

REPEAL IN HANDS OF STATES ALONE NOW SAYS WALSH

All Connection of Congress Ended With Submission of New Amendment Monday Is Senator's Opinion

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—(AP)—The New York Times, in a special dispatch from Washington, said today that in the opinion of Senator Walsh of Montana, "who has agreed to accept the post of attorney general in the new administration," all connection which congress has with prohibition repeal ended with the submission Monday of the new amendment.

"From that moment forward," the Times said, "in his legal judgment, the question of procedure and method rested solely with the several states."

Senator Walsh so expressed himself to the correspondent of the New York Times. Presumably his constitutional interpretation and legal opinion was binding on the Roosevelt administration.

"Since Speaker Garner and Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader in the senate, are both opposed to federal legislation arranging and defraying the cost of the state constitutional conventions and southern legislation seem unanimously opposed to federal interference in their ratification machinery, it appears unlikely that the La Guardia, Sumner or A. Mitchell Palmer plans will ever emerge from congress."

Court Ruling Unlikely.

The Times said some hope had been expressed that an "advisory" opinion might be obtained from the supreme court, saving time and avoiding controversies which might arise over the question whether congress may lay down a basic representation rule for the state constitutional conventions. The Times said Senator Walsh pointed out that Chief Justice Marshall set the precedent which he said the court undoubtedly would follow in refusing to hand down an advisory opinion.

SHIP IN WOOD, IS ADVICE OF COPCO

"Ship Your Products in Wood" is the title of an effective advertisement which is being published by the California Oregon Power company, in an endeavor to increase the use of southern Oregon's wood containers. The advertisement, which is one of a series of Copco community advertising efforts to promote the resources and products of the territory served, is quoted as follows:

"The wood box manufacturers of southern Oregon are making an intensive effort at this time to acquaint the shipper with the desirable features of the wooden container for the packing and shipping of a wide range of commodities. The wood box industry is intelligently entering into the problem of marketing potatoes, carrots and other vegetables in wooden crates. The box factory payroll is an important one in southern Oregon, distributing large sums in wages. Every individual and every business, either directly or indirectly, benefits from this industry."

"Most of the wood box factories in southern Oregon are using modern electrical machinery because of its efficiency and the low fire hazard."

Navy Ships Square Off for West Coast 'War'

Annual Games Of U. S. Fleet To See Plenty Of Gun-Play But No Firing

SAN DIEGO, Cal.—(AP)—Somewhere between Alaska and southern California a victorious fleet of destroyers may land this month, with the annihilation of the United States navy battle force to its credit.

The annual winter problem of the navy this year is one in which the scouting force must attempt to gain a foothold somewhere along the American west shore while the battle force attempts to hold it off.

Like an athletic contest, the scouting force is on its way from Hawaii. There will be a concentration of the fleet in the San Pedro-San Diego area.

The maneuvers are planned somewhat in the manner of an athletic contest with a goal set, but the manner in which it is to be attained is just as much a secret as the manner in which a football team is to score its touchdowns.

The purpose of the problem is to test the entire force of the navy under surprise conditions such as they would meet in war.

No shot will be fired but the most intricate gunplay possible with modern equipment will be used from anti-aircraft to gunnery from the turrets of huge warships. Men will work with clock-like precision, handling and placing shells and powder just as though they were actually in war.

Turrets Like Cylinders. One of the most dramatic focal points of action will be in the battleship gun turrets. There is a steel cabin on the deck which shelters the gunning crew for a setup of two or three large guns, as the case may be. The breeches of the guns are also in the turret but they nose out into the air, pointing astern or up or down as the target demands.

The turrets, five or six to the ship, are like steel cylinders that descend through two or three levels of the vessel down into the "handing" room where the ammunition is gotten out by a mechanical coordination of the men, placed on electrically operated trays and conveyed rapidly to the level of the gun crews, each in command of a turret manager.

When the target is too far to sight along the guns the crews receive their orders for pointing on an electrical clock operated from the gunnery office in a post on the mast.

That same precision and teamwork will control the entire man-force of the navy as the ships sight each other somewhere along the west coast. Submarines, aircraft carriers and ships will each go through the highly technical system of defense planned to keep invading forces from United States shores.

Those in command this year will include Vice-Admiral Frank H. Clark with the scouting force and Admiral Claud C. Bloch with the battle force.

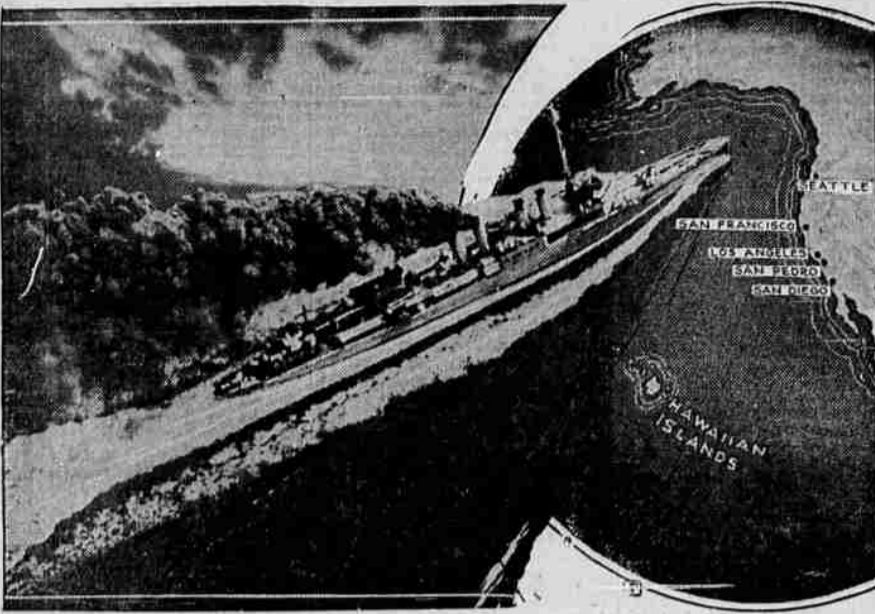

SHERIFF'S SALE RIOT WET DOWN

SALT LAKE CITY, Feb. 23.—(AP)—A crowd that stormed the county and city building here today with the avowed purpose of preventing a sheriff's sale, was met with streams from fire hose and tear gas bombs, hurled by deputy sheriffs.

When the crowd, after thronging the courthouse steps, where the sale had been advertised for today, forced its way into the building, it was first met with streams of water. When these proved ineffective to stop its rush, the members pushed toward the sheriff's office, the gas bombs were brought into play.

A complete description was obtained of the holdup man, who was said to be wearing a green hat, overalls and a gray overcoat. He was about six feet tall, and was thought to be about 35 years of age.

PAIR WHO LOITER AT COURT HOUSE QUIZZED ON THEFT

ments would come to a head. Neither would they state the number of men working on the case.

Condemnation in Voted. Throughout the city and county, Citizens and taxpayers were preparing to demand that the doors of the court house be kept locked at night, and that if the auditorium was used, it alone be opened; that keys be issued only to janitors and county officials, and that only those legally entitled to food and quarters on the roof of the courthouse be given these accommodations. The county court Monday put W. P. Ratty on duty as a nightwatchman, with instructions to maintain a steady patrol.

Public opinion has crystallized to a considerable extent since the ballot stealing, that "it is time to halt the turmoil and agitation." The public is demanding in no uncertain terms that the "courthouse be made safe for the records," and that no expense or time be spared to find the guilty parties. "If they can get away with it now, they may try something else," was the leading argument.

WEATHER DELAYS JAPANESE DRIVE

(By the Associated Press) Conflicting reports from various sources, and the lack of adequate communication facilities, have made it difficult to determine the status of military operations in eastern Jehol.

A report from Mukden indicated that Japan might postpone the drive into that province until the weather improves, but word from Chang-chun, Manchuria, said Gen. Chang Hsi-ben, commanding the army in Manchukuo, began advance at midnight Wednesday against the Chinese forces in Jehol.

DAM DYNAMITING SEEN AS SAMPLE OF DISTORTIONS

wash out due to the age of the timber, high water and the work of gophers and moles.

Flue Caused Fire. "The burning of the bunk house down there is another example of how Banks distorts the truth," Clements said. "When the house burned down, I called Banks on the telephone to tell him about it, and he said he would put it in his paper. I advised him not to do it until we had inspected it to learn just HOW it started."

"A complete investigation of the fire showed conclusively that the fire started from a defective flue," Clements said, and we had had trouble getting insurance because of the defective flue. There was absolutely no evidence of any 'gang' or 'scemes' having burned the place down, but Banks announced in his paper that the fire was the work of the 'gang' that was still trying to run Bates and Banks out of the country.

"We told Banks that the fire was not the work of firebugs, and that we had PROVED it had started from the defective flue, but Banks did not correct his story. He preferred to let his readers believe it was the work of the 'gang.'"

Others Cite Untruths. The experience of Clements with Banks is but one of DOZENS OF LIKE EXPERIENCES others have had with him. When Banks deliberately distorted the truth about the dynamiting of the dam, and gave the impression Clements said it WAS NOT dynamited, he expressed in full his mania for truth distortion.

When Banks refused to tell his readers the truth about the fire that destroyed the bunk house on the Black Channel property, he willfully and maliciously misled his readers for the sole purpose of further building up his story of persecution of Bates by the officers and the invisible 'gang' and to clear himself on $300,000 in libel suits.

Others Seek Truth. These two concrete examples are but two among HUNDREDS OF LIKE INSTANCES. Members of the Good Government congress who have rushed to Banks' support because they have read of "miscarriages of justice" in the Medford Daily News are beginning to look to the truth of many other charges FOR THEMSELVES.

There is no doubt that these people are seeking the truth about matters. It is pointed out, but it is also pointed out that they have read in Banks' paper that these dams were dynamited, that his bunk house was burned by the "gang," and they have heard him declare from the public platform that Raleigh Mathews, Ted Smith and Albert Goetjen were KEPT OUT OF THE COUNTY BY INTIMIDATION and prevented from appearing before the grand jury in the Da-hack matter, when the statements have been proved false.

There is considerable surprise, however, among thousands of persons in the valley, that honest taxpayers and workers can seek the leadership of a man who has no regard for the truth and whose disregard for the truth can be proved over and over again if they will but take the time to check up on the facts behind his alleged "conspiracies."

Testified at Hearing. Further developments in the uncovering of the truth in the Everett Da-hack case gained from interviews with members of two previous grand juries that investigated the shooting, bring out the fact that Ted Smith, Albert Goetjen and Raleigh Mathews all three testified AT THE FIRST AND SECOND GRAND JURY INVESTIGATIONS and that conflicting testimony was given.

The three men testified at the first hearing that a fusillade of shots was fired, and at the second hearing that only two were fired. Harry Marx, who had stenographic notes on the first hearing, was called into the
