FEHL REFUSES TO CO-OPERATE FOR RFC RELIEF LOAN

The Granges of the county were reported as planning action against the present system after investigations conducted by members.

Strangers Flock Here It has been claimed that the unrestricted issuance of supplies at the commissary has attracted transient elements here from Klamath Falls, northern California and other points.

Commissioner Billings said: "The county court wants no worthy resident to go hungry, and none will; but the county is not going broke feeding the unworthy and floaters from all over the coast."

Both commissioners emphatically declared that system would be installed in county relief work in the immediate future.

SALEM, Feb. 23.—(AP)—County Judge Earl H. Fehl of Jackson county held a conference with Governor Julius L. Meier today relative to county relief work.

After the session that he discussed with the governor the unemployment situation at Medford and other points in Jackson county and urged the appointment of conservative members upon the county relief council.

While Fehl said he did not suggest any additional names to the governor, he did point out to him whom he believed the most conservative persons on the governor's proposed list.

He said he recommended three persons out of the dozen already suggested to the executive. These three were Mrs. A. E. Reames, Hamilton Patton and State Senator George W. Dunn.

County Names Three The Governor names four members of the county committee under the bill setting up the state organization, while the county may name three, either the members of the county court or persons named by the court.

None of the county committees outside of Marion county has yet been announced by the executive office, although some others will be named in the very near future.

Judge Fehl declared that since a report came out in Medford that Jackson county would have $25,000 a month for unemployment relief, there had been a "regular upset" in the system used for relief to the needy.

Fehl said the county now was feeding 1100 families, and when the story was published it "upset the system to such an extent that few people would work in exchange for aid."

Fehl said he knew nothing of any such amount for relief.

Says Medford Tense The Jackson county judge says he did not discuss other matters with the governor. He was asked whether he had talked over the situation in Medford relative to the Good Government congress and the situation arising out of the theft of the ballots.

"The situation in Jackson county is tense," the judge said, "but I did not discuss any further matters with the governor." Fehl added that the atmosphere in Medford was growing increasingly tense, particularly since the theft of the ballots.

A bicycle, familiar to many people in Medford for 22 years, met a bitter end last night, according to a report on file at the city police station. Owned by Verne Cannon, janitor, it was "parked" in the alley at the city hall, and when Officer Cave drove his car from the alley, "he backed over the bicycle, breaking the frame, both wheels, the seat, luggage carrier and handle bars, otherwise not damaging it," the blotter shows.

Officer Cave said last night he would carry the case to the supreme court before he would pay over $50 for a new bicycle for Janitor Cannon. Continuing his written report of the "tragic happening," Officer Cave wrote: "Verne Cannon did intentionally and maliciously place his bicycle under the rear wheels of my automobile, hoping to get a new $50 bicycle."

The janitor walked home to supper last night.

These two Pueblo Indians, Antonio Mirakal (left) and Antonio Lujan, unlike the usual type of administration job lobbyists, went to Washington from Santa Fe, N.
