

Hard Luck Hits Ashland Quint on Eve of Game Here Thursday

(By Billy Hulien.)
The hopes of Coach Don Faber's Ashland High Orioles to enter the first game of the championship series with Medford on at least an even footing, received a blasting jolt today when it was learned that the two star players—the two high-scoring forwards, Willie Durham and Billy Hoxie—would be unable to see action when the teams meet in Medford Thursday.

Suffering from foot trouble all year, Durham, under strict doctor's orders, will not play. And Hoxie, the lanky forward who has been poison to all opponents, is ill with a touch of flu. In replacing these stellar performers, Faber will probably use Gearhart in Hoxie's place and Hess at Durham's position. Hardy will start at his center position and Kinnasto and Baughman will work the guards.

HANDBALL GAINS BOYS' INTEREST

Changing the old saying, "Variety is the spice of life," to "Life spiced with variety," another phase of sport is being introduced into the Medford high school intramural schedule this term, the new sport being handball. All boys were given a chance to compete in the contest and about 40 signed up, and now a single elimination tournament will be in effect, which means that if a boy is defeated once he will be out of the running altogether. The first round is expected to be run off this week.

JOE AND REFEREE BOTH PIN HEIBERT

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 21.—(AP)—Harold Heibert, St. Helena logger-wrestler, suffered two defeats here last night. The first came when Yaqui Joe, Sonora, Mexico, Indian, defeated him two out of three falls. At the conclusion of this match, Heibert suddenly attacked referee Harry Elliott, Eugene referee. Elliott received the popular decision when he forced Heibert to pound the mat. Rex Mobley, 165 pounds, Birmingham, was awarded a decision over Joe Reno, 169, New Orleans when the latter was disqualified for slugging after each had taken a fall. Jess McCann, 142, Bremerton, defeated Pat O'Reilly, 139, Eugene by taking one fall in the opener.

VANDALS DEFEAT HUSKIES 47 TO 35

MOSCOW, Idaho, Feb. 21.—(AP)—Coach Rich Fox of the University of Idaho promised two weeks ago to "win one from Washington," and his basketball team's 47 to 35 victory over the Huskies here last night just about ruined the Huskies' chances for another championship, after holding the northern division coast conference title the past five years. The defeat gave Washington eight victories and five defeats and the teams play again tonight. Oregon State, league leader, has won 10 and lost four and has only two more games to play, both with the weak Oregon five, which has won only one game out of 12 this season. The win was the first for Idaho over Washington in six years.

Elks Play Bridge Tourney Tonight

The Elks' bridge tournament which was postponed from last Tuesday, will be continued tonight. Only one of the three bridge sessions to be held in February has been played, so all players will have a good chance to make a showing for this month. Carl Bowman won the last weekly prize.

EADS BOWLERS TRIM BRAYTONS

Brayton's invincibles went down for the count last night in the Elks' bowling tourney when Eads' team, evidently strengthened by their new bowler, L. F. Andrus, took two straight games in the match. Pruitt will probably hold his present individual standing at the top of the list, as he scored 588, which gives him an average of 196.

The score of 2834, which was high for this week, is not hard to beat for the weekly prize, and Sherwood's gang claim they are after it, so watch your step.

DEPOSITORS NOSE TWISTED TO GET WAIVER SIGNATURE

SALEM, Feb. 21.—(AP)—The same "strong-arm" tactics allegedly used to force J. C. Turner to sign a waiver on deposits in the First National National bank of Pendleton were employed here Friday night against Leonard Zwicker of Pendleton, to force him to sign a waiver to his $15,000 deposit in that bank, it became known here late yesterday.

Zwicker came from Pendleton to visit a brother here last week and to escape the besieging depositors' committee seeking his signature. He had been visited by committees here and had a conference between one committee and local bankers Friday night. On the way to his brother's home, following that conference, he and his brother were halted by a group of men. Zwicker's nose was twisted and he submitted to signing the waiver, predicting at the time that it would be no good. The next day a much better arrangement was offered him and he signed, thereby closing the matter. It was Saturday afternoon that J. C. Turner was attacked in the same manner, but reportedly given harsher treatment. Zwicker said he refused to sign on the terms first proposed in order to protect another brother also farming in the Pendleton district, who was indebted to the bank and in danger of being closed out of it.

NEWS READERS ARE DECEIVED BY REPETITIONS

Banks further states this morning, on the front page, as follows: "We witness an officer entering private property and there laying hands on and taking away property not represented by the legal document which he held before him as legal grounds for seizing his property."

"We witness a justice of the peace hearing all of the evidence in this case, then permitting the officers to retain the property which they had seized illegally."

NEWS READERS ARE DECEIVED BY REPETITIONS

Banks says the Ashland justice court had no jurisdiction in the Wilkins case, he is deliberately saying something that isn't true, and furthermore, he knows it isn't true."

THE BATES CASE AGAIN

The Bates case again, in all of its misrepresentation as to what the Banks declares that Bates was banished from the county without having committed any crime. But the fact is the officers allowed Bates to leave the county in preference to going to jail, as he was an aged man. One of the letters Bates wrote to a neighbor on Foots creek will be produced in court if the Bates case is forced to trial by the rankings of Banks, and will prove, for all time to come, that Banks has deliberately falsified about the Bates case, official records. In the letter Bates wrote to his neighbor, he "gave him until sundown" to comply with certain blackmail requests, "and if they weren't done, his wife would be left a widow and his children without a father." It was this letter that Bates had indicated on, and this letter that led officers to feel Bates was an unsafe man on Foots creek, and should be either in jail or out of the county. He was allowed to leave the county at the request of his wife and daughter.

Banks Has Seen Letter

Banks has seen this letter, and knows what it contains. He has seen the signature of Bates on the letter. Bates admitted in open court in Gold Hill that he wrote the letter, and still Banks, because it better suits his plans and opinions, refuses to believe it is authentic, and declares the letter to be a forgery. How can he have the arrogance to continue to drum on the case is unexplainable except that $300,000 worth of libel suits grew out of the case, and Banks' only chance to escape them is to prejudice the minds of the people into thinking the charges are true.

THEY WERE ENTITLED TO TAKE IT INTO A HIGHER COURT

"They were entitled to take it into a higher court," Coleman continued. The case has now gone by default. That paper was not seized illegally, nor was it held illegally. All anyone has to do is read the state law to find out what the jurisdiction of the justice courts is, and if the justice courts make an error, the party in question has redress in the higher courts."

Coleman Had Power Judge William Coleman of the Medford justice court issued the writ of attachment for the paper which was seized from Banks' newspaper plant, and also heard the third party claim argued. Judge Coleman was interviewed this morning.

"This court issued the writ of attachment on Gene Wright's complaint," Judge Coleman said, "and Fremont attached the paper. Then Banks' men spent a day and a half trying to set up a third party claim in this court to get a release of the paper, but they were unable to present any facts which would prove the Medford Daily News didn't own the paper."
