plant pests. In this particular case analysis showed that an appreciable quantity of arsenic was being eliminated through the kidneys. Normally a minute trace of arsenic is found in the urine. When this exceeds a certain arbitrary maximum it is fair to assume the patient is exposed to arsenic poisoning. The remedy which has proved efficacious in the elimination of arsenic from the body is hyposulphite of soda, or as it was formerly called, thio-sulphate of soda. It is given by injecting into a vein, in an average dose of one gram (approximately 15 grains) twice a week for two or three months. The sodium hyposulphite may be taken internally in the average dose of 10 to 20 grains, in sweetened water or a flavored syrup, after food, once or twice a day for a period of two weeks. Indeed, this use of hyposulphite internally has been recommended as a good remedy for the headache and other after-effects of mild carbon monoxide gas poisoning.

The physician who originally suggested that Raynaud's affection may be due to chronic arsenic poisoning, Dr. Arthur P. Krastner, has advised in his first case the clinical reports of several other cases of Raynaud's in which marked relief followed the intravenous injection of sodium hyposulphite, as described. Incidentally the treatment brought relief to some other conditions which were often noted in persons suffering with chronic arsenic poisoning, notably obstinate eczema and pruritus. If you are subject to attacks of dead fingers, dead toes, dead ears or what have you, remember, this is only a possible explanation. It may be correct for only certain cases. Here are some of the symptoms which warrant at least a suspicion of chronic arsenic poisoning, which is generally of occupational origin, but sometimes from accidental contamination of food or drink, and sometimes, from taking medicine which contains arsenic. Frequent mild coryza, blepharitis (inflammation of eyelids), dry sore throat, pruritus and various obstinate skin eruptions, from eczema to shingles, anemia, pallor, tingling sensations or actual neuralgia, areas of numbness in the extremities, sharp attacks of pain along a nerve, loss of appetite, and obscure disturbances of the nervous system.

Blind Guessing
 Does a nervous breakdown cause one to have dimness of vision, feeling of weight on head, poor memory, spots...? (Mrs. R. H.)

Answer—I know of no such ailment or condition as "nervous breakdown," neither does any other physical ailment, as just mentioned, conceal ignorance. I advise you not to attempt to diagnose your own trouble. Tell your symptoms to your physician, and leave it to him to determine what causes them.

It Pays To Be Sure
 Last spring I wrote to you for information on piles, as I thought that was my trouble. What you told me made me go to my doctor. He found the trouble was not piles, but a fissure. He gave it two simple treatments and ended the trouble, from which I had suffered a great deal for several years. I owe you this much, Charleyhorse.

Answer—Probably most cases of presumptive "piles" are in reality something else and treatment taken on the blind guess can only do harm. Charleyhorse

Please explain what is a "charleyhorse"? (W. H.)
 Answer—Rupture or tear of muscle cell walls, or a tearing of muscle fiber from its attachment to bone or tendon. It causes a lump which may be felt or even seen, and this takes a month to disappear, leaving a little scar in the muscle which may impair the elasticity of the muscle. Such injuries are most likely to happen during unaccustomed effort, or when an amateur athlete attempts a severe effort without having first "warmed up" by preliminary moderate exercise, especially in cold weather.

The Houdini of Textiles

Science has perfected something brand new in textiles—Latex—an elastic fabric that can be made into everything from stretchable socks to suspenders and bathing suits, and which should help the Textile industry out of the slump of hard times.

CHAPTER IV
 Then this new lustrous elastic textile popped up. It was tried out first of all in corsets, merely because this was its most obvious use. Immediately it made new kinds of corsets possible. The lightest, flimsiest, silkiest fabrics could be used—fabrics as delicate as the chambray or the chambray. They were stretchable both ways, hence stayed in place and gave full scope for athletic activities. They could be washed as often as the wearer pleased without losing their elasticity. In other words, they met a need in a new, unique, sound fashion.

What happened? Depression or no depression, an astonishingly large number of women bought the new corsets. Apparently they felt that here was something so worth while they had to have it. An army of new corset users was created among the same athletic misses who by merely turning up their noses previously had brought devastation to the corset industry.

I am told that within a single year since it was first tried the new textile has been adopted in 87 per cent of all better-grade corsets. And I am assured that within that year many a big manufacturer has been able to lift himself right out of the rickety and jump into the black one.

That corset manufacturers were jubilant over this unexpected salvation goes without saying. So were the makers and distributors of the new textile. But this was only the beginning for them.

There are various more or less troublesome things about hats. For one thing, the store has to keep a large number of sizes in stock. For another, even if a woman gets the right size, she may wear her hair in such a way that the hat doesn't conform to it. Here the new textile was used first for the tops of stockings and men's socks as well.

It eliminates in many cases the need for garters, and, what is more, its elasticity outlasts the stockings. And when garters are used the stocking tops are immune to runs. The new method is to make mesh stockings entirely of the new textile. Every woman knows the sinking feeling that comes when a nice new pair of hose is ruined by a run the first time they are put on. This stocking, like Calvin Coolidge, simply says, quietly but firmly: "I do not choose to run," and that's an end of that. And, curiously enough, its elasticity improves with washing, so that the longer it is worn the better it fits. Woolen golf hose for men and women come next. Here also garters are eliminated and with them the need for a turned-down cuff. Surgical hose also are now made of Latex.

Enthusiasts believe the possibilities for the new textile in feminine underwear are very great. A beginning was made with waist and knee bands for step-ins, or whatever they are called these days. Then elastic cuffs were introduced in the form of delicate dainty panels. Finally an all-Latex affair was made that does double duty. I am informed, as corset and slip. Other garments have a full Latex back and a front of some other textile. Brasieres of this material combine flimsiness with firmness.

There are various more or less troublesome things about hats. For one thing, the store has to keep a large number of sizes in stock. For another, even if a woman gets the right size, she may wear her hair in such a way that the hat doesn't conform to it. Banks Flayed by Bill

To the Editor:
 As my challenge to debate the subject, "Resolved that the readers of the Daily News are suffering from an overdose of political bunk," has gone unanswered, and the political turmoil is growing, I'll change the subject and issue a new challenge to debate the following: Resolved, that the leaders of the Good Government Congress are a bunch of political office seekers."

It seems some citizens with good intentions are beginning to take seriously the political hokey that the leaders of the "congress" spread. In order to get the facts to the people before the "congress" goes too far and gets the county overrun with spies, I'd like to debate some of these so-called Good Government congress leaders. In this debate I'll seek to show the following:

1.—That L. A. Banks and the Daily News are entirely responsible for the re-election of George Godding.
 2.—That the Mail Tribune is entirely responsible for the election of Earl Fehl.

3.—That L. A. Banks and the Daily News, with other publications over the state sold out the dairy industry just before the election for a few paltry dollars and made us dairymen compete with coolie labor. (This is why you are a squelcher and why I am willing to drive miles to help to educate the dairymen as to his needs. I can't see what all the dairymen of Jackson county. Most of them will not spend one penny to come out to a dairy meeting or take any interest in trying to protect their own industry, but will drive miles and spend dollars in trying to form a new political party to help some loud-mouth get a political office.)

4.—That the natural resources of the state belong to the people and if there is any profit to be derived therefrom it should go back to the people and not to a special privilege class.

5.—That L. A. Banks and the Daily News belong in the special privilege class because they are getting away with things with the power company that we little fellows would be shut out immediately for.

6.—That L. A. Banks endorsed about seven of the mythical "gangs" before the primary but was harping about the "gangs" long before the primary and ever since. That he has kicked them all in the seat of the pants except one and this one's turn is coming next.

7.—That L. A. Banks wrote an open letter of apology and no one knows how many secret apologies he has made.

8.—That L. A. Banks is only a politician, and office seeker and a danger to our country. I will be glad to see in any community that wants to be fair and informed on both sides, I am a farmer and dairyman myself and I want to warn my fellow farmers against coolie labor and other evils that would come from following Mr. Banks.

Answers C. J. Conner
 To the Editor:
 I read in your paper a communication of Mr. C. J. Conner, Star Route, Box 10, and I am pleased to see, personally, permission to answer this communication through your columns. I appreciate your granting my request.

Mr. C. J. Conner,
 Star Route, Box 85, Ashland.
 Dear Sir:—As you asked me to answer your question, I will place in your communication in the paper, I will endeavor to do so in my simple way.

Question 1. Yes, I know there are two laws of the land—one was given by the people of the United States, the other was God's law which is spiritual.

Question 2. A great many times I have thought and resolved and affirmed within my own mind to live a law abiding citizen. I should affirm the first law. Second, I have also affirmed that I should obey the spiritual law but I am ashamed to say I have not.

Question 3. I believe I do know right from wrong.
 Question 4. I must confess that I am not aware of corrupt laws for I have no master mind.

Question 5. Do you mean the written laws by man or do you mean the spiritual laws written and inspired by the writings of God?

Question 6. If the people were guided by a sense of right they would not have tolerated the seditious and inciting and inflammatory remarks which were made in the "Good Government Congress" meetings. In those meetings with the flag of stars and stripes stretched across the room when I heard those remarks it made me blush.

I am not attacking any good government movement, but I am saying to those who made those remarks that they were insulting the intelligence of our people and our flag. I would rather have seen the old flag stretched through your room than hear some fermented brains of ignorance make the remarks and insult the flag that I honor.

Question 7. I want to admit that I am not possessed with enough intelligence to be a lawmaker, furthermore I do not question the laws that are made by man. I cannot question the spiritual laws that were written, inspired by the hand of God.

Question 8. I do not question the measures that were placed upon the ballot of the election November 8, 1932. I would like to remark that I voted as intelligently as I could. I did not remain away from the polls and I don't cast my vote of my honest convictions.

To prolong this answer to your question and as you paraphrase "not just the city of Medford," I am no Judge and, as the scripture states, "Judge not for fear that ye shall be judged." For that reason I will not question the intelligence of Medford to say whether they knew they were voting right or wrong. I will say that if all of the people would try and dictate what should become a law there are some who have not enough interest to go to the polls and vote. We have to leave it to the brains of our countrymen to make our laws and have moral courage enough to make the ignorant abide by them.

Yes, I made the remark that law and order had broken down in Jackson county because of the insults which were thrown at my flag by ignorance. I have checked this situation. I went before the grand jury of Jackson county and the county court of Jackson county. In another article that I wrote in the Mail Tribune you will read what I think of your county judge. I don't want to repeat what has already been said, but I will add to the controversy with his actions questioning the laws of this state; I have nothing but contempt for him. I covered the ground of what I thought was right and what I thought was wrong.

I am not like L. A. Banks and Earl H. Fehl to come before the public with personal grievances to correct any wrong that anyone has placed upon them. I will further state and repeat I care not personally for a n y o f f i c i a l or his personal grievances, but when I listen to remarks made by your county judge, Earl H. Fehl, that he "does not give a damn for the laws, he is going to take it to the people," the people made these laws. Is he going to continue to make an effort to inflame the minds of this public with his personal grievances?

You advise me to go and read other law besides the syndicalism law. If you are an interested citizen and know of any law that is being broken, report it to your witnesses, go before the grand jury, and if you have a clear case and that grand jury does not indict the lawbreaker, then they have violated their oath by not returning an indictment. Now you say get down to Judge Fehl. I don't want to take the time and space to go further and repeat what I have said about your county judge, but I made it clear in my other article that I am not seeking for my ideas to work. I am seeking for the protection of our laws of this country.

Don't make an effort and throw mud upon the escutcheon of the good people of Medford that they are all moral cowards and cannot take care of themselves. I dare say that the grand jury has been muddled up by a lot of hokey and they are at sea to know what to do.

Question 9. Yes, I believe a man has a right to sit in court who has been placed there by law. I do not believe it is in the nature of prolonging this controversy in stating to you how laws are made—the laws that protect your home and property.

You mention those inalienable rights guaranteed by the Declaration of Independence. I will state that brains made the Declaration of Independence and put it in motion and I am too simple minded myself to question their integrity.

You suggest that I read the Ten Commandments, which I have done; but I am not the Moses to lead some people out of the wilderness of ignorance and into the land of Canaan, but I am in hopes that the laws of our country, which are made by the wisdom of this turmoil and place us before the eyes of the public that we are not trying to overthrow this government.

You state should be governed by the will of our people. Study up how this form of government is established by the people and the representatives who are racking their brains today to study out the economic situation of the country and not settle any personal grievances.

You ask the question how I stand. I will state that I stand for law and order and that anyone who makes an effort to stir a community with seditious remarks should be taken care of by the people.

Jenkins' Comment

cent comes from license fees and gasoline tax.

License fees in 1930, the latest year for which figures are available, provided 22.6 per cent of all the highway revenue and gasoline taxes 32.8 per cent.

The gasoline tax, you see, has become more important as a producer of revenue than the license fee.

SO FAR as known, every state in the Union now levies license fees and gasoline taxes, but all of them don't use the revenue thus raised exclusively for highway construction and maintenance. Sixteen of the states are diverting a part of this revenue to other purposes.

Schools are the principal beneficiary of the sums diverted from license fees and gasoline taxes. One state, Maryland, uses one-fifth of all the money it collects from motorists in the license fee and gasoline taxes for OYSTER PROPAGATION.

Maybe they figure in Maryland that since the motorist likes to stop at roadhouses and eat oysters he ought to pay for propagating them.

This writer hopes that in Oregon we shall always continue to use ALL the money we collect from motorists in the form of license fees and gasoline taxes for the building and maintenance of highways.

LEGION INITIATION CAN BE HEARD BY RADIO ON MONDAY

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.—An American Legion initiation which is an annual affair by the Legion Department of California, will be held from 8:00 to 8:30 p. m. February 20, over all the western network of the National Broadcasting Co. Department officers will take part and the California state championship band of Zane-Inn Post of San Francisco, will play. In the past, letters of congratulation have been received from all parts of the world following this annual broadcast.

The broadcast is a part of the membership work of the California Department. A feature of the membership effort in California was the "Loyalty March" scheduled for the evening of February 10. Preceding this event the week of February 4 to 11 was designated by the Legion as "Loyalty Week." Instructions for the "March" included the assembly at a place designated by each post commander where the pledge of allegiance to the Flag of the United States was the main part of the program. Following the pledge, the commander assigned his men to individual squads, each squad under the command of a corporal. To each corporal was provided a list of men eligible for membership in the Legion and certain names of members who had not yet paid their 1933 dues. The corporal and his squad then proceeded to contact personally the veterans assigned to them.

Instructions provided that notations and a report should be made of all veterans found to be out of employment and their families in need. A written report upon each name given the corporal was to be made. At 10:00 p. m. post commanders were to report to their respective district commanders and they in turn to their area commanders and they to the department commander in San Francisco by wire.
