

HONEST MEN AND JUDGMENTS ARE WARPED BY LIES

criminal libel in the Wilkins case, that it also had no authority to order his arrest and hold an arraignment on the complaint. Officers have never contended that the Ashland justice court had authority to try the case, and no attempt was made to try Banks there. He was arraigned, and, as attorneys and officers declare, Banks knows that he was arraigned under the law, and is deliberately lying to his readers when he says the Ashland justice court had no jurisdiction in the matter.

Hints Fast Work. Banks also gives the impression to his readers that some "fast work" was accomplished in having Circuit Judge G. F. Skipworth hear his arraignment on the last two indictments, brought by the grand jury charging criminal syndicalism and criminal libel.

Banks declared in his front page editorial this morning that "Judge Skipworth was sent to Medford to hear the recount case in the controversy for county sheriff." That is true, it is pointed out, but only half true, as are other statements made by Banks. JUDGE SKIPWORTH WAS SENT TO MEDFORD TO HEAR ALL BUSINESS COMING BEFORE THE COURT UNTIL SUCH TIME AS THE SHERIFF RECOUNT CASE WAS DISPOSED OF.

The grand jury indictments against Banks, brought in Monday, charging Banks with criminal syndicalism and criminal libel, were brought in while Judge Skipworth was hearing the recount controversy. IT WAS THEN IMPERATIVE, UNDER THE LAW, THAT JUDGE SKIPWORTH ALSO HEAR THE ARRAIGNMENT TUESDAY MORNING, and had Judge H. D. Norton heard the arraignment, it would have been contrary to law and to court practices, it was pointed out by officials.

Duty Under Law. Many members of the Good Government Congress were present when the indictments against Banks were brought in, and those members know that Judge Skipworth received the indictments. Now, it is pointed out, if these members of the Good Government Congress will take the trouble to look into the law, they will learn first hand that Judge Skipworth HAD to hear the arraignment the next morning, and that Banks deliberately attempted to mislead his followers by his insinuations of "fast work."

Banks' statements in this morning's paper are recognized by thousands as just further evidence that he deliberately slanders himself from the courts and attorneys, and then sets up a pitiful cry that he is alienated. His statement this morning that he was considering whether or not to recognize the indictments and the courts is construed by persons about the city and county as deliberate bluffs, and attempts to impress his followers, who do not know him intimately, with his bravery.

Bluff His Policy. Banks has followed this policy of half truth and bluff for years, which has attracted to his following hundreds of honest citizens who do not know the man intimately. Those persons were recently organized into the Good Government Congress, under the honest impression that Banks was telling the whole truth instead of only half of it. Banks has repeatedly called upon the Good Government Congress to remove District Attorney George Codding and Circuit Judge H. D. Norton from office, because Banks wants them removed for reasons best known to himself, and the honest members of the Good Government Congress want them removed because they have been reading nothing but Banks' half truths for years. By reading this morning's paper, however, at least those who heard the indictments Monday can see for themselves the tactics Banks has been pursuing, and, it is commonly believed, they will be revolted by his tactics when they know the truth, as they can know it by glancing at the Oregon code, or a wire to the supreme court, and then comparing their findings with his front page editorial.

Dahack Case Again. The well-known Everett Dahack case is again being investigated by the grand jury, which calls to the minds of thousands in the valley the misinformation and half truths that have been put out by the Daily News about that case.

Ted Smith, Albert Goetjen and Raleigh Mathews will testify at this hearing, it is believed, which will be the first grand jury investigation that these men have appeared before.

Banks has repeatedly testified that the officers prevented those three men from giving evidence at the coroner's inquest, and at subsequent grand jury hearings. Such is not the case, and, officers declare, Banks knows that it is not the case. The men themselves refused to testify at the coroner's inquest, and at subsequent grand jury hearings, upon advice of their attorneys.

When the district attorney sent for the three men to appear before the first two grand jury investigations, their attorney, Charles Reames, refused to let them appear unless a stipulation was entered into between the district attorney and the men that any evidence they might give WOULD NOT BE USED AGAINST THEM IN THEIR TRIALS ON CHARGES OF POSSESSION OF A STILL.

Cannot Force Testimony. State laws are plain, to the effect that a man cannot be forced to give testimony against himself. Liquor charges growing out of the still raid are now a thing of the past. Prison sentences have been served, and the men can now appear without fear of incriminating themselves. They are being called before the grand jury, at the request of the district attorney's office, and any Banks followers or misled members of the Good Government Congress can further see how he or she has been misled from seeing either of the three men, the district attorney's office, or Charles Reames.

URGES WORK TO RELIEVE PEOPLE START AT ONCE. (Continued from Page One) are registered. The materials can be purchased by means of a small bond issue provided for in HB 422, now before the legislature. The bonds to be sold to the reconstruction finance corporation. 4. Labor on our farms and ranches, where the owner is hard pressed to produce his crops. This labor to be assigned by a committee of the Pomona Grange, appointed for the purpose. 5. Labor on our orchards, for the same reasons. This labor to be assigned by a committee of the Fruit-growers' league. In addition to the above proposals, I wish to point out that this committee should at once start to investigate the possibility of securing tracts of land adjacent to our cities, to be planted in community gardens, the produce of which can be put away for relief work next winter. I have given all my time to the solving of our local unemployment and relief problem for a long time, and it is the duty of every thinking person in our country to bend his best efforts to support some constructive solution of this problem. If businessmen refuse to take this responsibility, before the year is out they will have no business. Let's all support the new governor's committee when appointed, and give these breadwinners a fair chance to work. When we have done that we can once more live in a valley that will be a real home to all of us. Very Truly Yours, HAMILTON PATTON, Director of Relief for Jackson County, February 22, 1933.

Nopco Feed Test Closes Tuesday

An attractive display of Nopco XX in the windows of the Monarch Seed & Feed company at Sixth and Bartlett streets in this city.

What Rogue River valley poultry raiser will win a prize in the Nopco XX free feed test? That is the subject of considerable speculation, and poultrymen will await with keen interest the announcement of winners after the close of the contest on February 28. The many letters being received by the Nopco company in San Francisco indicate the enthusiasm on the part of southern Oregon people for this remarkable concentrated vitamin D. One particular feature is especially stressed by L. D. Cook of Brown-Jeklin & Co., northwest distributors of Nopco XX. "We do not ask for carefully written or typed letters. The main thing we are anxious to receive is the actual improvement in gloss observed by poultrymen who use Nopco. "Everyone has an equal chance, as writing ability, spelling, composition or kind of paper written on or how written does not count. Only ranch-proven results count." Over 10,000 pounds of laying mash is being given away in this test. Each district's share is 2000 pounds, divided into a first award of 1000 pounds; second award of 500 pounds, and the next five awards of 100 pounds each. The necessary things are: Sign up with the dealer now; observe the flock benefits; send in the letter to Nopco, 463 California street, San Francisco, Cal., before midnight of February 28.

UNEMPLOYED SLATE IMPORTANT MEETING FOR THURSDAY NIGHT. An important meeting of the Medford Association of the Unemployed will be held at the county court house Thursday night at 7:30 o'clock and all members of the association are urged to be present for receipt of very timely information. In announcing the meeting today Harry Moore, leader of the group, stressed the fact that the unemployed association is not connected in any way with recently organized unemployed groups. The association has been functioning since last July and during that time has distributed several tons of supplies to the unemployed through its commissary. It has also operated a woodyard and kept many needy people supplied with fuel. Its program is based upon a supreme effort to provide people with work, enabling them to earn what they receive, thus avoiding all dangers of a dole system. The association has been recognized here as the official unemployed group.

NAME WATCHMAN AT COURT HOUSE; FEHL IS OPPOSED

The county court yesterday afternoon appointed W. F. Ratke night-watchman of the court house. The action was taken as a precautionary measure following the theft and destruction of the official ballots Monday night on the eve of the sheriff's recount.

Commissioners R. E. Nealon and Ralph Billings voted for the appointment. Upon the motion of Commissioner Nealon the records were made to show that County Judge Fehl had protested the move on the ground that the "horse had been stolen." Commissioner Nealon made the rejoinder, "There might be other horses in the stable."

Ratke's duties will be to patrol the inside of the court house during the night. He has been a resident of the valley nine years.

A court house report says that the grand jury will be asked to make inquiry to determine if any keys to the court house are in the possession of unauthorized persons, and if so, why and how did they get them. The grand jury was reported last week to have investigated complaints that sleeping quarters were provided for two men in the penthouse on the court house roof, and that two figures in the county disturbance were eating some of the meals at the county jail.

The grand jury will resume its sessions tomorrow. Its official life ends Saturday. A new grand jury will be drawn Monday at the opening of the March term of court.
